FAMILY RECORDS.

WE ARE NOW PREPARED to receive orders for FAMILY RECORDS of an approved form. Each book is divided into four forms.

The first form is that of a "FAMILY RECORD," with ruled and printed spaces for births, marriages, and deaths, in each family, also for names, dates, and places, one page accommodating one family.

The second form is a "CHURCH RECORD," with spaces for blessings, baptisms, confirmations, ordinations, endowments, and patriarchal blessings and various particulars of the same.

The third form is a "SEALING RECORD," with spaces for name of person sealed, birth, death, time, place, etc.

The fourth form is a "BAPTISM FOR THE DEAD RECORD," with spaces for names, dates, birth, death, baptism, confirmation, etc.

Each book is furnished with a title page, on which the person owning the record can enter his or her name. An explanation of the forms, or instructions how to keep the record is also printed in each book, and its pages are numbered.

These Records are well printed and ruled on good ledger paper, substantially bound in full sheep, English roan, or Book. We can furnish them of any size, from one to five quires, or larger, but probably five quires is as large as will be desired. We can also furnish the various forms in a record, proportioned to each other to order.

EVENING NEWS.

Tuesday ... April 23, 1878.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Adventuress in Washington—How the Duality of the Devil and the Graces Might Have Met his Equal—Her Religion, Her Love, her Motto and her Alps—A Spiritualistic Entertainment—An Ohioan Paying $1,400 for a Clairvoyant Painting of the Woman he is to Wed in the Spirit Land, but is Afraid to Show it to his Wife.

WASHINGTON, April 15, 1878.

Editors Deseret News:

When Chesterfield said that women were only children of a larger growth, with an interesting tattle, and sometimes wit, but that he had never known one to possess solid reason and good sense, or to act consequentially for four and twenty hours together—it is quite evident that he had never come in contact with the Washington species, maid, wife or widow. Had he met a Washington adventuress, and if he had gone into good society he would certainly have found her, he would have met his equal, and more too. If he had began to flatter her, as he advised his son to do, on any subject, from her understanding down to the requisite taste of her fan, under the impression that she would gratefully accept the smallest compliment, and greedily swallow the grossest—what would have become of that duality of the devil and the graces, Lord Chesterfield! He would have been "taken in" and done for. He might practice his graces, his flattery, his diabolical je ne sai quoi, upon a United States Senator, on Ben Butler, or Sam. Cox; but with all his knowledge of the beau monde, as it was, the Becky Sharpe of Washington might teach him a thing or two that would cause him to admire. The century and a quarter that has elapsed, since Chesterfield wrote, has not left women becalmed in the wake of its mighty evolutions and revolutions. The Queen of the Cannibal Islands is more tastefully tattooed than was her grandmother, and the bells of this habitat has more in her head, if not in her heart, than had her progenitress of the days of Chesterfield. The Washington society woman has one grand absorbing passion—an enthusiastic devotion to herself that has made her stoical on every other subject; she may have her smiles and her tears, her joys and her sorrows, but they are not for others. She adores dress, kneels at the shrine of Mammon, burns incense to dear mealy-mouthed society, fawns upon the powerful and elevates her exquisite nose at the knock-kneed, corpulent, and weak. She is an audacious, persevering, pioneering, little body; her motto is excelsior, and her Alpha is the social ladder. Sooner or later, probably later, she will get married to a sentimental youth, with well-balanced hair, and money; or to what she would prefer, money, with only septuagenerian encumbrance. Money, subsidiary to self, is the supreme object of her life, and she will secure it, through marriage if she can, but, at any rate, she will secure it. Since the days of Babylon there have been other careers for women at capitals than matrimony.

Yesterday evening, in passing Talmadge's Hall, which adjoins the old theatre where Lincoln was murdered, I observed that it was illuminated, and asking the long-haired man at the door what he was to have, he replied, "A lecture by the great high priest of Spiritualism, Mr. Davis." I remembered that when quite a boy I had read a book on spiritualism, by Davis, full of transcendental jargon, the flyleaf of which was adorned with a portrait of the writer, trying to look like a man of genius and sensibility; so I paid 10 cents and strolled in to hear him. One sees some queer-looking people in a large hall full of spiritualists. It is said that every man has his insanity, but a spectacle of a room full of middle-aged men and women, elated with a homogeneous insanity, is a spectacle. From Mr. Davis' lecture I would infer that his insanity is of the milder, more refined and ethereal type. His rhapsody was as convincing as chaste rhetoric, poetical hypotheses and unimpassioned diction could make it. The philosophy, or rather "misophy," which he taught was to distrust the senses, with their lore of science, and listen only to instinct and longing, which was real wisdom, and the hereditary experience of infinite generations of the human soul. He denounced spectacular spiritualism and so-called materializations, and reproached spiritualists for wasting money on them. The best part of his lecture was that in which he ridiculed a wealthy Ohioan, whose business detained him in New York, while his wife took care of his family in the Buckeye State, for paying $1,400 for an oil painting of his spirit bride, the woman he was to wed in the spirit world. He said this man would spend hours in enamored contemplation of the painting, while his good, homely wife in Ohio, was engaged in the care of their numerous progeny. When he asked him why he did not take the picture home, he replied that he was afraid it might make trouble! C. A. S.

After all, man is a generous being. Not long ago one died in Massachusetts who had been married only a year, and received a fortune of $50,000 from his wife. And what did he do when he found death staring him in the face? Not enrich his relatives as he might have done; he willed it all back to her—on the simple condition that she should not marry again. The noble man!—Woman's Words.

BRITISH GENEALOGY.

LATTER-DAY Saints from Great Britain who require the genealogies of their forefathers (originally natives of England, Scotland, Wales, Channel Islands, or Isle of Man) are hereby respectfully informed that, with the sanction of the proper authorities, I have undertaken the important task of collecting the same for religious purposes, from those countries.

Having traversed Great Britain extensively by land and sea, in many capacities, I rely on the earnestness and integrity of the British race of both sexes, for support, and offer my services to them as an humble instrument in the hands of God.

All persons desiring to employ me should apply immediately as this is a rare opportunity in connection with the great events of the Latter-day Work.
