

A BANK WRECKED.

Dutman, Cashier, Not Financial Stringency, the Cause.

THE DEPOSITORS LOSE NOTHING.

Cashier Bill, of the Commercial National Bank of Ogden, Takes $20,000.

When E. Hill, the trustee of the Commercial National bank of Ogden, has written the constitution by a system of provisions which for months have been in the hands of the directors of the bank which up to Saturday was supposed to be one of the soundest financial institutions of the Junction City, it did not open for business this morning.

It has been reported that the bank was closed for a long time, making it impossible for the president and directors of the bank or even the bank executive to do what was going on. The plan of operations was to overcome the bank's accounts with the other banks, making it impossible for the bank to do business.

The bank's assets were estimated at $1,000,000. The Commercial National bank of Ogden, Utah, was founded in 1864. It was one of the oldest banks in the state. The bank's assets were estimated at $1,000,000.

REAL ESTATE AND MINING.

The Exchange Address to the Public for Funds.

The meeting Wednesday—Mining News and News.

The meeting of the Real Estate Exchange on Saturday evening was well attended. By unanimous vote it was decided to issue a call to the public. A synopsis of the call was given to the people of Salt Lake City.

In the line of general district and inspection it is our duty to be in constant touch with the public. The present state of affairs in the mining industry is such that it is necessary to be in constant touch with the public.

While the general depression is felt in all lines of business, the mining industry is not so much affected. The mining industry is still active and producing. The mining industry is still active and producing.

THE BANK'S FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The bank's financial statement shows a deficit of $20,000. The bank's assets were estimated at $1,000,000. The bank's liabilities were estimated at $1,020,000.
