LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Johnson on Louisiana Affairs.

WASHINGTON, D. C., 22.—During his speech on the Louisiana resolution, Johnson argued at length against a third term, and speaking of gift taking by United States officials, he said this question would be last night's subject, and he considered here to-day as the one now under consideration. Returning to the action of the President in Louisiana, he said he believed the constitution of the constitution that the U. S. shall guarantee to every State in the Union a republican form of government, and he said he did not understand the President to be the United States, and that provision did not authorize the executive of his own volition, to take charge of, in person or by an agent selected from the army, of a State government. He declared that this time he was in this country, with his recollection, when an act of usurpation like this had been attempted, it would have produced a shock throughout the nation, and he said he believed there would have been ready to the perpetrator from power. Now we see things differently. We had gone outside the constitution in a way that would bring this government to an end or change its character entirely. Again referring to the orders sent to Sheridan, the speaker said there was a general of the army sent with authority to go and look over this country, and mark himself out as a general, and to prescribe the lines of his government, or of the territory he should control, and in which his power should be absolute as that of an emperor. Where he asked, did this power of usurpation and tyranny come from? "Upon what must do this our country? It is not a grown so great," that he can mark out the boundaries of empires and place military commanders over them? "He thought it time that the country was awakened to consider these things. The Senator described the organization of the Louisiana legislature, and declared the action of the military there was unconstitutional. He would vote against the resolution, not because it was a republican measure, but because it was a principle of presidential interference with the affairs of a State was sanctioned in this case, why not apply it to all cases? He said he would not vote for the resolution, and announced the action of the President in Arkansas affairs, and speaking of the growth of federal power as a result of the action of the President in Louisiana, he declared that there must be something behind all this, and concluded by saying that he thought the light of events that will transpire in the approaching presidential election. When we have a candidate for the presidency in the Court declined to go into the consideration of these grants, or the effect of confirmations under them, remarking that every confirmation of the subject had been presented and decided, and here affirmed. Mr. Justice Field delivered the opinion.
