

QUICK ACTION ON TARIFF BILL

Chairman Payne Urges it, Declaring That the Country is Very Anxious for It.

HE DEFENDS FREE HIDES.

Won't Hurt Any One but Millmen and Packers—Also Seems to Incline to Free Lumber.

Washington, March 23.—Occupying the session of the house today, Mr. Payne of New York, chairman of the committee on ways and means, concluded his speech in explanation of the tariff bill. He was on his feet almost all of the 5 hours and 10 minutes that he had the floor. At times he gave evidence of being greatly fatigued.

In his arguments he took the position that the bill would not injure the tin plate or steel rail industries of the United States, and that free hides would not be a menace to the farmers.

The inheritance tax, he said, was preferable to an income tax, because it would not give rise to perjury or fraud. He held, also, that an income tax was unconstitutional.

Mr. Clark of Missouri followed, and had proceeded but a minute or two when, at the suggestion of Mr. Payne, he suspended and the house adjourned.

When the house met there was a full attendance, which led Mr. Macon of Arkansas to suggest the absence of a quorum. As Mr. Payne was about to continue his explanation of the tariff bill, the Arkansas member said he should be given a full hearing. The point was compromised, however, and Mr. Payne took the floor.

Mr. Payne was pelted with questions from all sides. Again he was asked, this time by Mr. Moore of Pennsylvania, if there would be an opportunity to offer amendments to the bill in the house.

"I must see elsewhere," meaning the senate, replied Mr. Payne. "I am entirely in the judgment of the house and in its control."

PAINE AGGRESSIVE. In his replies Mr. Payne was decidedly more aggressive than yesterday. He became highly indignant when Mr. Garrett of Tennessee inquired if, taking the bill as a whole, it was not "revision upward."

"The gentleman has no right to say that," the Republican leader sharply answered. "It is not fair to say that as an honorable man."

With a good deal of emphasis he declared that, taken as a whole, the revision was downward, but as to luxuries it was, he said, revising upward, and ought to be. He said that any intelligent man could understand by reading the bill its general trend, and he charged that the idea of interpolating such a remark as that made by Mr. Garrett was "not fair to me, to the committee, nor to the country."

An instant later Mr. Payne had a sharp colloquy with Mr. Garner of Why Suffer?

If you suffer pain from any cause, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve it—and leave no bad after-effects. That's the important thing. Neither do they create a habit. More often the attacks become less frequent, or disappear altogether. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no other effect except to relieve pain and quiet nervous irritation.

"We are never without Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. My husband and son, aged 12, were always subject to sick headaches until we began using these pills, and they have broken them up entirely. Don't think they have had to use them for six months. I recommend them to every one. A few weeks ago I heard an old lady friend was sick. I went to see her. She was down with LaGrippe, and nearly crazy with awful headache. I gave her one of the Anti-Pain Pills, and let another for her to take in a short time. They helped her right away, and she says she will never be without them again. Last winter my husband was taken with pleurisy on both sides, and I know he would have died if it hadn't been for the Pills. In less than half an hour he was sweating, and went to bed and slept."

Texas, who asked for an explanation regarding free hides.

"I will get to hides," said Mr. Payne hotly.

"I know it is a local issue with the gentleman, and," he added with an unconscious punctation, "I know he will try to hide himself behind a revenue duty in order to meet the demands of those Democrats in his district who are clamoring for a duty on hides."

"The Democrats in my district," quickly retorted Mr. Garner, "are also clamoring for free leather, free narcotics and free shoes."

Later he made a general attack on the so-called hide trust, and said the "big four" packers controlled the hide industry in the United States.

"Do you think," interrupted Mr. Broder of Kansas, "the big four would be generous enough to turn this tariff over to the consumer?"

"Oh," responded Mr. Payne, "they would not turn anything over to anybody unless obliged to."

The result of placing hides on the free list, Mr. Payne declared, "would be to protect the independent tanner and give work to the men employed by them. It won't hurt anybody in the United States except the middlemen and the packers."

FREE HIDES A BENEFIT. Mr. Garner asked Mr. Payne if he thought the removal of the duty on hides was rendering the farmers a real benefit.

"I do," replied Mr. Payne with emphasis. "It is a good thing," Mr. Garner replied. "That the gentleman does not have to run for Congress in some district that I know of, because he would have a pretty hard time of it."

To that observation Mr. Payne replied that farmers were honest, intelligent people, and should be dealt with frankly.

"Don't try to demagogue," he explained. "The more you demagogue the more you lose their respect, the more you will weaken your hold upon their attention."

Mr. Payne said that the men who wanted the Dingiey duty on lumber retained were those who were interested in an immense lot of stumpage and who were actuated solely by motives of greed.

If the duty were removed entirely on lumber, he said, it would be of great benefit to the American people, and would enable the men he had referred to still to realize a golden fortune, but not such a golden fortune were the duty to be kept on.

Mr. Payne declared in reply to a question by Mr. Langley of Kentucky that he would stand by the bill as a whole. He would, he said, oppose any raising of the tariff on lumber, but he added, "an amendment would be in order to put it on the free list."

Discussing the proposed continuance of the reciprocity arrangement with Cuba, Mr. Payne said that all the commercial nations understood the guardianship over Cuba by the United States, and gave the inference that the charge of discrimination in favor of Cuba would not be heard.

Mr. Payne discussed the proposed inheritance tax. "We want some more revenue, about $20,000,000; therefore, we provide for an inheritance tax," he said. He stated that a proposition for an income tax was before the committee, but that there were strong doubts of its constitutionality.

Both Mr. James and Mr. Clark pointed out the fact that certain portions of the income tax provision of the Wilson bill, which were held to be unconstitutional, could be enforced, and inquired why such a law was not done to enforce that law.

Mr. Payne's response was that it was not believed an income tax law was constitutional. With this the discussion closed. Before he sat down, Mr. Garner (Tex.) renewed his question of yesterday, if opportunity would be given to amend the bill.

Mr. Payne declared he wanted the bill put through as quickly as possible. "The country is waiting the action of Congress," he said. "Trade is waiting. The wheels of industry are stopped pending the action of Congress upon this bill. Men eager to work for a fair day's pay are looking anxiously for the passage of this bill. Business interests of the country, may, through out the whole world, are waiting for the action of this house. I want the bill passed at the first possible moment, and I believe that when it is passed and signed by the president it will accomplish the purposes which we have designed. I believe it will open the ports of other countries. I believe it will give us fairer trade relations with the world over."

"I believe it will stop the labor of a single hand. I believe it will start up industries throughout the United States. I believe that labor will be fully employed. I believe that good and blessings to the people of the United States will come from the passage of this bill, and my anticipation and hope is that the earliest possible moment this bill will go through the house and over to the senate on its way to become law."

THE FOREIGN SECRETARY said that Chancellor von Buelow's statement on Tuesday last to the Reichstag made clear Germany's position on the question of universal limitation of naval armaments. His remarks still hold good. Germany's naval program was settled by law, and was purely for necessary defense, and not for any other national whatsoever.

The members of the budget committee unanimously expressed the hope that German and British relations would continue friendly. Herr von Buelow said that the budget of the whole German nation.

The budget committee has decided to report to the government's naval estimates. No changes have been made in the main features of the estimates, which provide for the three Dreadnoughts and one large cruiser.

Berlin, March 23.—Herr von Slioen, the secretary of foreign affairs, in a statement before the budget committee of the Reichstag today, explained that during the negotiations which had occurred between England and Germany concerning the extent and cost of the naval program of the two countries, Great Britain gave Germany to understand that she was ready to enter into an un-

The Harmony Of Home

Does Not Mingle With or Emanate From the Table of Dyspepsia.

In the home, meal time should awaken in all the inhabitants a peculiar harmony of joy which will make for the home the abiding place of interest and happiness.

If one member at the dinner table is not at some high station in life and the harmony is lacking, Conversation and mirth are absent. Devouring thoughts assail the diners and silence prevails.

All physicians agree that mirth and joy at the meal time does much toward digestion. Mirth uncles the whole nervous organism of man, the cells wherein are stored valuable digestive juices, empty their contents under the nerve stimulation and promote the highest degree of digestion.

If gloom and discomfort prevail at table there severe action obtains and meals become necessities, not anticipated joys.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are little storehouses of digestion which mix with the stomach juices, digest food, retinge the mucous membrane and its nerve centers, give to the blood a great wealth of digestive fluids, promote digestion and satisfy by the stomach until all its duties are complete.

If dyspepsia sits at table it makes the dinner a painful affair; these tablets should be taken after meals and dyspepsia of a consequence flies.

No need for diet or fasting. The dyspeptic who wishes to escape the sight of generous meals or in the odor of rich cooking.

It matters not what the condition of the stomach, stimulate the liver, quiet the whole digestive canal, of which the stomach is the center.

Forty thousand physicians use these tablets in their practice and every druggist sells them. Price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package free.

gratifying on the subject, but in the course of an informal conversation authoritative English and German officials never made a reference to which could be regarded as a basis for official negotiation. Therefore, Germany never took up a position in the matter.

OLYMPIC ELK RESERVE. Washington, March 23.—Slopes of Mount Olympus and the adjacent summit of the Olympic mountains in Washington are to be set aside as a national monument for the protection and preservation of the Olympic elk, otherwise known as Cervus Roosevelti, according to a proclamation issued by President Roosevelt before he left office. The territory is within the Olympic national forest and embraces an object of unusual scientific interest, and is in a region which from time immemorial has formed the summer range and breeding grounds of the Olympic elk, a species peculiar to the mountains and rapidly decreasing in number.

INSANE DODGE FREED HIM. Spokane, Wash., March 23.—Thomas McDiarmid, known as the Sallor Kid, who killed Saloonkeeper Wilson at Wallace, Id., a few weeks ago and was acquitted on the ground of insanity, is not to be punished at all. He was acquitted today at Wallace, after a hearing on a charge of insanity, and immediately released.

DECISION ON DAMAGES IN PERSONAL INJURY SUITS. Helena, Mont., March 23.—The supreme court today rendered an opinion of far-reaching importance in personal injury suits—in fact, the most important of the character ever emanating from the Montana bench.

The title of the suit is that of Winifred Dillon and others against the Great Northern Railway company, and involves the right of heirs to institute damage proceedings where the person involved suffered instant death. It originated in Flathead county. In the lower court the plaintiff were awarded damages, but this finding was reversed and the case remanded with instructions to dismiss on the broad ground that if the injured party died before bringing the action, the cause of action literally died with him. Although this common law rule has been modified, the opinion states that such a statute does not create a new cause of action, but only carries forward the right which the injured party had before his death.

The suit was prosecuted under the provisions of the fellow-servant law, Dillon having been employed in an official capacity by the carrier. The opinion holds that this act does not intend to create a new cause of action, and that the suit was instituted to recover damages which resulted to Dillon's estate as a consequence of his death, and that the question is: Does the agreed statement of facts concerning his death show a cause of action in favor of Dillon which survived his death?

The statement shows that death was instantaneous and that he did not survive for a second of time after the accident. Continuing, the opinion says: "If a cause of action arose in favor of the injured employe prior to his death, the right of action which he thus had survives and may be prosecuted by his heirs or personal representatives. Hence the question: Did a cause of action arise in favor of Dillon prior to his death? Death having been instantaneous, the opinion holds that no cause existed with or survived Dillon, and declared that all survival statutes, in which category the fellow servant act of 1905, is placed, so called, presupposes that deceased had at one time a right of action for damages."

Hence the opinion that there was not any survival of a right of action, and the dismissal thereof.

Croup Quickly Cured BY CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY

Many a mother knows what it means to be aroused in the middle of night by the peculiar ringing cough, the unmistakable harbinger of croup, and can appreciate the feelings of Mrs. Maggie Vinson, 1531 Third Ave., Birmingham, Ala., and rejoice with her that she has found a satisfactory remedy for this most dreaded of all diseases of childhood.

Many Anxious Hours. She says: "My daughter Lillian, aged three years, is subject to croup, and many an anxious hour has been caused thereby. I like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy better than any other for the trouble, because it is about the only remedy the child will take and it gives immediate relief. A number of my neighbors who have small children keep it constantly at hand and frequently have occasion to use it for croup or colds. It seems equally good for either."
