DISCOURSES REPORTER.—We had a call from Horace W. Miller, who informed us that he had purchased, from the late proprietor, the Corinne Daily Reporter, and that while he would not say that paper was not responsible, he had met with such encouragement from the citizens of that place as to give him the most flattering hopes of success. Mr. Miller says it is his intention to continue the paper with his present editor, Mr. George W. Miller, sometimes adopted him having approached Mr. Miller, then removed to try and interest him in purchasing a decent share, and worthy the personal support of the people generally of the northern portion of the Territory, in whose favor he left no stone unturned.

ORNAMENTAL LETTERING.—One of the finest pieces of ornamental lettering in the city is being done on the bay window of M. G. and T. Co. Ltd. The letters are a combination of gold—partly in pearl, imitation of pearls and solid colors. The most distinctive feature of the work is the delicate ornamental hair-lines which surround the letters, indicating the fact that our home painters are not satisfied by any imitations.
