

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Thursday, November 26, 1903.

AN ANSWER

TO SEVERAL QUESTIONS IN RELATION TO THE HISTORY AND DOCTRINE OF THE LATTER-DAY SAINTS AND THE SETTLEMENT AND PROGRESS OF UTAH TERRITORY.

Next day, several of the citizens of Mantle rode out to the range to find if the boasts of the Indians about killing their cattle were true, when they were confronted by the Indians, who fired upon them, killing a young man named Peter Ludvickson. The Indians retired up Salt Creek cañon into Sevier county, where they found E. B. Ward and Jas. Anderson. In charge of cattle, whom they also killed. A party started on the 12th in pursuit of the Indians and the cattle which they had taken with them. This party was overpowered by the Indians, and two of their number, Wm. Kearns and Jens Sorensen were killed.

May 26th, the Indians made a descent upon a family named Given (Giran?) in Thistle Valley, twelve miles from Fairview, in Sanpete county, and massacred the father, mother, and four children, having the evening previous killed Jens Larsen. On the 29th they also killed David H. Jones. In July, Robert Gillespie and Robinson were killed and several citizens wounded.

These Indian massacres, which were generally accompanied by raids on cattle, rendered it necessary for the inhabitants of Sanpete, Sevier, Piute, Millard, Iron, Beaver, Kane and Washington counties to guard their stock with mounted, armed men.

In January, 1866, a band of Indians made a descent upon the Pipe Spring ranch, in Kane county, killing J. M. Whitmore, the proprietor, and Robert McIntyre, and robbing the ranch of cattle and sheep. The ranch of Pahreah was also robbed, and besieged for several months. Peter Shirts barricaded his house, and by strategy and unceasing vigilance, with the aid of his family, managed to evade the blow aimed at him until relieved by Captain James Andrus and a company of mounted volunteers from Grafton.

April 2nd, Robert Berry and wife, with his brother Joseph, were waylaid and massacred at Short creek, Kane county.

On the 22nd, Albert Lewis was killed and three persons wounded near Marysville, Piute county; and on the 25th Thomas Jones was killed and Wm. Avery wounded at Fairview, in Sanpete county. On the 10th of June, the Indians made a raid on Round Valley, driving away three hundred head of cattle and horses and killing Father James Ivie and Henry Wright. On the 24th, Charles Brown was killed and Thomas Snarr wounded in Thistle Valley; and while recovering the horses and cattle driven off from the Spanish Fork pasture, John Edmiston, of Mantle, was killed, and A. Dimick, of Springville, badly wounded.

Early in 1867, the continued hostile intentions of the Indians was announced in the massacre of James P. Petersen, his wife and daughter, near Glenwood, Sevier county, who were mutilated in the most horrible manner. The vigilance of the militia of these counties, assisted by detachments from counties as far north as Salt Lake and Davis, so far held the Indians in check that during the entire year there were only three other citizens killed, and three of the militia, viz.: Lewis Lund, James Meek and Andrew Johansen, and Major Vance, Sergeant Heber C. Houtz and Private John Hay.

In consequence of these Indian raids and massacres the counties of Piute and Sevier were entirely abandoned, as well as the settlements of Berrysville, Winsor, Upper and Lower Kanab, Shunesburg, Springdale and Northup, and many ranches in Kane county, also the settlements of Pangwitch and Fort Sandford, in Iron county.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Joseph Smith, the Prophet, enjoined upon the Twelve Apostles that they should preach the gospel to all the nations of the earth, and wherever they could not go, to send the same that all nations might be faithfully warned of the restoration of the everlasting gospel in all its purity and fullness for the salvation of mankind, and the near advent of the Messiah preparatory to the introduction of His reign of righteousness upon the earth.

England.—In June, 1837, Elders Heber C. Kimball, Orson Hyde, Willard Richards, Joseph Fielding and three others went to England and opened the door of the gospel to Great Britain commencing their labors in Preston, Lancashire, and extended them to different parts of the kingdom where they baptized about fifteen hundred persons. Elders Kimball and Hyde returned to America in April, 1838, leaving Elders Joseph Fielding and Willard Richards in charge of the mission.

In 1840, Pres. Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, P. P. Pratt, Orson Pratt, John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff and George A. Smith of the quorum of the Twelve Apostles proceeded to England and ordained Willard Richards an apostle, he having been previously called to that office by revelation. They preached one year and fourteen days, introducing the work of God in the British Islands, and establishing branches of the Church in many of the principal cities from London to Edinburgh. They established a printing office and an emigration agency, published the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants and Hymn Book, and issued sixty thousand pamphlets and the first volume of the Millennial Star. The brethren of the Twelve Apostles returned, leaving Elder P. P. Pratt to preside over the mission.

Palestine.—In 1841, Elder Orson Hyde went on a mission to Jerusalem. He remained in Bavaria till he acquired the German language and published a pamphlet which he was not allowed to circulate openly. He traveled through the Austrian and Turkish empires, visiting Jerusalem, finding the laws of all these countries so prohibitive as to prevent him from publishing or preaching the gospel, he returned to Nauvoo in 1842.
