TREMENDOUS ENTHUSIASM.

Discusses Issues of the Campaign-Touches Up the Ice Trust Question.

New York, Oct. 16.-William J. Bryan arrived in this city at 2:25 o'clock today. His reception was an emphatic evation. As the train steamed into the annex of the Grand Central station that part of the immense building was thronged with a multitude. Every posstyle inch of space on stairs, at windows, platforms and on the big fron daws, platforms and on the big fron bridges crossing the station was occupied. The narrow passageway along the tracks was a mass of people when the train arrived. The crowd had worked itself up to what it considered a proper degree of enthusiasm. It chored and hallooed as Mr. Bryan stepped out on the platform. Then, escented by Richard Croker and the committee, he began the journey toward certed by Richard Croker and the com-mittee, he began the journey toward the street. A number of people grasped Mr. Bryan's hands. The enadidate spiled good-naturedly through it all, in spite of the fact that both he and Mr. Croker, ware, being rather roughly. being rather roughly

BRYAN ARRIVES.

Mr. Bryan entered the garden at 7f15 o'clock. As the face of Mr. Croker, behind which appeared Mr. Bryan's, was seen the crowd burst forth in one great prolonged yell. Every one stood tip-toe on his seat, and the garden was a sea of waying flags. As Mr. Bryan, escorted by Mr. Croker, mounted the speakers stand, the cheering was continuous.

Mr. Bryan and Mr. Croker frequently responded to the cheering by bowing to the vast audience, and the faces of oth were wreathed with smiles,

GREAT CHEERING.

GREAT CHEERING.

Just behind the two, as they mounted the platform, came Mayor Van Wyck, escorted by Edward M. Shepard, who acted as chairman of the meeting. The cheering continued, now dying down, new being renewed with increased vigor. It continued for five minutes, not abating when Mr. Bryan rose to his feet and raised his hands. Mr. Croker pulled him back into his seat. The cheering went on. Mr. Croker rose, hesitated a moment them raised his hand for slience. Insetad of coasing, the crowd broke forth louder than ever. Do what he could, Mr. Croker could not Do what he could, Mr. Croker could not slience the crowd.

RESOLUTIONS PRESENTED.

The resolutions welcomed Mr. Bryan and Mr. Stevenson to New York; approved the Kansas City platform, opposed imperialism, protested against an enormous standing army as a menace to the Republic; praised the volunteer army as being sufficient in emergency; opposed entanging foreign alliances: copposed entangling foreign alliances; sympathized with the Boers: denounced trusts; pledged the party to bring back to the people constitutional government, and charged the Republicans with having raised a gigantic corruption fund to debaged the suffrage.

BRYAN INTRODUCED.

The resolutions were cheerd, although they could not be heard for shouls for Bryan, and Mr. Shepard at once introduced the latter in a few short sentences.

Mr. Bryan stepped to the railing about the stand as the throng broke out aftesh into cheers. He raised his hand for silence, but the cheers did not subside. Mr. Bryan was dressed simply in a black sult with a short sack coat. Three cheers for our next President," came up from the audience, Mr. Bryan raising his hand in deprecation. The crowd was about to become quiet when with a boom and a flash of fire, a flashlight bomb went off in the center of the room. Women shrieked and ter of the room. Women shricked and the crowd yelled, not knowing what it all was. There was great excitement and disorder for a moment and calls for the police. A dozen policemen rushed to the spot where the man sat who had fired the bomb, dragged him and hustled him and his camera out into the siste and out of the garden. BEGINS TALKING.

Mt. Bryan had stood quietly at the rail on the platform. There was an-other attempt to renew the cheering, but bisses greeted it, and Col. Bryan commenced speaking.

Mr. Bryan began by referring to the vast audience before him, and said that it indicated an interest in the campaign which must be gratifying to all who re-alized the importance of the questions involved. He immediately entered upon defense of the Democratic cause and

To say that the people gathered here who support our cause are the enemics of heavit wealth is a slander which could not be uttered without the one who uttered it knew it to be false. We are not opposed to that wealth which comes as the reward of honest toil, and is enjoyed by those who give to society something in return for that which society throws upon them. The Democratic party today is not only not the chemy of honest wealth, but the Democratic party of today is the best friend of that wealth which represents ability of muscle or of mind employed in who support our cause are the enemies of muscle or of mind employed in

Mr. Bryan went on to say that the party draws the line between honest wealth and predatory wealth, "between that wealth which is a just compensa-tion for services rendered and that wealth which simply measures the ad-vantages which some citizen has taken over many citizens." He declared that he henest industry no house compabe henest industry, no honest occupa-tion, no honest man need fear the suc-cess of the Democratic party. The Democratic party, he said, "showed its honesty by stating what it believed, and felling the people what it will do."

AFTER THE REPUBLICANS.

Taking up the Republican declaration of principles, Mr. Bryan said that the party is not prepared today to make a right on a question before the country, "And," he continued, "if you want proof it me remains the proof." let me remind you that the Republican party today, instead of presenting any great principle and defending it, is pre-supposed to be approachable in any di-

He then went on to enumerate the vaus classes to which he said the Re-blicans were making specious ap-als, and he included in the list the fract, the laborer, etc. "It gives the over, he said, "the assurance he have a full dinner pail, and then it ures him there will be a large army to make him satisfied with his full din-

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief in Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-runa I ever bought proved a good friend to me."-Susan Wymar,

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good." Pe-ru-na has no equal in all of the irregularities and emergencies poculiar to women caused by pelvic Referring further to the Republican claim of prosperity, Mr. Bryan said he was willing to admit that the army contractors and the trust magnates might be prosperous. "A man who gets spebe prosperous, "A man who gets spe cial privileges at the hands of the gov ernment can prosper under Republican administration." he said, "but, I deny that the wealt producers of the country are enjoying their share of the government productions."

At this point there were cries of "Hanna, Hanna," Mr. Bryan merely responded by asking his audience not to trifle with a great name.

He referred to the position of Gov.
Roosevelt and Senator Hanna on the subject of trusts and the reference in both instances was met with groans and hisses. "Mr. Hanna says there are no trusts." Mr. Beyan went on. "Are you going to send a man out to hunt the trusts who knows where every trust treasurer is. but says there are no trusts?

THE ICE TRUST.

Mr. Bryan then quoted from President McKinley's maugural address on the subject of trusts and charged that the President had neither enforced the existing anti-trust laws nor recom-mended new ones. Hi sattorney genmended new ones. Hi sattorney general, he said, draws his salary and permits the trusts to go and oppress the people. Mr. Bryan referred to the lee trust, declaring that apparently this was the only trust of which the Republicans had any knowledge. "If a Republican tells you," he said, "that the ree trust is hurting the people, tell blot that you have a much confidence Mr. Bryan expressed the conviction industrial despotism, when a few men will control each great branch of industry, when every person who buys finished products will buy at a trust price; when every person who furnishes raw material will furnish it at a trust raw material will furnish it at a trust price, and when every man who wilks for wages will work for the wages fixed by the trust." Such a condition as this meant, he said, serfdom for the people, for a government of the people, by the people and for the people was impossible under the regime of the trusts. Mr. Bryan said that he was not satisfied to prevent extertion but that he fied to prevent extortion, but that he would make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States. IMPERIALISM.

He asserted that the policy of imperialism was the creation of the Republican party and added: "They want the splendors of empire. They want to hear the tramp of armies: they want the glory of crowning heroes returning home, their thanks and their plaudits. The Republicans want the draw to hear that it can be heard drum to beat, that it can be heard around the world. They want the light of liberty to shine so brightly here that it will be seen around the world and everywhere inspire people."
In substantiation of his assertion that the Democrats were not raising a scarecrow, Col. Bryan referred to the Porto Rican legislation of the last ses-sion of Congress. He declared that this legislation was based upon European ideas and not upon American principles. According to that document, he said, a President is bigger than the Constitution,

And then Mr. Bryan exclaimed: "Be ware, my friends, of a President when he becomes greater than the Constitution. There is no place where you can draw the line; it will become all President and no Constitution."

Columbus, O., Oct. 16 .- Not once gince the great Hlaine demonstration in 1884 Mr. Bryan concluded his speech at 9 o'clock precisely, having spoken one hour and fifty-one minutes. The crowd rose and cheered as he left the platform in company with Mr. Croker, has this city been so crowded with visitors as it is tonight, the occasion of the appearance here of Gov. Roosevelt. were to be trampled under foot. Re-peatedly the police charged to get Mr. Bryan's carriage through, but every time the crowd came back. The Roosevelt special arrived here at 7:30, and for two hours the governo sticks were finally drawn, and a lane opened long enough to let the Bryan carriage into Irving place. Through that street it went at a dash and up Broadway. Several hundred persons of the city. The parade was more than two hours passing a given point, and two hours passing a given point, and its course was marked by a blaze of colored fire, rockets, firing of cannon and bursting of bombs.

When he strode across the platform and most of them dropped out, but an immense crowd was in front of the Hoffman house to meet Mr. Bryan when he got out of his carriage. He was taken to his suite at once. There the governor was greeted with a roar of applause. Yet he looked upon a smaller number of persons than conto find standing room in the building. When Governor Roosevelt rose to speak he was given such an enthusiaetic greeting that for five minutes he could not make his voice heard in his endea-vor to restore order.

Gov. Roosevelt severely criticised Mr.
Bryan's attitude on the Philippine question, reviewed the history of Aguinalde, pronouncing it "a career of infamy." He quoted from President Jefferson's instructions to the commander of the American armies which took possession of the Louisiana purchase, to show that the consent of the governed was not considered. When picked up Rawlings was in an exhaust-ad condition. When Gov. Roosevelt arrived at Day-ton he was tendered a public reception at a hotel and later was escorted by a parade to the fair grounds, where he addressed a large crowd. Stops had been made at Middletown and Miamis-Rawlings, in company with Frank Weber, started out in a small cannot to reach the schooner Bring Gold, en route to Dutch Harbor. The cannot was swamped, Weber was drowned. Rawlings' belongings were lost, and he himself escaping, wandered for days across the wilds of Alaska, seeking refuge. How many miles he traveled Rawlings cannot tell. For days the lost man had nothing to eat but the soft. burg, where the governor spoke to large audiences, at the latter place using the front perch of the Miami Steel company's main office as a platform. In his speech at Dayton, Gov. Roose-velt said: "You have had four of the
