

MRS. HIBBARD MAY LEAD QUIET LIFE

Judge Morse Enters Order Compelling Husband to Be Good.

HER HOME OPENED TO HER
Interference With Her in Her Pursuit of Happiness Is Tabooed by The Mandate of the Law.

Mrs. Marion Hibbard, who is attempting to secure a divorce and her property from William Hibbard on the grounds of cruelty and desertion, was granted permission to live in their house without interference and allowed $25 a month temporary alimony by Judge Morse Saturday. They were married Feb. 16, 1904, and have two children.

According to Mrs. Hibbard's testimony when she was married she had a valuable building lot, Hibbard had transferred it to him and he agreed to build a house on it. After mortgaging the place and building the house he refused to transfer it back to her and has attempted to dispose of it. When she transferred the property to him he declared that he had enough money to build a house and Mrs. Hibbard did not know that he intended to place a mortgage on it.

The trial of the case will be during the July term. Hibbard did not offer any testimony, but will fight the case by filing a demurrer to the complaint this morning stating that the facts were not sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

Mrs. Cordelia A. Clark was granted a divorce from George A. Clark this morning on the grounds of desertion.

They were married on April 11, 1903, at Terre Haute, Ind. They moved out here two years ago and since then Clark has moved back to Indiana and has refused to live with her.

MARRIAGE A FAILURE.

After Thirty-Two Years in Wedlock Wife Seeks Divorce.

Mrs. Eliza Pichin declares in her complaint for divorce filed Saturday against Job Pichin that he deserted her after 32 years of married life. They were married in England in 1877, and have three children, two of whom are of age and the other is 18 years old. Through their joint efforts they have accumulated real estate in Millard county, valued at $6,000. She says that she is now growing old and in poor health, so she asks for a divorce of the property. Another request she makes is for $500 attorney's fees and $25 costs and the custody of the minor child.

They came to Utah in 1887. She says that on Nov. 5, 1906, that her husband deserted her and since that time has refused to live with her or provide for her.

Mrs. Laura C. Tyler charges her husband, Charles C. Tyler, with non-support in a complaint for divorce filed Saturday in the district court. They were married in Vernal, Utah, on Dec. 25, 1894, and have two children. She asks for the custody of the children, but no alimony. Since July 1, 1908, she says she has not seen her husband and knows nothing of his whereabouts.

HEIRS ARE DISCOVERED.

Much Correspondence Reveals Identity of McLaughlin Beneficiaries.

After considerable trouble and correspondence, Purley Williams has located the heirs of Edward McLaughlin, who died in city on April 14 last, leaving a considerable fortune. His will, which was drawn by Mr. Williams, was left in his care. When Mr. Williams filed it in the probate court he was unable to find among McLaughlin's effects the address of his heirs. In the will McLaughlin left $8,000 to be divided among three daughters of a distant relative whom he called "Aunt Martha" in Philadelphia, $1,000 to another distant relative in the same city; and $500 cash to a number of other persons in various parts of Pennsylvania. The remainder of the estate was divided equally among five distant cousins in California and two brothers and three sisters.

Mr. Williams wrote a dozen or more letters in quest of the heirs. Finally he located a distant relative in Big Oak Flat, Cal., and through him the other heirs have been traced.

McLaughlin was the youngest of three brothers, none of whom ever married. He came west in 1849, engaged in the mining business and made considerable money. When he died here he was alone and without relatives in this part of the country. Mr. Williams transacted legal business for him on several occasions and drew his will about two years before his death.

NOT ENOUGH ALIMONY.

Mrs. Jennie Parsons, wife of Charles Parsons, an attorney for Samuel Newman, who has applied for an increase from $125 to $200 temporary alimony, testified Saturday in Judge Morse's court that her board and room left her nothing but a bare minimum to purchase clothes and, besides, she wants to take a trip to California in search of better health. Her daughter also testified to her mother's expenses, but at this point the hearing went over until July 9. At this time Mr. Parsons will be heard.

RESTRAINING ORDER ISSUED.

Judge Morse made an order Saturday directed against John F. Cahoon, administrator of the estate of Margaret S. Cahoon, restraining him from disposing of any of the property or turning over any part of it to Hyrum Cahoon, who has an interest in it, and whose wife is suing him for a divorce. Hyrum Cahoon also cited to appear on July 9, to show cause why he should not pay his wife temporary alimony. Mrs. Cahoon's expenses, including her drunkenness and non-support in her complaint.

ACCOUNTING IS ORDERED.

Thomas M. Allison, Albert Allison and John H. Allison, administrators of the estate of Thomas Allison, who died in Sandy on Aug. 30, 1895, leaving an estate valued at $3,000, were ordered to make an accounting of the money received from the sale of the property by Judge Lewis last Saturday. This order was made on the application of Mrs. Emma O. Dryburgh, an heir and bondswoman of the administrators. She charges that the money has been squandered, and that none of the heirs of the estate have received their division. On account of their negligence in handling the estate she asks to be released from their bonds.

In the complaint he alleges that on Feb. 11, 1909, that the city tore up the sidewalk on South Temple street and Seventh West, leaving great holes unprotected by a railing or lights. Robinson says that he fell into the excavation on this date and sustained a broken leg, a bruised back and minor injuries which confined him in the hospital for several weeks.

PRISONER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

James Murphy, a Drug Fiend, Is Saved by His Cellmates.

Maddened by the excessive use of cocaine, James P. Murphy, aged 22 years, attempted to commit suicide in the city jail yesterday afternoon by hanging himself, and but for the timely discovery of his condition by fellow-prisoners would have succeeded in his rash act.

Murphy was arrested yesterday afternoon while wandering about Commercial street in a drug-ridden condition. After being placed in his cell he began raving, and in the terrors of his disordered imagination cried out that he would kill himself. Little attention was paid to him by the other inmates of his cell, until after a few minutes of quietness they heard a gurgling sound coming from his cell. Two prisoners looking into the cell were horrified to see Murphy dangling from an improvised rope, made from his necktie.

The tie was quickly slashed and a few buckets of water thrown upon the man quickly brought him to.
