

WISCONSIN SIGHT IN COOKING ROOMS. Modern Men Forget Rules of Decency While Considering Franchise Matter. MARTIN OFFERS TO FIGHT.

Believers Kearnside Substitutes, However, at Approach of Sergeant-at-Arms—Action Deferred. Thirteen councilmen gathered last night in the council chamber and in the number may, perchance or perhaps, be found the reason for much that followed their gathering. Challenges to physical combat, charges of corruption and other sensational features were not lacking. A goodly number of citizens were assembled in the council chamber, among them being a few women, and they had a chance such as comes to witness the performance of the councilmen. To these councilmen who departed themselves in gentlemanly manner is due the statement that all of the city's manipulators acted as usual in cases where questions of public honesty arise. L. D. Martin of public honesty issue, L. D. Martin offered to fight, telling Councilman Fernstrom that if any of his insinuations applied to him (Martin) he would punch a block away from the building. Councilman Officer Jim Taylor and Mayor Bransford silenced Martin and Fernstrom volunteered to fight, but to that he intimated nothing, but to that he says anything he says it might out.

Whether a grand jury is capable of doing anything that will effectively reach the combine of butchers and grocers in Salt Lake, with their allied combines among the jobbers and wholesalers, will soon be known. It is expected that the grand jury will be through with its work in a few days now, and it is apparent from the personnel of those who have appeared before the tribunal that all phases of prevailing opinion have been submitted. Lorenzo Jensen was before the jury yesterday, on its reassembling after the Thanksgiving recess. Jensen is the most active organizer and center of the Butchers and Grocers' association. At his office in the Atlas block, which was well furnished and equipped with stenographers, files, cases, and telegraphs, the association's work was carried on. Very few members were acquainted with its nature. This was made evident by the efforts of the press representatives working on the case, to find out what the association did through interviewing members, supposedly present at meetings, in wholesale lots. They belonged, but they had never heard the things discussed in meetings which constituted the phases of activity against which public indignation blazed forth. Jensen offered explanations. One of them was that good meat cuts were exorbitantly high, because the chuck and rough cuts spoiled on the butcher's hands. Investigation showed that even the rough meats were higher than the best cuts anywhere else, and that for many years the buyers have been prevented from feeling any fluctuation in battle market and freight reductions, several of which have been made. In spite of all the publicity, the investigations, the grand jury, and the running fire of questions put to Lorenzo Jensen, meat prices have not yet dropped a cent a pound. Rough cuts still hover about 15 cents, instead of 10, where they rest generally through the west; good cuts range at 20 cents and over; and this during a season when beef on the hoof and dressed is exceptionally low.

When the company's proposal to light the city with 1,000 arc lights at a cost of $60,000 came up, early lines were drawn to the four winds and Mayor Bransford and the councilmen charged of personal interest and returned equally as severe, at once assumed dangerous proportions. It was well that Jim Taylor, who is a man of generous proportions and sturdy muscle.

L. D. Martin, always belligerent, wanted to know by what authority Mayor Bransford and the councilmen who were east to inspect municipal electric systems appeared before the council by Mr. Martin and himself. Mayor Bransford's cool reply that he considered a resolution introduced before the council by Mr. Martin and himself as a business matter, and that he considered the franchise as presented by it passed, is to install 1,000 lights at $6 per light per year. It promises to spend from $10,000 to $15,000 in upgrading its power plant to accommodate the amplified service. The report of the committee which investigated lighting of eastern cities, claims that on account of the wide streets and long blocks, gas lighting as supposed would not be practicable.

Back and forth the fight waged, the franchise was condemned, praised and good and bad, but no action was taken by the councilmen. It was nearly midnight when absolutely nothing had been accomplished by the committee of the whole. Councilman Fernstrom, seeing that the session would be prolonged into the early morning, moved to adjourn the council at next Monday's session. The council at next Monday's session is to adjourn upon which the vote was unanimous.

It was a sorry day for vags in Judge Diehl's court yesterday afternoon. Three of them were being before his honor on the charge of begging on the streets. If there is any particular kind of offender who judges Diehl has no use for, it is the dodged man who walks the streets and begs instead of working for a living. Fred Matthews pleaded the charge Wood, who made the arrest, "had it in" for him. Matthews explained that he had been out of jail five hours when he was again arrested and wanted a "walk" and "down," but as the court had three late for the next day, Matthews was wanted work and he will get it. He stopped three vags on the street. He denied the accusation that he had been in the jail. John thought that by pleading guilty he would get off with a lighter sentence, but that was not the case. He will also serve in jail.

The Grand Jury and The Prices of Meats.

OBITUARY

BENJAMIN ASHBY. Boutiful, Nov. 27.—Benjamin Ashby, who died Nov. 19, 1897, at his home in Boutiful, Davis county, was the son of Nathaniel Ashby and was born at Salem, Mass., Dec. 19, 1823. In the year 1843 Nathaniel Ashby, with his family, moved from Salem to Nauvoo, there passing through the trials and persecutions of the saints. At the expulsion of the saints from Nauvoo in 1847 the Ashby family took up their journey to Winter Quarters, where they arrived in the fall of 1847. In 1848, two years later, moved to Boutiful, Davis county. In the year 1855, Benjamin Ashby started to fill a mission to England where he made the acquaintance of Ann Chester, whom he married after returning from his mission in 1857. By this union 11 children were born, 11 sons and three daughters, five sons and three daughters still living. Being one of the early settlers, he shared in the trials and privations, which he bore with patience and fortitude. As an ecclesiastical worker, he was ever ready to obey every call required of him in both temporal and spiritual matters. During the last 15 years he has done a very extensive work in the temple; was ordained to the office of a patriarch March 20, 1904, was always on hand to aid the sick and needy. His posterity consists of 14 children, 44 grand-children and 14 great grandchildren. The memory of Benjamin Ashby will ever live in the hearts of those who knew him.

CHRISTMAS TREES SCARCE. Christmas trees are becoming scarcer and scarcer in this section of the country, but in the east, New York has in the past been depending largely on Maine for its supply, but owing to the high prices demanded by owners and for labor, the trade has switched off to New Brunswick, Dominion of Canada, and 50,000 trees will be brought to New York this season, at a much less cost than had they come from the Pine Tree state. The Salt Lake market does not receive the supply it formerly did on account of so much land on which these trees grow being included in government reservations.

BANKER SHOT BY BUFFEY LYON. Notorious Thief and Ex-Convict Killed While Beating a Policeman. ACT WAS IN SELF DEFENSE. Thug Knocked Officer Down When He Tried to Arrest Him When Latter Drew Revolver and Fired.

The notorious career of Joe Smith, aged about 29 years, thief, ex-convict, saloon loafer and all around bad man, was ended last night by a bullet fired into his body by Police Officer J. M. Lyon. The body of Smith is now at O'Donnell's undertaking establishment. On Monday an inquest will probably be held by Justice Dana T. Smith and a jury. The shooting of Smith occurred at 9:45 last night in the Lone Star saloon, 60 west South Temple street. This place was formerly known as the Black Cat and is one of the worst dives in the city. Officer Lyon shot Smith to save his own life. Had he not fired, the probabilities are that he would have been most seriously if not fatally injured. Smith had knocked the officer down and was beating him viciously when he drew a revolver and fired. The bullet penetrated Smith's abdomen, ranging upward in the region of the heart. The man lived about 15 minutes after his arrival at the emergency hospital, the city hall. Officer Lyon is now at his home, 1644 south Ninth East street, nursing a number of bruises and cuts about the face and head. A blow from Smith's fist struck Lyon's nose through the teeth. Lyon has been on the police force for about two years and is regarded as an energetic and painstaking officer.

BROUGHT OWN DEATH. Smith brought death upon himself and the wonder is that he was not killed long ago. He was a terror to the good citizens of Salt Lake, known as a bully. He was arrested many times for various offenses including fighting, battery, petty larceny and burglary. He was taken special delight in putting up a fight on an officer when placed under arrest, and recently made threats that he would "get" Serg. Henkle. It was therefore not surprising to those who know the man, when he resisted Officer Lyon last night when the latter placed him under arrest. The officer entered the Lone Star saloon in search of a man named Bobby Laws. He saw Smith standing at the bar and asked him if he knew the whereabouts of the man wanted. Smith told the officer that Laws was in a rooming house near by. Lyon went out but was unable to find Laws. When he returned to the saloon Smith had disappeared. Lyon received information that led him to believe that Smith was implicated in the theft of a suit case and he decided to arrest the man. Riley Mio, the bartender, told the officer that Smith was in a room upstairs with a woman known to the police as Violet Brown.

THUG STRIKES OFFICER. The officer went to the room and told Smith to accompany him to the police station. Smith went downstairs with Lyon to the bar room and then refused to go any further. Lyon placed his hand on the fellow's shoulder and ordered him to come along. Without a word of warning the thug struck Lyon a fearful blow in the face, cutting his lip open. Lyon was knocked to the floor and Smith immediately pounced upon him and began to beat him brutally. Lyon tried to use his club, but Smith dodged the blow and struck the officer several blows on the face and head. Lyon was on the floor trying to get up but as Smith was a powerful man the officer was at his mercy. Smith got up and around the officer's neck and was punching him when the officer drew his revolver and fired.

SMITH DIES FROM SHOT. With a shriek of terror and pain the thug let go his hold and ran out of the saloon, pursued by Lyon. Smith ran to an alleyway north of the saloon, where he staggered a moment and then fell face downward. He lapsed into unconsciousness in a few seconds. The officer quickly summoned the patrol wagon and Smith was taken to police headquarters and placed in the emergency hospital. Fifteen minutes later he died without regaining consciousness. Dr. Paul was summoned and found that the bullet had entered the stomach at a point below the heart. The bullet severed an artery causing the hemorrhage that brought on death.

LYON SENT HOME. When Officer Lyon's injuries had been attended to and he had told his story of the shooting, Chief Pitt sent him home. The chief and Capt. Burbridge made a careful investigation of the affair and stated to the "News" last night that, from all accounts, Lyon was justified in taking the course he did.

SMITH'S POLICE RECORD. To show the character of the man, the police point to the following record on the books at police headquarters: September, 1902—Charged with fighting. Discharged. December, 1902—Charged with resisting Police Officer Sperry and Olson. Sentenced to 15 days in jail. September, 1903—Low conduct. Sentenced to 20 days. December, 1903—Fighting. No record of disposition of case in this section of the city. June, 1904—Drunk and disorderly. Arrested by Police Officer Edgington and Palmer. Sentenced to 25 days in jail. July, 1905—Petty larceny and resisting Police Officer O'Connell. Brown. Sentenced to three months in jail. January, 1906—Vagrancy. February, 1906—Burglary. Sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. December, 1906—Vagrancy. January, 1907—Vagrancy.

"I Cannot Say Too Much For Your Valuable Remedy, Pe-ru-na." MR. DON C. CAMERON. Don C. Cameron, Healdsburg, Cal., Treas. Civil Service Reform Club, writes: "I am glad to speak a word for Peruna to all those who are afflicted with catarrh of the lungs as I was for years and for which I could find no relief until I tried your valuable remedy. "I had no appetite and had lost much in weight and could not sleep at night. The slightest exertion tired me and I had given up in despair. I always had a little hacking cough, my lungs felt sore, and my back ached. "After taking two bottles of Peruna I felt so much better and looked so much better that my friends were both pleased and astonished. I continued taking the medicine until now I am perfectly well."

ALL organs of the body are lined with mucous membranes. Any of these organs are, therefore, liable to catarrh. Catarrh is a congestion of the mucous membrane, which precedes true inflammation. Many cases of inflammation of the mucous membrane never go farther than the catarrhal stage. Therefore, the catarrhal stage is liable to become a chronic one. Preceding Bright's disease of the kidneys, there is a catarrhal condition of the lining membranes of the kidneys. Preceding true gastritis, there is a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane lining the stomach. Preceding inflammation of the bowels, there is a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane lining the bowels. The same is true of the lungs. Preceding true inflammation of the lungs, or consumption, there is a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane lining the lungs. Sometimes this catarrhal condition will remain for years without further development. The victim of catarrh of the lungs is liable at any moment to develop consumption, as the catarrhal condition of the lungs renders them peculiarly susceptible to consumption. If the catarrhal condition could be entirely removed by some form of treatment, the liability to contract consumption would also be removed. It is claimed for Peruna that when faithfully used, according to directions, it will relieve the catarrhal condition arising in any organ of the body. Perhaps the most frequent illustration of the fact that Peruna will relieve cases of internal catarrh are the numerous cases of catarrh of the lungs that have reported entire relief from the use of Peruna. The above case of Mr. Cameron is only one of the many which we have on file. Pe-ru-na in Tablet Form.—For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.
