BREVITIES.

"Tempus Fugit," is now interpreted "fly time."

A man of parts—A man part knave and part fool.

Niagara is a merry cataract, for it is always bursting into a roar.

A peaceful cargo of human beings—The Pacific Mails.

Milwaukee is to honor its founder, Solomon Juneau, by a monument.

Swainburne, the poet, is twenty-five years old.

Cornelius Vanderbilt is supposed to be worth $70,000,000.

When is a good tune most relished? When it is opportune.

Kansas has 62,000 school children and only 799 teachers.

A sailor who received a blowing up from his girl, calls her a windlass.

Which are the two hottest letters of the alphabet? K. N.

New York has one thousand one hundred John Smiths.

When you hear a man say, "Life is but a dream," tread on his corns and wake him up. Life is real.

Some men are born big, some little. The way to find them out is to ask contributions for some public charity.

Sheridan being asked what wine he liked best, replied, "the wine of other people."

"Scallawagery" is the latest Southern term for a Reconstruction Convention.

A farmer near Des Moines, Iowa, recently found ten thousand dollars in specie, buried on his land.

"I have lost flesh," said a toper to his companion. "No great loss," replied the other, "since you have made it up in spirits."

A Yankee editor, sneering at the stupidity of a contemporary, says, "The best thing he has got off this week is a dirty shirt."

Near New Haven, Conn., recently, grasshoppers were skipping over the snow, and the ground was frozen four feet down.

That ain't no general rule for happiness. A man has to be measured for his butes, and even then he doesn't allers get a good fit.

The Italian Scientific Association of the Forty have awarded to Sir Charles Wheatstone their annual gold medal for the greatest discoveries in physical science.

The boiler of a kitchen range, in a private house in Cincinnati, exploded the other day, blowing down the side of the house and depositing the breakfast and most of the dishes in a lot adjoining.

Another relic of the classic age has been found in St. Louis, being a dog's collar, supposed to have belonged to Julius Caesar, from the fact of having his name engraved on it.

A witness spoke of a particular person as having seen him "partially clad." "Was he not quite nude?" "No," replied the witness, "he wore a pair of spectacles."

A story of Theodore Hook is told by Cornelius O'Dowd, in his last essay, to the effect that at some civic banquet, on the appearance of a fifth course of dainties, Hook laid down his knife and fork, and declared that he would take the rest out in money.

A Canadian newspaper contains the following plaintive advertisement: "Will the gentleman who stole my melons on last Saturday night be generous enough to return me a few of the seeds, as the melons are a rare variety?"

Calkins came home from the theatre the other night, and on being interrogated about the size of the audience, he said, "Why, the house was so full you couldn't see between the acts."

Khalil Bey, a former Turkish Ambassador to France, has lately lost twelve hundred thousand francs in gambling in Paris, and sold his collection of pictures to make it up.

Coleridge was descending, in the presence of Charles Lamb, upon the repulsive appearance of an oyster.

"It isn't handsome, Coleridge," said Lamb, "but it has the advantage of you in one thing."

"What's that?" inquired Coleridge, who, as every one knows, was an exhaustless talker.

"It knows when to shut its mouth," was the reply.

The London Lancet is of the opinion that if women would only let their own hair be just bound down as a natural covering to their heads, would clothe their bodies sensibly without pinching themselves into unnatural shapes, would wear well-shaped boots in which they might walk comfortably and taste the pleasure of exercise, there would soon be an end to that representative class of the female sex about whom the doctors know a great deal.

The Courier Medica of France records the following remarkable case of transfusion of blood, followed by complete success. A young man, who had been poisoned by carbonic acid, was found lying insensible on the floor of his room. Artificial respiration was had recourse to, and by dint of perseverance breathing was restored and the patient returned; but two hours later the patient relapsed into a state bordering on death. Transfusion of blood was then recommended and the effect produced was astonishing; the pulse rose at once, breathing became more regular, the eyes opened, and after a few minutes the patient was enabled to drink a little water. Nevertheless his state continued precarious for upwards of nine hours, after which he speedily recovered.
