

SORROW LODGE BY LOCAL ELKS

Eulogy and Memorial Service in Honor of Departed
Members.

REV. P. A. SIMPKIN'S ADDRESS

Judge M. M. Warner Delivers Eulogy,
With Appropriate Musical

In honor of the following named departed brothers and those who preceded them to the realm of the great beyond, hundreds of Elks and friends gathered in the Salt Lake theater Sunday night to participate in the beautiful exercises which are carried out wherever there is an Elks lodge, the first Sunday of each December.

It is called "The Lodge of Sorrow," and the program prepared by Salt Lake lodge No. 55 was one of eulogy, memorial and song in honor of the following lodge members who have passed away: I. Kahn, J. Oberdorfer, W. I. Gray, M. J. Kennedy, B. B. Heywood, J. D. Wood, J. H. Mease, W. A. Johnson. The relatives and friends of the departed ones could not help appreciating the devoted tributes paid to those who have been given the key to unlock the door of immortality. The affair breathed of the spirit of love, tenderness and memory. The theater was packed almost to capacity. On the stage were the officers of the lodge, the setting being in the nature of the different stations. The decorations were purple and white and on the walls hung beautiful elk heads while at the back of the stage stood a full sized elk.

The eulogy by Judge M. M. Warner and the memorial address by Rev. P. A. Simpkin of Phillips Congregational church, were the leading features of the services.

James W. Collins, exalted ruler of Salt Lake lodge, delivered the ritualistic address which was repeated in hundreds of lodges throughout the United States. The Elks in the audience arose and sang the opening ode and then gave the sign in token of love and memory for those who have passed away. The orchestra played the "March Pontificale" (in memoriam) by Gounod.

After concluding the ritualistic address the exalted ruler called upon the secretary to read the names of those who passed away during the year. "Sud Pontificale" (in memoriam) by Gounod and the memorial address by Rev. P. A. Simpkin, delivered the name of the brother who passed away during the year. "Sud Pontificale" (in memoriam) by Gounod and the memorial address by Rev. P. A. Simpkin, delivered the name of the brother who passed away during the year.

The Imperial quartet, composed of Messrs. Graham, Ashworth, Christensen and Squires, rendered beautifully Park's "Night of Rest."

M. M. WARNER'S EULOGY.

M. M. Warner, a member of the lodge, delivered an eulogy, saying in part: "This is a day of sympathy and emotion. More than 320,000 Elks are meeting in various parts of the United States to honor and revere the memory of those who have passed to the realm of immortality. Neither their absence nor death can break the golden chain of love. In this commercial age, few men are so great, mentally, morally and financially, as to extend help to all their fellow men in distress, or they are too busy to extend sympathy and cheer where they are needed. A selfishness has been bred of this neglect, and it is for the collective thought and action to pay tribute to the departed as well as to cheer those who mourn."

"Tonight, with bowed heads and silent heart throbs, the roll call of our de-

Why Does It Cure

Not because it contains Sarsaparilla, but because it is a medicine of peculiar merit, composed of more than twenty different remedial agents each greatly strengthened and enriched by this peculiar combination. It effects phenomenal cures of troubles of the blood, stomach, liver and bowels.

Thus Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, eczema, anemia, rheumatism, catarrh, nervousness, that tired feeling, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, and builds up the system.

There is no real substitute for it. It is urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good" you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit.

parted brothers was read, and we bowed in humble submission to the awful silence that followed the call of their names. All that have gone from us were good Elks, and we have consolation in the fact that they are now basking in the sunlight of God's eternal love.

Among the notable musical numbers were "A Prayer," splendidly rendered by Fred Graham, "The Evening Song," by the orchestra, "The Rock of Ages," by a quartet composed of Mrs. Peters, Miss Osborne, Mr. Graham and Mr. Squires.

REV. SIMPKIN'S ORATION.

The annual address by Rev. P. A. Simpkin was most eloquent. In the course of his oration he said:

"Again we come down the jeweled road of memory, where every step is fringed with the twinkling beauty of untold flowers, and as we march to the harmony majestic, holding the echoes of yesterday's dear songs that will not wholly die, we pass by the long line of the quiet, smile-lipped faces of the loved and lost to stand within the temple of sorrow."

"Yesterday and memory—today and love—tomorrow and God—hear you not your heart singing as around the holy room you keep for your loved lost? The quiet smile again as they were wont to do in the sweet yesterday when they walked beside you in the way?"

"Yesterday and memory. It is glorious to remember. The love remembrances and the love lights have been the beacons of all the way men have walked."

"This beautiful custom of your fraternity is rooted in the finest sentiment of the human soul. Gathering to brood in the quietness of sorrow's temple upon the worth of those who have passed, is not more to ponder a little space on life's solemnity, beauty and brevity, no less than its high responsibility, we are here to find in a new apprehension of the world's sorrow a new enthusiasm of pity and love which shall send us from this holy hour to service gentler and more beautiful for men, because they and God need us in love and divinity."

"This is love's hour, when the heart craves the presence and the sight of its beloved dead. The roll call summons them not that we may realize that of the earth earthy, that moved in them, as in us, life's love and sweetness, but that upon the yesterday of earth may fall memory's golden night, kissing into living splendor all its touches. The pathos of life is in few things so writ as in the heart's loyalty to its ideals. The divineness of our imaginations is evidenced in love's persistence and the devotion of the soul to those who have drunken with us at love's bubbling spring."

"It is beautifully fit and truly beautiful that you should in this lodge of sorrow dignify the fraternity whose spirit has touched you with tenderness, and for a fleeting hour enthroned the noble souls that have filled with ours the woe of life's simple, sweet, brave commonplaces. You should remember not only the bond that holds in common life, the myriad sons of men who ever falter by the way of life and ever on the lip need frame 'Forgive me, Father, O forgive,' but likewise that heroism and beauty that mark even the humblest of men again and again. So today in living hands we hold not the withered flower falling again to its native dust, but the perfume of living souls is gathered in the chalice crystal, souls that in life's time dwelt of fidelity and sacrifice won that chapel of remembrance we lay upon the serene brows unconquered of death physical."

Miss Amy Osborne sang, "O Loving Father," Mr. Graham and Miss Peters rendered, "O, Love Divine," and the quartet sang, "Praise to the Father." The benediction was pronounced by Chaplain P. P. Christensen.

The officers and committees which had charge of the lodge of sorrow are as follows: Officers—James W. Collins, exalted ruler; A. G. Mackenzie, esteemed leading knight; L. C. Kelsey, esteemed lecturing knight; A. W. Raybould, secretary; B. F. Redman, treasurer; V. A. Bettinson, equerry; J. A. Place, tyler; D. L. Nickum, inner guard; P. P. Christensen, chaplain; H. A. Leipsiger, organist.

Memorial Committee—H. A. Leipsiger, chairman; W. R. Sibbald, J. C. Collins, W. W. Halliday, J. C. Cooley, Reception Committee—F. L. Gardner, chairman; J. C. Leary, E. M. Keyser, Thomas H. Hays, J. C. Leary, J. C. Jack, Robert Akin, Sam C. Sherrill, Gideon Snyder, Harry Brain, Ben Davis, L. E. Kahn, C. L. Applegate, A. J. Davis, J. H. Knepper, Oscar Lehmann, W. C. Lockington, C. S. Pulver, George F. Strickley, A. C. Sullivan, C. B. Starr, C. H. Reed, Thomas M. Ivory, G. A. Bellenger, E. F. Kaufmann, W. G. Romney, L. Siegel, E. C. Penrose.

Can you believe your senses? When two of them, taste and smell having been impaired if not utterly destroyed, by nasal catarrh, are fully restored by Ely's Cream Balm, can you doubt that this remedy deserves all that has been said of it by the thousands who have used it? It is applied directly to the affected air passages and begins its healing work at once. Why not get it to day? ## OBSEQUIES OF GEO. W. REED.

Elder Orson F. Whitney the Speaker At Impressive Service.

Deeply impressive funeral services were held over the body of George W. Reed, at the family residence 77 J street Sunday afternoon. Mr. Reed died Wednesday, supposedly from injuries received in an automobile accident last October. For two weeks prior to his death he was unconscious.

There were many friends in attendance at the services. The funeral service was delivered by Elder Orson F. Whitney, of the council of the Apostles. He paid a glowing tribute to the high character of the departed. The casket was completely covered with floral offerings.

A quartet composed of John Owen, Myron Crandall, Mrs. Rulon Owen and Miss Lillian Hobson sang, "Lead Kindly Light," "The Lord is My Shepherd," "The Last Hope," and at the grave, "I Need Thee Every Hour."

The pallbearers were R. E. Fowler, John A. Houghton, Glen Miller, Carl Hardy, Richard Smith and Homer Robinson.

TELLS OF THE MOROS.

Chaplain John T. Axton Describes Customs of Philippine People.

Chaplain John T. Axton of the Eighteenth infantry gave a most entertaining lecture Sunday evening in Phillips Congregational church on the Moros and aborigines generally of the Philippine Islands. In the course of his remarks, the chaplain said:

There is no slavery in the islands, and the only thing that can be construed as slavery, by the natives, is that the American government is insisting that the Filipinos shall be subject to the same laws as the Americans. The Moros occupy an island called Mindanao, of 20,000 inhabitants. Presiding over the domain is the sultan, who, while not very well versed himself on the history of the islands, has in his possession some literature which, in the opinion of many, is rather doubtful, but what he has is very good reading matter and would fill a couple of books. This literature is very old. The islands also have 141 plates, upon which are inscribed legends of the island.

The Moros strictly adhere to the teachings of the Koran, and would not touch liquor under any circumstance. It is a penitentiary offense to sell the natives intoxicants of any sort. Notwithstanding this fact, the Moros sell their daughters in marriage much after the custom which is in vogue in Turkey. The Moros are of the Mohammedan faith, and do not touch hog meat of any sort.

Chaplain Axton related an amusing story of how he was called to marry a couple of Moros. After traveling for 25 miles, instead of one couple to be united, there were 32. The next morning 12 more arrived at the post, and the following week he made a score more happy.

WEATHER AFFECTS WIRES.

Telegraph Service Interrupted Over Eastern Circuits.

There has been all sorts of trouble over the wires of the Western Union, the Postal, and the Associated Press during the past two or three days and the intelligence which has been flashed across the continent to Salt Lake from the eastern seaboard has largely come by way of El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

This interruption in the usual course of events was caused by a very general, and a very heavy sleet and snowstorm throughout the middle west, which put out of commission the wires from Denver and the same longitudinal points to the east as far as the Mississippi river. The damages have been repaired and messages which have been arriving from one to three hours late are now arriving on time.

ALIENS UNDER STARS AND STRIPES

Naturalization Day in Federal Court a Good Natured, Though Slight, Proceeding.

Three men and one woman, all of whom first saw the light of day on alien shores, appeared before Judge Page Morris Saturday and, after sundry and divers queries, answered satisfactorily, were given papers which entitle them to go to Nicaragua or any other old country on the face of the globe and call for a warship if they get into trouble.

It was naturalization day in the federal court and the bench was in a particularly facetious mood. Of course, it was all combined with an undercurrent of the real pure, unadulterated water of the law and duty. But there was a heaven to all of it which had been members of the local bar heavily laden with their shoulders and choking down explosives which would have made them liable for contempt of court.

One Nikolaus Jansson is a nurse who was born on one of the famous fjords of the Scandinavian peninsula. She has been in this country for a number of years and has acquired its habits, particularly of dress. In court this morning she appeared in a neat tailor-made suit of brown, wore a hat which the famous widow of Vienna would have noticed, and was armed cap-a-pie for conquest.

"What do you know about the Constitution of the United States?" was the question of Judge Morris.

"We, the people of the United States, in 'That's enough. Do you know any more of it?"

"Yes, sir. I know every inch of it. I got it by heart."

"Well, I guess you're a good enough Indian—bed your pardon—American—for us." And that is how tedia Nikolaus Jansson became a personage who will be under the eagle of Uncle Sam for all the rest of her natural life.

Gustavus Larsen is a stationary engineer. He has been in this country for ten years, born in Sweden, and has made up his mind that the United States was just about the best country on earth. He was questioned intimately in regard to his knowledge of America, the language, and a number of other things, in which international law and economics were interlarded.

Mr. Larsen had evidently been a student of the bench which he did not answer with the facility and acumen of a college professor.

"Do you understand the difference between a constitutional and a monarchical form of government?" asked the court.

"O yes, sir. In the monarchical government the ruler is chosen by vote."

Judge Morris knitted his brows thoughtfully.

"In other words, you mean that in a monarchy there is one king and in a republic everybody is a king." Larsen nodded and went on to Mr. Leary and was given his papers.

Hugh McKay and Alexander Cale McConaghtie were also enrolled under the stars and stripes. The cases of Mr. McKay, Neuberger, George E. Woodman, Gilbert H. Hutchinson, and Aaron Schwartz were continued until the first Saturday in January.

TO FACE PERJURY CHARGE.

Frederick Hermann, Bartender at Wilson, to be Formally Charged Today.

Frederick Hermann, bartender at the Wilson hotel, was arrested Saturday night and today a complaint will be filed against him charging him with perjury. Hermann was the plaintiff in a suit for divorce against his wife, Mrs. Kate Hermann, whom he charged with desertion. When the case was called for trial last Friday in Judge C. W. Morse's court, Hermann took the witness stand and declared that his wife had left him a year ago last July. He said that he did not know where she was, and that he had not written to her or received a letter from her. He swore to an affidavit for summons by public declaration that he believed that she was in Spokane, having been informed by friends.

Judge Morse produced a bundle of letters which had been sent to him by Mrs. Hermann during the divorce proceedings. He declared that he had written by Hermann to his wife. Judge Morse had him examine every one of them and he declared that he did not write them, that there was no other Fred Hermann working at the Wilson hotel, and he stated further that he did not know who did write them.

The matter was given over to his wife to come back to Salt Lake and live with him again. He said that times were hard and that he was not working steady, and that he did not have the money. The court had a transcript of the testimony given to the county attorney and a complaint was issued today.

THREE UNHAPPY WIVES.

Seek the Solace of Singleness in Actions in Divorce Court.

Mrs. Margaret Hill charges Edmund Hill with non-support in a divorce suit filed Saturday in the Third district court. They were married here on March 9, 1887, and have two daughters, Gertrude, 18 years old, who is attending school in Denver, and Virginia, 17 years old, who is attending school here. Since May 1, 1907, it is alleged, that Hill has neglected to provide for them, although he earns a day's salary for the custody of the children and suitable alimony for their support.

Leona Ballantyne Card seeks a divorce from Joseph Young Card on the ground of failure to provide in a complaint for divorce filed Saturday in the Third district court. They were married in Logan on June 14, 1906, and have one child 3 years old.

Lella May Sanford brought an action for divorce Saturday against Herbert O. Sanford, charging him with failure to provide. They were married Oct. 23, 1903, in Denver. For the last year he has neglected to contribute to her support. They have no children.

AGAINST MINING COMPANY.

Albert Glover, representing the East Jordan ward, began suit Saturday in the Third district court against the Utah Consolidated Mining company seeking for $430.50. The complaint alleges that the smoke and gases from the smelter killed the trees, lawns and shrubbery planted on the Church property.

UTAH BANK BLAMELESS.

Judge Page Morris Renders Decision in United States Court.

Judge Page Morris Saturday in the federal court handed down a decision in the case of the California state bank of Sacramento, Cal., against the Utah National bank of this city in favor of the defendant. The court held that the local bank took all precautions possible in the matter in point, which was the collection of a draft, and that the fault laid elsewhere.

The Sacramento bank paid a note aggregating $2,005.50 which was sent for collection and which traveled through the hands of the California state bank of Sacramento, Cal., against the Utah National bank of this city in favor of the defendant. ## FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Mrs. W. T. Boyes Sues Gladys Austin For $1,000 Damages.

Mrs. W. T. Boyes filed suit in the Third district court Saturday against Gladys Austin charging her with a breach of contract. She seeks to recover $10 and $1,000 damages because Miss Austin refused to complete a deal for the sale of some furniture and the transfer of a five year lease.

According to the complaint Mrs. Boyes paid Miss Austin $10 to close a deal for $950 for the transfer of the lease of the third floor and the furniture at 234 south Main street. On Dec. 2, it is alleged, she appeared with the remaining $940 but Miss Austin refused to sign the transfer or give the $10 back.

HELD IN $10,000 BONDS.

Ed McCoy Is Wanted in Omaha and Council Bluffs.

Ed McCoy, who is charged with using the mails for fraudulent purposes and who was arrested a week ago by Lucian Smyth, chief deputy to U. S. Marshal James H. Anderson, was released on $10,000 bond Saturday afternoon.

McCoy, who was formerly a saloon man of Salt Lake, will be called upon to appear in Omaha and Council Bluffs next term of court in connection with charges against the famous Maybray gang of swindlers.

McCoy was indicted in Council Bluffs but was missing when search was made for him. He was finally located in this city and the arrest followed.

His bond, accepted by Commissioner Baldwin, was furnished in $1,000 cash and qualifications for $10,000 by the following: Elie McLaughlin, A. Z. Jenkins, J. P. White, Charles E. Fish, Frank Moore, Charles Swine and Melvina Reynolds.

SHERIFF SEEKS BRAMWELL.

Scion of Prominent Ogdan Family Wanted for Forgery.

Walter Bramwell, scion of a prominent Ogdan family, is charged with forgery in a complaint issued Saturday by County Attorney Job P. Lyon. In the complaint, it is alleged that Bramwell issued a check for $106 on the Commercial Saving bank of Richfield and signed the name of A. G. Brim, which is declared to be a forgery.

Bramwell is well known in Ogdan and Salt Lake. He was at one time cashier of the First National bank of Morgan. For the last two or three years, he has been connected with a banking institution in Salt Lake. Sheriff Sharp is searching for Bramwell, but so far has been unable to apprehend him.

SUIT ON NOTES.

The National Bank of the Republic Instituted suit today in the Third district court against Isaac Glaser and Charles Glaser to collect approximately $8,000 on four promissory notes with interest and attorney fees.

SUIT ON OVERDRAFT.

The Utah Banking company began suit Saturday through the Merchants' National Bank.

Protective association in the Third district court, against Thomas H. Fitzgerald to recover an overdraft amounting to $1,566. The complaint alleges that this amount was loaned Fitzgerald between Sept. 27, 1907 and Feb. 23, 1908.

CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT.

Mrs. Cora E. Sanders seeks a divorce from Arthur F. Sanders on the ground of non-support. She asks for the custody of her two children, the household furniture, and $35 a month alimony. They were married here on September 2, 1904, and for the last two years, she alleges, Sanders has not contributed to her support.

DEATH OF EMILY HYDE CHASE.

After Patient Suffering for Twenty Years, Summons Comes This Morning.

Ending 20 years of suffering to lay life's cares aside, Emily M. Hyde Chase was summoned by the grim reaper this morning at 10:40. In her passing to the other side, a noble woman leaves a wide circle of friends and relatives who knew her only to love her. A sufferer for over 20 years from rheumatism, she has borne her pain with a fortitude that has been remarkable. Her death occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. G. McAllister, 9 Earls court, at which place the funeral services will be conducted Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Chase was the daughter of Orson and Maria Hyde, and was born in Nauvoo, Dec. 13, 1829, and came here in 1852. Surviving her are the following: Mrs. J. G. McAllister, Y. Kasaki, a gambler, Mrs. Rye Dix, Mrs. Albert Walker and Mrs. Alma Sadler.

BATTLE IN NOODLE JOINT.

Japanese With Cargoes of Saki Grow Belligerent This Morning.

In a fierce battle with knives between a lot of Japanese, who are said to have been drinking "saki," a native wine of that country which carries 20 per cent alcohol, Y. Kasaki, a gambler, was dangerously injured and K. Okano, a clerk, was badly slashed in a noodle joint on Commercial street, Saturday.

Kasaki was removed immediately to the emergency hospital in the patrol wagon, where he was examined by Dr. Frank B. Steele, the police surgeon, who ordered him to be taken to St. Mark's hospital. Kasaki's face was literally cut to ribbons, the worst cuts being across the forehead, laying the open, and down the cheeks, clear through the flesh. Okano received a severe cut in the hands, as he was trying to hold the blade of the knife of Kasaki's assailant.

G. H. Burris, proprietor of the place, was arrested but later released on the assurances of Kasaki and Okano that he was not one of the men who had attacked them.

WANTED IN MANY PLACES.

The Salt Lake police are searching for G. H. Burris, who represented himself in Ogdan as a wealthy merchant of Green Marine Mills, Minn., and passed a large forged draft on a Los Angeles bank Friday. It is said that Burris is also wanted badly in the east on other charges.
