

DESERT EVENING NEWS.

TRUTH AND LIBERTY.

Vol. II. SALT LAKE CITY, THURSDAY EVENING, JANUARY 7, 1893

No. 159

BREVITIES.

Dry goods—Crackers and Codfish.
How to get up a blow—Catch cold in the head.

"Going out with the tied"—Leaving church with a wedding party.

Speak little, speak truth; spend little, pay cash.

The Free-Will Baptists number 63-41 members.

Why is a carving-knife like a pig's tail? Because it flourishes over a ham.

The handsomest man in New York is a bar-keeper in a Broadway hotel.

The first question that disturbed man was the woman question, and it bids fair to be the last one.

Paul de Cassagne, editor of the Paris L'Appel has already fought upward of sixty duels, and been wounded in only four of them.

It is said that the "White Fawn" ballet troupe, notwithstanding the extent and laboriousness of their duties, merely secured a bare living.

Gov. Greary, of Pennsylvania, has been severely rebuked by some Israelites, for introducing into his Thanksgiving Proclamation the phrase "blessings of Christianity."

Pike makes a good thing by the sale of his New York Opera House. After pocketing the $850,000 he retains the theatre, which yields him $25,000 a year.

A colored woman at Columbia, S. C., has given over $500 toward building a chapel for her people, renting her house to raise the money, while she herself has been living in a shanty.

At a recent sale in England of Sir Walter Scott's manuscripts, Marmon brought $955; Lady of the Lake and Ivanhoe $1,320 each, and for an unpublished MSS., $6,275.

It is said that President Bergh awards the palm to Mr. Bonner, as the most dexterous and humane horseman in the country, from the fact that his trotters are never beaten.

Governor Ward of New Jersey is said to possess the finest collection of paintings in that State. It embraces many time native and foreign productions, some of which cost $5,000.

A woman is like ivy—the more you are ruined the closer she clings to you.

A vile old bachelor said, "Ivy is like woman—the more it clings to you the more you are ruined." Poor rule that don't work both ways.

"Everything has its use," said a philosophical professor to his class. "Of what use is a drunkard's fiery nose?" asked one of the pupils.

"It is a light house," answered the professor "to warn us of what passes underneath."

Senor Roberts, the new Spanish minister to Washington, is a very handsome man of English descent. He speaks English fluently, understands, and consequently admires the United States.

In a recent French press trial, one of the lawyers urged that there should be more calmness and gravity in French politics, saying that in America the people prepared themselves for an election by several days of fasting.

In the prison at Bourges, France, is a prisoner, aged about forty, who has never done a day's work, and is now undergoing his eighth sentence for begging. He has tattooed on his right arm this summary of his view of existence: "The past has deceived me; the present torments me; the future terrifies me."

It is remarked by the Pail Mail Gazette that the casualties in English election riots during the past few weeks exceeded those which were sustained by the British forces in the Abyssinian expedition, and it is admitted that "with regard to disorders at elections the Americans have the benefit of the comparison."

Queen Isabella went to the opera in Paris, lately, and sat in the imperial box. She was received with absolute silence, but soon after there was a buzz of curiosity to see the dethroned queen. There was no cheering from any part of the house, and when she retired the stillness was as marked as when she entered.

Prussia and Mecklenburg have disputed since 1800 the suzerainty of the small town of Wolde, in Pomerania. Owing to the slowness of the settlement this little corner has enjoyed during 268 years the complete independence; but the two parties have just come to an agreement as regards the military suzerainty. In future the citizens of the Republic of Wolde are to serve in the Mecklenburg contingent.

Some fifteen years ago Mlle. Herallie Rouy, a young and brilliant pianist, suddenly disappeared from Paris. It was at first said she was mad; next, her death was loudly announced. She has just recovered her liberty, after four years' detention in a house for the insane, where she was kept under the name of Josephine Chevalier. The Journal des Debats announces that this mysterious affair will speedily come before the criminal law courts.

Wielozka, the most magnificent salt mine of Europe, is said to be irretrievably doomed. The walls intended to prevent the further inroads of the water were nearly finished when it was suddenly observed that rills already worked their way round them; and at first feebly, but gathering strength, came pouring through, to the despair of the workmen, who, after a little while, abandoned all further attempts to avert the danger. In a brief space it reached the height of seventy feet, and about forty feet more, when by this time has probably been filled up, were all that were required to complete the total immersion.
