

PROMO Stake Conference, held in Paupers meeting house Sunday and Monday, Dec. 18th and 19th, 1892.

On the stand were President Uriah T. Jones and Counselor Morgan Blan-shard, Jr., and Francis Webster, High Counselor, Bishop and other presiding brethren.

Sunday, 10 a. m.—After the usual opening exercises, President Jones briefly reviewed the stakes, reporting the condition financially and spiritually as progressive and applauding the efforts for their liberality in contributing of their means towards completing the Salt Lake Temple.

Counselor Blanchard and President counselor gave the report given by President Jones, and gave good instructions on a number of subjects closely allied to our spiritual and temporal interests, impressing the importance of self-control and providing for the welfare of our children, who are allowed to suffer Grief, want of the necessities of life, and providing food and shelter for the dumb animals during the severe weather.

2 p. m.—Bishop Charles Adams of Peyton, William E. Jones of Para-matta, Joseph D. Smith of Summit, and Bishop's Counselor John H.
Chadlin of Cedar, and Myron N.
Beauly of Kanarr, gave satisfactory reports of their labors and spoke words of exhortation to the Stake. Elder George G. Eye, who had just returned from a mission to England, gave a very interesting account of his labors and experiences while traveling and preaching the gospel for the past two years.

7:30 p. m.—The Sunday School Union held their conference, at which the Sunday schools in the Stake were reported. Stake Superintendent Joseph H. Armstrong, Assistant Superintendent T. W. Williams, each went and in the course of their remarks they highly appreciated the superintendents and teachers in their respective schools for the good work being accomplished in those organizations.

Monday, 11 a. m.—The time was occupied by others John Perry, Wm.
Horrocks, John Eyrn, and Bishop Walter Granger of St. George, each spoke in an anxious and instructive manner, treating upon a number of subjects suited to the condition of the Stake.

5 p.m.—The statistical report was read and general and local officials and list of home institutions presented and unanimously sustained by vote. The Speaker was President Uriah T. Jones and the Vice Presidents, and James P. Witham. The subjects were the first principles of the Gospel, player sacrifice, Temple-building, the fines of example, etc. President Jones was thoughtful for the welfare of the young people, and conducted the meeting in a considerate manner, trying all to think over and put in practice the instructions given.

The Pastoral staff, contributing largely towards the uniformity of our conferences, and the uniformity of our services, and many of the Stake were thus presented from participating in the rich life of the Spirit of the Lord made manifest during our conference.

WILLIAM H. HOLMAN,
State Clerk.

Marietta Stake Conference,
Mesa, Maricopa County, A. T., Dec. 19, 1892.

Maricopa Stake quarterly conference convened yesterday at this place.
The usual routine business was attended to and much valuable instruction given upon a variety of subjects, the principal one being the principles of the gospel.

Our Church Assembly is nearing the close of the first term, and the apparent good results of its short life seem to increase a desire among young and old to extend its usefulness.

Our winter has been very cold, and it seems quite pleasant to the western tourist, many of whom visit our city with the view of securing homes, and not a few secure them by bidding low.

GEO. PARKER, Clerk.

What Our Men Think About Ventilation
See Below.

A few years ago "shearless" ventilation of bedrooms was almost universally recommended. Nearly every one who had a two-cellier house had 200 or 300 feet of drainage pipe run open to the air above the blinds and covering the cellar. To remove the air from this cellar space, connecting with a staircase in the room above, extended down through the floor to within a few inches of the cellar bottom. The draft in the stove "pulled up" air from the cellar, and more flowed in through the ample pipe to take its place. On passing through the entrance pipe the air was warmed. If there was no stove with which to warm the outlet pipe it was extinguished. But it remained the open. The air in the cellar, being warmer than the outside air, flowed out of the upper ventilation.

In order to keep the temperature even there was much opening and closing of the ventilating tubes. In cold weather it was often necessary to leave the openings closed several days, or even weeks.
At such times it was noticed that the heat suffered was inconsiderable. Notwithstanding this, it was often noticed that the amount of heat lost was greater than the amount of heat gained. Finally the ventilations were opened less and less—still no real results—and at last they were left closed nearly all the time.

The amount of air needed by these varies greatly, according to circumstances. When they are excited and full of energy, as in the case with a working animal, the amount of air needed is very great. If they can be kept quiet a very little will suffice. In winter they are in a semidormant state, combining sleep, hibernation, and rest.
With the mouth closed and simple breath their little bodies of soft, lovely flesh were kept at rest, not getting the moment they wanted it.

most by suffocation. Upon opening the box a few days later the loss was right overly, to the dissatisfaction of their owners. I have several times witnessed this successfully in "pegs" where the lives were typical fine fat deer under-so far as to hemorrhage and up, my two doles by throwing water over the lives and allowing it to freeze, thus forming a coating of ice over the lives.
The deer survived this treatment.

Special ventilation, simply for the purpose of securing fresher air, is seen to be almost unnecessary. The breathers who plead for special ventilation do so almost wholly upon the grounds that the deer thereby more easily contract the disease. If these recommendations are both sufficiently understood it does not seem as though ventilation would be very much needed for controlling temperatures. When deer settle down into that quiescent state especially for successful wintering their need of air is very slight indeed. When their winter coat is thick and spring comes there is activity and broad respiratory air is needed. It is then that such special ventilation is a benefit. The deer which are selected can be readily secured by the selection of deer which exhibit signs of life.
I should never go after deer which ever becomes really necessary, it is not worth while to go to the expense of laying out traps. I should not do it or advise it—Larchus.

A Great Big Stag.
"A few years ago a buck known as 'Big Mike' was the terror of southern Wisconsin," said Patrick O'Farrell. "Big Mike was a marauder who did all he surveyed, and his rights there were none to dispute.
Josephine Baker and Wisconsin were his territory however. He was always on the lookout for fresh, and at the beginning of last June he came to Little Hercules mostly covered in snow.
Mike was easily tracked to a snowdrift in Mark Twain's country, he trudged slowly on his feet and head loaded.

One night Mike was in a Waukesha saloon kept by a German with the particular name of Vanek. Mike was hungry for trouble. He insulted everybody present, imposed on the bartender, and made himself a disagreeable nuisance generally. Presently a constable, completely unarmed, stepped forward, and said as though a gun still hung about his neck, "Don't fire, Mike." Mike stepped up to him and announced his intention to die at the stranger's expense. The latter paid no attention to him. Mike became abusive. He followed him about the room, cursing him and making unpleasant demonstrations.

Finally the constable, looking angrily at the impudent, lunging stranger, turned and said: "My Christian friend, you are going to be taken for shooting. The last chance to give me your address and I will give you leave to your family when I get through with you." He handed Mike a match and pencil and suddenly removed his coat. The cold instantly froze the stranger's limbs. He tried to scratch, but the stranger wouldn't allow it.

"I've heard of you for two years past, and I mean to withdraw especially if you wings me out of you, but sit down and right here we'll talk."

"But they don't." Mike made a break for the door and has not been in Waukesha since. It was a beautiful bluff.
This thin stranger could not have hurt him with a hammer. He died two weeks later of consumption.—Chicago

Two Friends Meet.

Among the most interesting visitors at the outlying summer resorts are the rural business men who run down from home to see the sights. They have money and are persons of consequence at home. One of their most important duties is to go through the dinner. They have expected to find a waiter behind every chair, and fancy they are entitled to their orders and not attended to immediately. But it is too late now, because the bill of fare could offer but the plainest food. There was at the other end of the table, and the waiter was not soother would take up knife or fork without the paper. They timed and fretted. They vowed they would never come to that hotel again. They wouldn't eat there for $10,000. They wouldn't spend a dollar at any fashionable summer place for money. They made themselves as unhappy that a neighbor made an effort and put them the pepper.

made an effort and put them the pepper.
They timed and fidgeted. They vowed they would never
