

THE SUPREME COURT.

Opinion Handed Down in Rapid Succession Today.

AN INTERESTING LOT ARE THEY.

Verdicts in Criminal Cases Passed—Harker, Whitman's First Appeal.

The first portion of this morning's session of the Territorial Supreme Court was taken up with the rendering of opinions on a number of cases previously submitted. Several of them were of more than usual interest, and especially of the latter cases were in the nature of appeals.

THE WHITEWATER CASE.

Opinions were also rendered in the five cases in which Lewis A. Scott, Elliott and George C. Whitman were plaintiffs. The details of these were published in the Evening News when the arguments were made early in the present session.

THE WHITEWATER CASE.

In the contempt proceedings arising out of the violation of the injunction by Whitman in regard to the property of the Whitewater, the court rendered a decision which was not only a surprise to the parties, but also to the public. The court held that the injunction was not violated, and that the property of the Whitewater was not to be returned to the plaintiff.

THE WHITEWATER CASE.

In the case in which George J. H. Harris was plaintiff, and the respondents were the respondents, the court rendered a decision which was not only a surprise to the parties, but also to the public. The court held that the respondents were not liable for the damages claimed by the plaintiff.
