DISTRICT COURT BUSINESS.

Alta McLaren Files Suit for a Divorce From Robert McLaren.

Idleness and Worthlessness Given as the Cause—Eggleston Alimony Suits—Anderson-Stokes Nuptials.

Suit was filed by Alta McLaren against her husband, Robert McLaren, to secure a decree of divorce. The complaint alleges that the plaintiff and defendant were married at Tacoma, Washington, January 28, 1893; that there is a 7-year-old child; that the defendant has for the past eight years willfully failed and neglected to provide for the plaintiff the common necessities of life because of his idleness and general worthlessness.

The hearing on the motion to show cause why the defendant should not be punished for contempt of court for not complying with the order of court to pay certain alimony to the plaintiff in the case of the Eggleston vs Eggleston, came on regularly. After the arguments were completed the motion was denied.

In the case of the Hyatt vs Thomas et al, the court heard the arguments to strike out parts of the defendant's answer, and took the same under advisement and plaintiff was granted three days after decision to enter demurrer to answer.

ANDERSON-STOKES NUPTIALS.

Marriage license was granted to Thomas W. Stokes, 23, of Plain City, and Miss Emma O. Anderson, 19, of Huntsville, Weber county.

DISTRICT COURT NOTES.

Benjamin Foreman Found Guilty — Whitney — Johnson Nuptials. Special Correspondence.

Provo, Utah, June 28.—The result of the case of the State vs Benjamin Foreman was a verdict of guilty against the defendant, brought in yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock, after the jury had been out about two hours. Time of sentence was set for July 8th.

The evidence for the prosecution was to the effect that the wool defendant was charged with having stolen from Mr. J. W. Clyde of Heber on September 12th, 1900, was brought to Provo and sold to the Woolen Mills company. Several of the employees of the woolen mills testified that Foreman was the man who sold the wool, he doing the business under the name of Jines. Defendant's testimony, by himself and three other witnesses was to the effect that he was in Park City, O. S. September 12th and for some days thereafter.

John Christensen vs the O. S. Ry. Co.; continued for the term upon motion of plaintiff, by plaintiff paying costs to date.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

ST. CHARLES, IDAHO.

Fruit Damaged by Frost—Missionary Welcome Home.

St. Charles, Dear Lake Co., Idaho, June 26.—Jack Frost has done considerable damage here of late to the fruit, though the grain and hay crop is looking first rate, winter wheat is beginning to head out and the prospects are good for a large yield.

E. M. Alyea returned from a mission to Indiana on the 2nd inst., where he has been laboring for the past fourteen months, because of the illness of his father, Wm N. Alyea.

His report, having had a good time, and made many friends in the city of Richmond, Ind., where he labored for nine months. On Monday evening the 24th inst. a reception was given him in the meeting house. The exercises consisted of songs, recitations, speeches and dancing.

State senator, E. M. Puzemir, has recently been called on a mission to California.

EGIN, IDAHO.

Ward Conference—Completion of a Fine Meeting House.

Special Correspondence. Egin, Fremont Co., June 25.—A most pleasant and enjoyable time was had by the people of Egin ward on Sunday last on the occasion of the ward conference. There were present Elder T. E. Bassett, of the Stake presidency, and others of the Stake authorities. The people of our neighboring ward, Plains, met with us and participated in the feast of good things enjoyed by all.

A collection was made the following day for the academy tabernacle building and the proceeds of $400 were gathered. We anticipate an enjoyable Fourth of July. Our committee is energetically working to that end.

The new meeting house is completed and is one of the finest in the stake. It is evidence of thrift and enterprise of our people, and the love and esteem in which our respected bishop, O. L. Robinson, is held as our leader in all public enterprises.

Thanks belonging to Bishop Robinson, David Davis and W. L. Hjort start this morning for the saw mill, to help pay a little debt still standing against the meeting house. Success to them. These men are always on hand when any public calls are made for the ward's benefit.

EVANSTON, WYOMING.

Y. L. M. L. and Primary Associations Fully Organized.

Special Correspondence. Evanston, Wyoming, June 24.—On June 23rd, 1901, the Young Ladies Mutual Improvement Association of Evanston was organized at this place, the former president, Sister Burton, having resigned and being honorably released, the following sisters were elected to fill the vacancies: Laura Burnett, president, Eliza McFarland, first counselor, and Mary Dawson, second counselor; Alice Duncombe, secretary; all residents of Evanston, Wyoming. Vacancies in the Stake Primary Association presidency were also filled, as follows: Sister Mina Guild of Owen, Wyoming, to be first counselor to Sister Lovina Dean, who has been president since the organization of the Stake; Sister May Holley of Evanston, Wyoming, to be second counselor, and Sister Gibbs of Spring Valley, Wyoming, secretary.

LAKE TOWN.

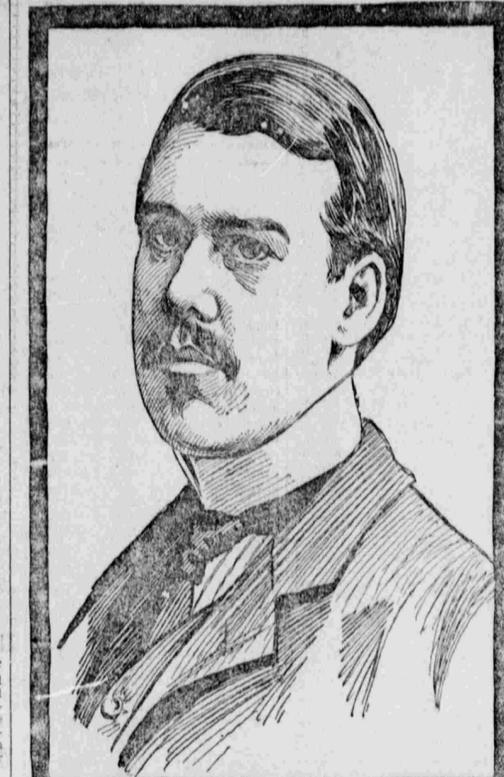

Painful Accident—Stake Conference and Concert at Paris.

Special Correspondence. Lake Town, Rich Co., June 19.—Mr. Jere H. Barley, of Round Valley ward, met with a very serious accident last week. He was grappling with a rock with the object of rolling it down the mountain, when the rock broke, and, in rolling, struck him across the small of his back. Dr. Hoover came up from Mountpelier and attended to the injured man, and he was, at latest report, doing fairly well.

The roads are lined this week with wood wagons laden with that product for Evanston and other local railroad stations. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Keart rejoice in the advent of their first-born girl, and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Hyde are elated over a brand new boy.

HAPPY WEDDINGS.

MILES OF BOOKS.

Perplexing Problem for the Trustees of the British Museum.

"Of the making of many books there is no end." The scriptural quotation ought to be inscribed on every wall of the British Museum library, or, better still, across the dome of the reading room, says the London Mail, where the nucleus of most of the serious works written in London is gathered. The warning might serve as a deterrent.

Certainly the time has come when something should be done to stem the tide of books that day after day flow into our national library storehouse. There are now 2,000,000 of them, and the latest prevention cannot help wondering what small percentage of them are really necessary. "Who reads them?" was a question which persistently nagged the mind of a representative who the other day was accorded the privilege of penetrating the hidden mysteries of the museum, where the country's books are kept. There are mountains of books, up which he climbed—streets of books, along which he walked with ever-growing amazement—a veritable town of books, in the heart of which he lost his way and had to be rescued by a hastily organized search expedition.

The library was designed to hold 1,500,000 volumes. This number has been exceeded by 500,000, and as the books continue to come in at the rate of 300,000 volumes a year, the trustees will soon be faced to face with the necessity of increasing the storage accommodations. With that object in view extensive property has been acquired in Montagu street, adjoining the museum.

Some such extension would have been desirable long ago, and the keeper of printed books adopted an ingenious plan for supplementing the space at his disposal. Movable bookcases run along wheels secured to overhead girders. Thus in some parts of the library there are two and even three walls of books.

Altergether there are thirty-nine miles of books. They vary in size from the height of the tallest soldier in the British army to a tiny, but beautifully printed morsel no larger than your thumbnail. Their value ranges from $30,000—there is a splendid Mazarin Bible in the collection—to a "shilling-a-thousand" worth of dates from the thirty long ages of the book era of a thousand years before the Christian era—right down to yesterday. And the wonder of it is that the officials can glide along the centuries and pick out the thirty long ages and look wanted at a few minutes' notice.

POSSIBLE POPULATION.

On Chinese Standard of Living We Could Support 3,900,000,000 People.

Our recent acquisition of new territory, which is justified by many on the score of our necessities as a rapidly multiplying race, has revived popular interest in the discussion of the question as to how many people, under the present conditions, could be supported on the soil of the United States.
