

SALT LAKERS IN GOTHAM.

Special Correspondence.
NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The coming autumn Paris salon exhibit will contain several pieces of work by M. M. Young, who has been exhibiting for the last three years, water colors, etchings, drawings, pastels and sculpture in the same salon. The work referred to for the October opening will be mostly in bronze, and this with a drawing or two and a water color will comprise the list. Mr. Young, who arrived from Paris Tuesday, is staying in New York for a week or 10 days visiting relatives and friends, of whom he has a goodly number in Gotham, and also to look over the ground in the interest of his profession. His studio in oil, water color and bronze will also occupy a place on the walls of the Philadelphia winter exhibit, and it is a matter of pride to the artist to be able to say that William M. Chase, the world famous artist, shown among many others in color, that he purchased it on the spot. Mr. Young recently sold to the Museum of Art, two of his best water colors, a landscape and a figure study, and in order for more of his work in the future. Private purchasers have been found wherever his work has been seen, for his style is original and strong, two elements most essential in art these days.

Prof. Squire Coop has been sent for several weeks looking over the musical territory, new music, new composers, etc., taking his attention principally after attending to business he took a run down to Atlantic City for a week on to Asbury Park to hear the British oratorio in the Auditorium, with Miss Ellen Thomas as conductor. Prof. Coop was joined by some of his friends, Mrs. Thomas among the number. The chorus of 30 strong was grand support to the principals. Mary Henson de Moss, Daniel Sweeney, Margaret Boche, Daniel Redwood and Wm. Harper. Mr. Coop leaves for the west Saturday evening.

President M. L. Jacobs and Elder H. E. Porter have been taking a short vacation over in the state of New Jersey, traveling around through some of its most delightful country places, returning Friday evening.

From Boston comes the good news that Prof. G. M. Marshall, who is now taking a course at Harvard, has won his M. A. degree and is receiving the congratulations of friends. Prof. Marshall's father from Towanda, Peru, is visiting him for a few weeks. The family will remain in Cambridge all summer, making occasional short trips around Boston. Mrs. E. Y. Davis, mother-in-law of Prof. Marshall, has many relatives in Lynn and Salem and will visit with them before the heated term is over.

Mrs. Helen Davis is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stedman at Hotel Glenbrook, Shannahan, New York, for two weeks.

The marriage of Mr. Al Swenson, the Utah actor, to a Philadelphia lady, is quite a surprise to his friends here. Mr. and Mrs. Swenson are now off on a brief honeymoon trip; the marriage has been kept so quiet it has even been impossible to learn the lady's name, but it is known she was a belle in her circle of acquaintances, and that Mr. Swenson is to be congratulated in his choice of a wife. To his many friends he is a fine fellow, and his natural congratulations are in order.

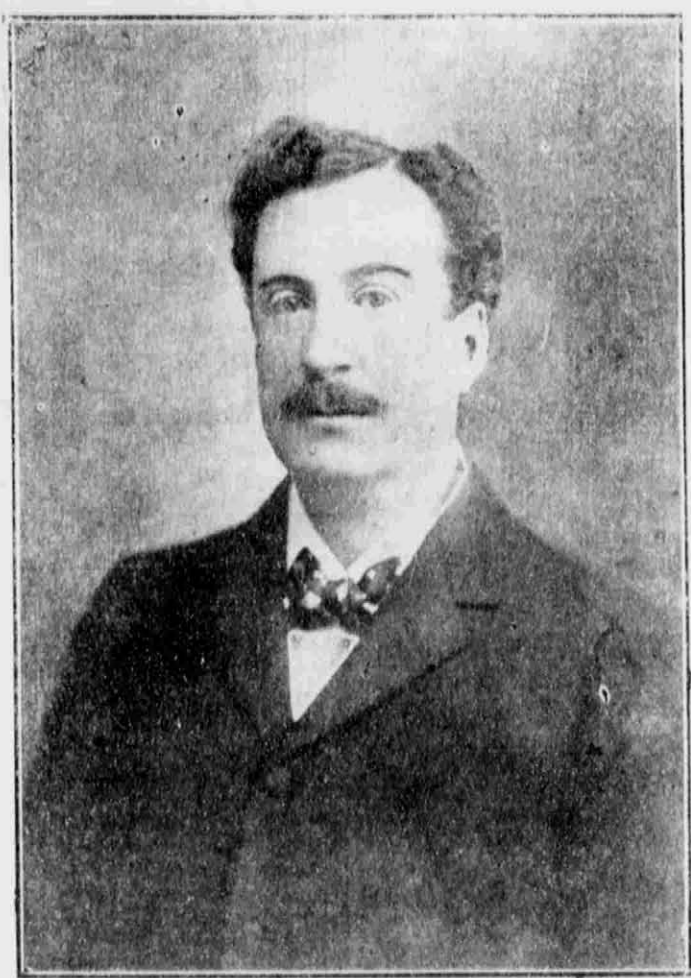

Quite a party of young people, properly chaperoned, took a trip to Boston, Cambridge and several other large cities of Massachusetts, the other day. In the party were Mr. A. N. Rosenbaum and Miss Irene Strang, whose friends arranged the affair.

The Misses Mabel Miner and Augusta Youngberg, who have been visiting in West Haven and Boston, returned to New York Thursday, remaining one day, leaving for Washington Friday night, where they intend staying for several days.

The Utah contingent that has been attending the Chautauqua summer school for the last six weeks, arrived in New York Saturday and will do some sight seeing before leaving for the west. The party includes Mr. and Mrs. Milne, Miss Edna Barker, Miss Rose Thomas, who will visit with her sister Blanche Thomas for several weeks, and Miss Loretta Snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Early, gave another delightful evening of music at their elegant flat on Seventh avenue Saturday evening. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. Richards. Mr. Richards is the principal cartoonist for Life, and his reputation as an artist ranks with that of Charles Dana Gibson and H. C. Christy. Mr. and Mrs. Richards are intimate friends of F. Dewey Richards and wife, and they, with Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Easton, Miss Ellen Thomas and Mr. William G. Patrick, were guests at the "Cape Boulevard," and "Little Hungary" last Tuesday evening. At the cafe one of the finest Hungarian orchestras in the city is nightly engaged, well known soloists often taking part. "Little Hungary," the most bohemian of all restaurants in the lower part of the city, is one of the sights to be seen by every tourist who goes in for a glimpse of foreign atmosphere. It is there you will find it strong and attractive, and like Cape Boulevard it only requires a little imagination to transport oneself to the heart of a German or Austrian capital. New York boasts many such delightful resorts for strangers as well as residents.

HON. W. H. H. REDMOND, M. P.

Noted Irish Orator Who Will Speak in the Salt Lake Theater On Wednesday Night Next.

Above is a picture of Hon. W. H. H. Redmond, M. P., the noted Irish party leader, who is shortly to visit this city. He has been traveling around the world for the benefit of his health, which has been impaired by imprisonment for his activity in connection with the Irish Nationalist movement. When the present Tory government reentered on its coercion policy three years ago, William Redmond was one of the first men arrested. He had only just returned from a visit to the United States, where he and Joseph Devlin, M. P., had conducted a successful organizing tour in the interest of the Irish league in this country.

Mr. Redmond was sentenced to six months imprisonment in Kilmainham jail, and he had served the greater part of his term when the government took another somewhat and abandoned its coercion policy. The distinguished prisoner was compelled to travel out of the continent for his health, and finally was advised by his physician to take a prolonged sea voyage. So he went to Australia, and is now crossing the American continent. It was not his intention at the outset to make speeches, but his countrymen in the south seas insisted on hearing him, and the result has been considerable support for the Irish movement. At San Francisco the noted Irish leader has been given a royal reception, and the same is awaiting him at other cities in this country, as he travels eastward.

Mr. Redmond is in his 44th year, and his father was a member of parliament before him, their home being Wexford, Ireland. Mr. Redmond is a graduate of the Dublin college of Congress in arts, and of Dublin university in law. He represents in his own person some historic episodes in Irish history. Some of his family shared their blood for Ireland in the memorable struggle of 1798, and he is a descendant of brave Wexford men who made the last great armed stand against English rule on Irish soil more than a century ago.

The friends of Irish autonomy and sympathizers with that much afflicted people residing in this city, will be glad of a chance to hear the story of Erin's struggles for political freedom from one of the most noted of her orators.

repeat when danger threatens, when the ship begins to sink, the house burns, the pants rages, the crops fail and ruin states in the face. They are eager for reformation when the times are hard; but they are apt to forget abuses when they are making money and the whole country revels in prosperity.

Therefore, let us not forget now that we are rejoicing in unequalled crops and widespread affluence.

Certainly the Almighty is on the side of the United States. Never was a country so favored. Peace, prosperity and power are her portion. Nature is employing her consumptive of plenty upon us. Such wealth of crops and mineral products has never before been secured upon a single nation. So far as the human mind can penetrate the future, there is at least a year of prosperity before us. We can depend on that, base all our business calculations upon it. We may be confident of five, and even ten years, progress, but, barring unforeseen accident, we may say that we know that good times are insured for a year to come by the immense yield of agricultural and mineral products. A whole year? And how much more he believed in that time.

Yet two years ago we were immersed in depression, and even this year there were conditions that seemed to be working for revolution and panic. "If the crops fail us," said some, "God help us." Well, the crops have not failed us, and all is secure.

Shall we then proceed to eat, drink and make merry, and forget all about the causes of our recent misery, and the laws of right living and sober economy?

What are we in danger of forgetting? 1. The proper use of our prosperity. Even a short time ago we became painfully aware that we were living too fast; that we were feasting upon luxuries, that we were dissipating our strength, with the recklessness of a spendthrift and a drunkard. But it appears that our resources are inexhaustible. The earth has bestowed upon us other fortune. Shall we forget all about our recent experiences?

2. Abundance of wealth breeds over-speculation and reckless gambling on the whole train of attendant evils. Shall we forget the lesson of 1907?

3. Speculative inflation leads to over-crediting of credit. The last time prices reached their present height, the money market was strained almost to the breaking point. Shall we forget the experience of 1907?

4. We have had a period of "social unrest." That is what we called it. In reality it was a period of moral awakening. The revelations of graft in business have shaken confidence in our financial leaders. There has been a loud cry for government regulation of the corporations, and for a higher standard of trustworthiness. If we are all making money, what matters it if there be violation of law? Shall we now forget the lessons of 1904 and 1905?—Wall Street Journal.

School Hose

BUT price is not so important in buying hose for your boys and girls as quality. There is a minimum below which even shoddy, poorly wearing hose cannot be made. Hose of this kind may be had a little cheaper than our special K. O. B. brand—the difference in price is scarcely anything—yet the difference in quality is everything. Our special brand of K. O. B. hose cost us more money than the usual 25 cent hose—but the results! By paying a little more, a hose is obtained that wears, and wears, and wears.

And that is what you want for your boys and girls. If they want to scrub them on the ground let them do it. Give them hard wear. They are made to wear! Made to give satisfaction. Made to win mothers to this store.

DOWAGER EMPRESS OF CHINA.

This is a recent photograph of the Dowager Empress of China, who has invited Miss Alice Roosevelt to visit her at Peking. Miss Roosevelt has not determined whether she will accept the invitation or not. It is believed that she is waiting advice from her father, in view of the dowager empress's invitation. The chamber of commerce has petitioned the members of the Taft party to exclude the Moro provinces from control of the Philippines Assembly. It proposes that an act of congress make the Moro region a Territory of the United States.
