CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

The Civil Rights Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, 27. — Carpenter was listened to throughout with the closest attention both by the senators and those in the galleries. He concluded as follows: "I can understand how an orator like the Senator from Indiana could inflame the passions of a popular assembly, and rally it to support the provisions of this bill; but I confess my astonishment and my sorrow that he can carry along with him the highest court of the land, the Senate of the U.S., and pass the bill throughout all the forms of its enactment. I am consoled, however, by the confidence that if it shall become a law, the judicial courts will intervene to vindicate the constitution." At the conclusion of Carpenter's speech a brief colloquy took place between him and Morton, the latter repeating his argument of yesterday, that the exclusion of colored men from the jury box was a denial of the rights and privileges guaranteed by the 14th amendment.

The bill was finally reported to the Senate and no amendments having been made, the question was upon the third reading, and the bill was read a third time and passed, yeas 38, nays 26, the same republicans who voted for Thurman's amendment voting against the bill.

The tax and tariff bill was then taken up, with the understanding that it be proceeded with at 7.30 this evening.

Ferry (Conn.) then delivered a eulogy on the late Senator Buckingham, and the Senate took a recess.

In the evening session, Merrill (Vermont), who had charge of the tax and tariff bill, yielded to Ramsey, who called up the annual post route bill, and it was passed.

Logan, from the committee of conference on the bill to reduce and fix the adjutant general's department of the army made a report, which was agreed to. After an executive session the Senate adjourned till Monday, when the tax and tariff bill comes up as the unfinished business.

HOUSE.

The Force Bill Passed.

Butler (Mass.) defended the constitutionality of the bill.

Coburn then called the previous question.

G.F. Hoar offered an amendment, the effect of which is to limit the operations of the bill to Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama.

The previous question was seconded, 135 to 40, and the main question ordered, 160 to 105.

Finally the debate closed, and the House proceeded to vote on the bill and the amendments. The first amendment was that of Butler (Mass.) as modified by Hoar, limiting the territory in which the thirteenth section, the one allowing the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, to be applicable to Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi, and limiting the term of its operation to two years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of congress; adopted, 164 to 100. The next vote was on the Cannon amendment, to strike out the thirteenth section. There was much excitement during the progress of the vote, and a number of members gathered round the clerk's desk inquiring for the figures; this, being against the rules, was objected to, and the Speaker pro tem (Cessna) ordered the members to their seats. Immediately after Butler (Mass.) walked up to the clerk's desk and stood there, when a point was made against him; he asserted that he had as much right to be there as the Speaker had. The Speaker pro tem was then occupying a seat at the clerk's desk. Cessna was highly indignant at the remark, and said he had a right to stand when he choose, but the rules forbade Butler to stand at the clerk's desk. Butler—"and they forbid you too." Finally the vote was announced, and the amendment was rejected, yeas 121, nays 130. The following republicans voted aye—Banning, Buffington, Bundy, Burchard, Burleigh, Cotton, Crounse, Crutchfield, Dawes, Farwell, Foster, Garfield, Hale (Me.), Harrison, Hawley (Conn.), Kasson, Kellogg, McCrary, McDill (Iowa), Perry, Phelps, Phillips, Pierce, Poland, E. H. Roberts, Scudder (N. Y.), Sener, Shcumaker, Smith (Va.), Smith (O.), Thornburg, Wheeler, Willard, of Vt., Willard, of Mich., and Williams, of Mich., 35. Cannon voted against his own amendment.

A motion to reconsider the votes was tabled, 133 to to 112. The next amendment was that of E. R. Hoar, to strike out the first, second, and fourth sections, and after two dilatory motions had been made and decided, the amendment was rejected, yeas 120, nays 125, all the democrats and 38 republicans voting in the affirmative. The next question was on ordering the bill engrossed. As usual the two dilatory motions permissible under the rule, one to adjourn, the other to adjourn to a certain date, were interposed, and occupied another hour. The object of the democrats in keeping up these dilatory motions seemed to be to repeat the tactics of Thursday night, wearing out enough of the republicans so as to leave that side without a quorum, and then on some real question either to outvote or refrain from voting. The vote on ordering the bill engrossed and read a third time was yeas 139, nays 108. At eleven o'clock Wood attempted to submit a proposition to let a vote be taken and then to adjourn until Monday, but his fellow democrats drowned his voice in shouts for the regular order. Young (Ga.) also attempted to be heard, but the house was in no humor to hear him. Randall moved to reconsider the last vote, but the motion was tabled.

While the vote was in progress Butler, of Mass., made a proposition that, there having been two test votes on its engrossment and third reading, the vote be now taken on its final passage without further opposition, after which the house should adjourn, and that the reading of the journal on Monday shall be insisted on.

Randall said he was instructed by his side to accept the proposition.

Berry suggested that the title of the bill should be changed, to a bill to elect the President for a third term. The bill was then passed, 135 to 114. The republicans voting in the negative were, Banning, Burchard, Burleigh, Crounse, Crutchfield, Dawes, Foster, Garfield, Hale, (Me.), Harrison, Hawley, (Conn.), E. R. Hoar, G. F. Hear, Kasson, Kellogg, Lowndes, McCrary, Merriam, Phelps, Pierce, Poland, E. H. Roberts, Scudder, (N. Y.), Sener, Shoemaker, Smith, N. Y., Smith, Va., Smith, N. C., Stannard, Starkweather, Willard, Willard, of Mich., and Williams, of Mich., 33. The bill is the same as already published except that the 13th section, in reference to the suspension of habeas corpus, was amended so as to limit its operation to Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, and Alabama, and that the 14th section was added, limiting the time for the 13th section to two years after the passage of the bill, and to end with the next session of Congress. The House then, at midnight, adjourned.

J., Buffington, Butler, of Mass., Barrere and Strowbridge, who would have voted in the affirmative, were paired with Swann, Mitchell, Richmond, Holman, Stephens, of Ga., Stone, of Mo., and Limison, who would vote No. At 12.15 on Sunday morning the Speaker declared the House adjourned until Monday.

The extra session of the Senate begins on Friday next, and will not, it is supposed, continue over a week. The business will be in secret session on the Hawaiian and Belgian treaties, and action on such nominations as the President will make, which will be few. A large amount of business remains to be transacted by both houses, necessitating late night sessions. Three or four contested election cases are pending, besides the reports of the special committees on Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas affairs, which have not yet been acted on by the House. The Arkansas question is also before the Senate committee on privileges and elections, on the memorial of Brooks, claiming to be governor of that State, and a report will be made on the subject. The Pinchback credential question cannot be again brought up for action. The House force bill will be, without doubt, earnestly fought by the democratic senators, who will use every available means to defeat it.

The amount of the indemnity promised by Spain to the U. S. in settlement of the Virginius claims is $80,000 and not $18,000.

He stated to a Times reporter, to-day, that the company had instituted proceedings against Irwin, for embezzlement, and that a warrant was out for his arrest.
