Siberian Coffee.

The plant which has been mistaken for coffee in many parts of this State has proved not to be coffee at all, but a species of buckthorn (Rhamnus Catharticus). But there is now an attempt being made to introduce into California a new article called the Siberian coffee, and we hope it may succeed. The prospects really look favorable. The common coffee plant, though not strictly tropical, is susceptible to injury from very slight frost, and cannot come into general cultivation in California for that reason, though there may be a few favored localities where it will succeed. If a variety can be obtained that will endure a few degrees more cold than the common kind, there is no doubt that it can be successfully grown in this State. In the Siberian coffee, if the published accounts of it be true, we have the required variety. This coffee has recently been introduced into England, and is being propagated at the Kew Botanical Gardens. Plants have been sent to Jamaica, India, Ceylon, and other British colonies favorable to its growth, from some of which it may be obtained for experiment here. An India paper says that "if this species of coffee answers all expectations that have been formed of it, we may look for something akin to a revolution in the estates not only of South India but of Ceylon also." It is said to possess a better flavor than the common coffee, and to be far more prolific, and, what is of more importance to this State, is remarkably hardy, and capable of being cultivated in regions where the old variety will not thrive at all.—S. F. Chronicle.

PREVALENCE OF CRIME.—The summer has been unusually and disagreeably prolific of crime. Scarcely a day passes without our readers being shocked by the account of some terrible tragedy that combines the most horrible circumstances of murder. Now it is a jealous husband shooting his wife and making partial compensation by turning his pistol against himself. On another occasion a discarded lover seeks to avenge himself on the fair one who has dismissed him by killing her. Boys play with deadly weapons in the most reckless manner, and occasionally use them to punish their comrades for some trifling affront; and as for the bar-room affrays, their name is Legion. Burglary seems also to be on the increase, and some cases of actual highway robbery are reported. The lax administration of our criminal laws is responsible for this sad state of affairs. A few examples of swift and severe punishment would go farther towards checking this epidemic of crime than the entire body of philanthropists, who believe only in persuasive and gentle measures.—New York Herald.
