LIVELY SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

Street Cleaning Question Stirs Up The Wrath of Some of the Members.

WEBER COUNTY BUSINESS.

Treasurer's Report—Game Law Fines Go to County Treasury—Big Damage Suit—Pioneer Day Races.

Ogden, July 22.—The cleaning of the streets was the principal topic before the session of the city council last night and the discussion which ensued stirred up the wrath of some of the members. Councilman Powers began the trouble by suggesting an assistant street supervisor be appointed to look after the cleaning of the streets exclusively. In the talk which followed Councilmen Browning, Craig and Thomas each took a fall out of the street committee, maintaining that the members were not working in harmony and that one man was the whole committee. Mr. Moyes, chairman of the committee, took exception to the criticism and went so far as to offer to resign his position and to be carried by President Craig that he was right in his contention. Moyes also said that although he was an old man he did not fear Mr. Thomas and intimated that a personal encounter with him was not undesirable. After much more parleying a motion that the street committee meet once a week with the mayor and handle instructions from the council prevailed. The matter of closing the Twenty-fifth street crossing and opening the Twenty-ninth street was another matter that was fully discussed. The claim was made that the present crossing was blocked by the railroad people almost continually. The street committee recommended in favor of the Twenty-ninth street crossing, on account of there being a less number of tracks at that point and also recommended that the railroad company be instructed to place a flagman at the new crossing and that the city provide for an arc light. Browning insisted that vigorous action be taken with regard to enforcing the ordinance regulating the blocking of crossings, but the recommendation of the committee was adopted. The request of J. H. T. Snyder for an increase from 10 to 12½ cents per month for feeding the city prisoners was granted. The appointments of Chief of Police Browning of Frank Shaw as a police officer, and John Hutchings as a detective were approved by the council. An ordinance increasing the salary of the clerk of the municipal court to $1,200 a year passed two readings and was referred to the law committee. Bids were opened for curbing and guttering Wall avenue from Twenty-fifth to Twenty-sixth street, and for the city engineer and the law committee. The bids were: P. O'Neil, $3,355; and Wheelwright, $3,263. The bids were referred to the city engineer. Bids for work in sewer district No. 10, being Monroe street from the city engineer and the law committee. Bids for constructing a concrete bridge across the new channel of the Ogden river near the mouth of the canyon were received. Each bidder submitted an estimate in each of two plans, plan No. 1 providing for a cement walk, and plan No. 2 for a board walk. The bids were: P. O'Neil, $7,579.50; $6,900; United Concrete company, $6,745; $4,574; Wheelwright Bros., $6,718; $6,046.80. They were referred to the city engineer and the law committee.

WEBER COUNTY BUSINESS.
Fines and Forfeitures Under Game Laws Go to County Treasury.

Ogden, July 22.—County Treasurer Chambers brought before the board of county commissioners the matter of fines and forfeitures collected by justices of the peace for the violation of the fish and game laws. The report stated that the justices have been sending the money thus collected to the state treasurer instead of paying it into the county treasury, as is understood it should be. The county attorney gave it as his opinion that Mr. Chambers' construction of the law is correct. The commissioners therefore instructed the clerk to notify all justices that in the future all such money must be turned over to the county treasurer. Commissioner Moore reported that Waterworks Extension in Canyon Ready for Acceptance.

Special Correspondence.
Provo, July 22.—At the meeting of the city council last evening Supt. of Waterworks Armistead reported the waterworks extension in Provo canyon had been examined and was practically ready for acceptance.

Contractor Belmont reported the paving in district No. 5 completed, and asked as to the manner of payment, in warrants or cash. The sense of the council was that the payment be made in cash after the acceptance of the work had been made by the engineer, and that the money be secured from the state land board.

Contractor Belmont was authorized to construct street crossings of cement as arranged for at the last meeting.

The matter of installing a meter system on the water service was, on recommendation of Supt. of Waterworks Armistead, referred to the committee on waterworks.

V. S. PEET'S LECTURE.

A large audience assembled at the Weber stake academy last evening to hear the lecture that was given by V. S. Peet, of Salt Lake City, with stereopticon views exposing the method taken by Rev. J. D. Nutting in defaming the good name of Utah and her people, especially the Mormons. Often Mr. Peet was greeted with rounds of applause. He first read from various tracts and pamphlets issued by Nutting and others in which the Mormon people are grossly misrepresented and then reproduced the views shown by Nutting in the east which misrepresented the state and her people.

At the conclusion of Mr. Peet's talk, Rev. Nutting, who was in the audience, was given the privilege of replying but he declined and asked for another night to make his reply. When asked if he would give Mr. Peet ten minutes in which to reply to him he should make a reply to last evening's lecture, he said no.

Logan, July 22.—The funeral over the remains of Edwin Stender, the young man who met his death through an accident at Trenton, was held yesterday in the sixth ward meetinghouse. The attendance was so large that the house would not accommodate the people. Six young men, members of his class in the district school, acted as pallbearers, and the church lady members carried the flowers, which were numerous and beautiful. The speakers at the service were Elders H. A. Peterson, Mack McKinnon and W. K. Burnham. Logan, T. H. Outler of Trenton and H. T. McGraw of Smithfield, all of whom spoke words of comfort to the grief-stricken father and members of his family. A long cortege followed the remains to the cemetery where Elder Chas. Ablesier dedicated the grave.

The report that Dr. F. J. Pack had been selected to fill the chair of Zoology at the University was received here with some feeling of regret. ERNSTROM FLAYS DILATORY COUNCIL

Refusal to Relieve Flooded Condition of Camp's Lane District Calls Forth Castigation.

FAULT OF STREET COMMITTEE

Residents of Submerged Portion Claim Must Be Used to Reach Their Homes.

At the meeting of the city council last night Ernststrom roasted the street department and streets committee of the council to a crisp because no action had been taken to relieve the flooded condition of the Camp's Lane district in the extreme northwestern portion of the city. A communication was received on that matter from James Storey, and also one from James Gibson in which both threatened to sue the city unless something is done to remedy the evil at once. Storey declared that he had not been able to reach his home and place of business except by raft since last January and he was tired of the delay of the city officials.

Ernststrom said that the street department and the streets committee were responsible for the trouble simply because they did not have the courage to go a few feet beyond the city limits and clear out the drain ditch and put in a few culverts so that farmers could cross with their teams without having to fill the ditch up again. He said that the city is just as much responsible for that drain ditch as it is for any of the canals throughout the county over which it has supervision.

Carter, who is chairman of the streets committee, attempted to shift the blame onto the county because some of the obstructions in the ditch were outside the city limits and stated that the city had no right to clean out the ditch. He declared that the county commissioners refused to spend any more money in that locality.

Ernststrom insisted that the ditch ditch that portion of the city and that the street department should keep it open. He pointed out the two men could clean it out in two hours and that three culverts would provide ample crossings for the farmers.

Barnes moved that the street supervisor be instructed to clean out the ditch and put in the culverts at a cost of not to exceed $100, and the motion was finally carried. It now appears that with the expenditure of so little money and less energy, the residents of Camp's Lane will again be able to reach their homes without shut out by flood waters since January.

HAS TO USE RAFT.

The letter of Mr. Storey on that subject is decidedly to the point and follows in full:

"Gentlemen:—In view of the fact that several applications have been made to me regarding the water conditions in Camp's Lane and vicinity, it is my duty now to inform you that it is my duty now to relieve the situation. I have not been able to go within about 3½ blocks of my home and place of business since last January only by raft and have been near the end of July and there is no sign of improvement as the ditch is the water to go off the summer. Now it is therefore my painful duty to say that if the ditch is not opened up and kept running I will be compelled to sue the city."

"P. S. I have already spent about $300 of my own to improve the public roadway, but it is very little benefit while the water is allowed to cover the road."

SEWER ORDINANCES PASS.

The three sewer ordinances submitted last week and referred to the committee were reported upon favorably and were passed under a suspension of the rules. They make it obligatory upon all property owners whose property is within 400 feet of the sewer to connect their property with the same within 20 days after being notified to do so by the health authorities. They also provide that no permit shall be issued for the construction of any building within 400 feet of the sewer unless the basement of the same is provided with sewer connections.

MUST WAIT FOR A WHILE.

The finance committee reported against refunding the money of H. B. Scofield which was paid in over a year ago as his assessment for the construction of a sidewalk in front of his premises. He has $734 tied up in sidewalk taxes and it looks as though he would not be able to recede any benefit from it for another year as the contract for the walks in his district has not even been let. The report of the committee was adopted over the protest of Ernststrom and several other members of the council.

FUND AGAIN RAISED.

Another raid was made on the fast disappearing street fund. Upon recommendation of the auditor the sum of $1,212.15 was transferred from that fund to the special improvement fund to pay the city's portion of paving extension No. 27.

GARBAGE ORDINANCE STANDS.

Hobday made his motion to reconsider the garbage ordinance which was passed last Monday night but it was lost by a vote of 7 to 2 and the ordinance stands as passed and will be sent to the mayor for his approval. Hobday stated that he was quite positive that Mayor Thompson would veto the ordinance. The ordinance prohibits the placing of garbage cans on the streets and requires them to be placed not more than 25 feet inside the property line. It also restricts the manner of garbage to be hauled free by the city to three barrels each day from any one business house.

Owing to the absence of Freese, his motion to reconsider the new pure food ordinance was not put to the council and the ordinance will go to the mayor for final approval. The ordinance is in conformity with the national and state pure food laws.

COMPROMISES FOR $1,750.

Upon recommendation of the city attorney, the council appropriated $1,750 to Mrs. Hannah L. Anderson in settlement of her damage suit against the city. The action was brought to recover $2,500 for injuries to her property on north Main street caused by the change in the grade of the street. Mulvey wanted to know what administration engineer was responsible for the grade complained of, as he feared the trouble would be charged to the "Americans." He opposed the settlement and wanted to fight it out in court. The appropriation was made by a vote of 12 to 1, Mulvey casting the only negative vote.

PILGRIMAGE OF THE UTAH PIONEERS

SIXTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1847.

John Pack and Joseph Matthews were dispatched as messengers from the main pioneer camp in the valley to the rear camps to inform Priest, Young and the persons who were with him about the progress of the advance companies and of their discoveries and explorations. The messengers carried a long letter dictated by Willard Richards to Priest, Young. The camp commenced to move about 7 o'clock a. m. and took the back track for about a mile, then they turned northward and traveled about two miles to a small grove of cottonwood trees, standing on the banks of a beautiful stream of water, skirted on both sides with willows and shrubs. This was City creek. The pioneers had selected here by the pioneers for a more permanent camping ground and a farm is now a part of the Eighth ward, Salt Lake City, near the spot where the City and County building stands. This camping ground was, according to William Clayton's deduction, 1073 miles from Winter Quarters, the way the pioneers had traveled, a distance of 335 miles from Winter Quarters to the Junction of North and South Platte, thence 227 miles to Fort John (Fort Laramie), thence 387 miles to Fort Bridger, and thence 116 miles to the camp on "City creek."

About 9:30 a. m. the pioneers were called together on the new camping ground and after a few introductory remarks by Orson Pratt, he offered up prayer and thanksgiving in behalf of the pioneers, all of whom had been so wonderfully preserved on the whole journey from the Missouri river to the valley, and he dedicated the camp and the land unto which they had come to the Lord, imploring His blessings upon their labors and all that pertained unto them. The meeting was then addressed by Willard Richards and Orson Pratt, after which various committees were appointed to attend to different branches of business, preparatory to putting in crops.

Thus Shadrach Roundy, Seth Taft, Stephen Markham, Robert Crow and Albert Carrington were appointed a committee to look out a place for planting potatoes, corn, beans, etc. They immediately left the meeting to accomplish their task. Charles A. Harper, Charles Shumway and Elijah Newman were appointed a committee to stock plows and drags and to call to their assistance what men they wanted. Henson Walker, Wm. Wadsworth and John Brown were appointed a committee to superintend the moving and the rigging of the scythes. Stephen Markham was appointed to attend to the teams and to see that fresh teams were hitched up every few hours. It was also decided by vote that every man should plant his own potatoes and seeds as he pleased. Almon Williams was, by vote, appointed to oversee the making of a coal pit. Dr. Richards advised that no man should leave the camp before he had attended to his seeds and put them in the ground. Dr. Smith recommended that the men should gather out the dead timber and leave the live timber standing, and to use as little wood as possible for cooking. About 11:30 a. m. the committee on planting reported that they had staked off a place of fine ground—40 by 20 rods—for potatoes; also a suitable place for beans, corn and buckwheat, where the soil was fertile, consisting of a "firable loam with fine gravel." At 12 o'clock, noon, or about two hours after the arrival of the pioneers on their new camp ground on the banks of City creek, plowing was commenced a short distance northeast of the camp, three plows having been rigged for that purpose.

Thomas Bullock writes that at 12 o'clock the first furrow was turned by Seth Taft's company, but adds that "Taft's plow broke." He, however, does not mention any other name. From other sources, however, we learn that Wm. Carter, Geo. W. Brown and Shadrach Roundy took part in plowing the first furrows ever made by white men in the valley of the Great Salt Lake. This plowing was done where Main Street (East Temple street) now intersects First South street, or directly in front of the present site of Goddard's drug store. The soil was exceedingly dry and several plows were broken during the day, but three plows and one harrow were kept at work most of the afternoon. At 2 o'clock p. m. some of the men, who had been appointed for that purpose, commenced to build a dam across City creek in order to convey the water of from that stream on to the land which was being plowed. After soaking the ground the plowing was comparatively easy. At 3 o'clock p. m. the thermometer stood at 56 degrees.

At 4 o'clock some of the men commenced mowing grass, preparing for a turnip patch. Towards evening the camp was visited by a thunder shower from the west, not quite enough rain fell to lay the dust. The two messengers (John Pack and Joseph Matthews) who had been dispatched in the morning returned, bringing word that the remains of the wagons belonging to the pioneer company were only a few miles distant, and would arrive the next day.

Priest Young's rear company left their encampment on East canyon creek and crossed the Big mountain. When on its summit the president directed Elder Willard Woodruff, in whose carriage he was lying sick, to turn it around so that he could have a view from that point of a portion of Salt Lake valley. The spirit of him rested upon him and hovered over the valley, and he felt that there was the place where the saints would find protection and safety. From the summit of this mountain they traveled six miles when they came to a beautiful spring in a small birch grove where they encamped for the night. Here they met Elders John Pack and Joseph Matthews from the advance camps, who reported that the men ahead had explored the Great Salt Lake valley as far as possible, and made choice of a spot to put in crops.
