It is really remarkable how the woman managed to escape from the flames. Neighbors who saw her come out of the seething flames, say she was perfectly cool and collected, but after the fire was out she was prostrated with nervousness, and was removed to a neighbor's, where she is being cared for,

WAS A LONG RUN.

During all this time, Chief Bywater, the steamer and hose wagon from No. 1, and the truck from No. 4, were hur-1, and the truck from No. 4, were hurrying with all possible speed to the burning building. The run is a very long one, but the department made splendid time. The place is betwee 1. Third and Fourth East on Tenth South, just outside the city limits. Water was secured from a nearby ditch, and the sleamer was soon at work pumping water into the flames, while the chemical crew worked heroically in saving the adjoining buildings.

DID GOOD WORK.

There was no earthly chance of sav-ing the Patterson home. It was en-veloped in flarnes before the fire fightveloped in flames before the fire fighters arrived there, and the building was practically gutted. By the time the apparatus arrived on the scene, the rear part of the building, where the fire started, had collapsed, and before long the upper story and roof fell in with a crash, sending flying embers and sparks for a great distance around, endangering other property which was only saved by the prompt work of the firemen.

Chief Bywater complimented his men Chief Bywater complimented his men highly for the good work they did. The moment they arrived there, the driver of the Lose from No. 1, "Billy" Cahoon, turned his team over to a citizen and jumped into the thickest of the fray. It was a long, hard struggle to over-come the flames, but they were finally withduck

Patterson lost no time in getting up town when he realized the lature of his injuries. He went at once to Dr. Benedict, had is wounds at ended to, and then returned to his rujaed home. He look the matter in a common sense light, and stated that he felt grateful that it was no worse. He gave the following account of the fire:

"I was feeling ill when I got up this morning shortly after 5 o'clock, and after starting a fire in the oil stove, I went into another room and laid down. I dropped off to sleep and don't know how long I slept when a neighbor rushed in and gave the alarm. He then telephoned to the fire department, and I did all I could to put out the fire, but saw it was no use. I then roused my wife, and later I feared she had not escaped from the building and I ran back up stairs but could not get into the room. Then is when I must have burned myself, but I was so excited I did not realize it at the time. Sol Angell tried to get some things from the house, but he had to run out for his life. It is bad enough, but as I told my wife this morning, we are still alive, and I am grateful it is no worse."

Chief Bywater said that, in addition to the flames they had to contend with, they had considerable trouble with an electric wire, carrying 500 volts. This

A BRUTAL ASSAULT.

Manager Langford of Saltair Viciously Attacked by Ruffians.

Manager J. E. Langford of Saltair beach was brutally assaulted on the in coming train from the lake about 2 o'clock this morning by a teamster named Robert Moore. Moore is now in the county jail awaiting examination. According to the story of eye-witnesses Moore and several young men were inclined to be rowdy on the train and annoyed passengers by passing along the aisles of the ears, pushing against people who were standing and generally making themselves obnoxious. Mr. Langford remonstrated with the rowdles and received in return a torrent of abuse. Seeing that a slugging match was due, the manager of the resort walked out on the platform of the car and sent his son through the train for an officer. At this juncture the gaug, led by Moore, bore down on Mr. Langford, breathing out fire and slaughter. The gentleman tried to hold the door, but it was wrenched open and the next moment Moore struck him a terrifiv blow on the left eye, which for the time being closed that member and necessitated the introduction of a lance.

Moore was promptly arrested and taken to the county jail upon arrival in the city. several young men were inclined to be took fright, and dashed down the street, at a 40 miles an hour gait. There was a general scramble to get out of the way, and "everybody" rushed into the street to "take in the show." After several narrow escapes, it seemed certain that the horses would dash into a wagon loaded with rock at Third South. But the animals swerved to one side enough to pass the wagon themselves, but the wagon caught and partially overturned, tearing off the end of the rock rig. This tore the horses loose, and on they dashed. Opposite the federal building, was a buggy containing Mrs. Emily Kynaston of Bountiful. One horse collided with the left rear wheel, and turned a complete sommersault, took fright, and dashed down the street and turned a complete sommersault, the other horse falling on top of him. B. H. Bower Makes Horticultural Observations in Second District.

A copy of the report of B. H. Bower of Provo, member of the state board of horticulture from the second district, for the quarter ending June 30 was filed with Governor Wells today. Mr. Bower has traveled 1,200 miles by railroad and 250 miles by horse and railroad and 250 miles by horse and buggy in conducting his work during the past quarter, and he reports that the outlook for fruit is generally above the average. Indications are that the apple crop will be very heavy, while there will be only a fair crop of peaches. Owing to the late frosts and the pear blight there will be a shortage in pears this season. The blight is not so bad this season as in the past two years.

The cherry crop in that district has been up to the average, but the crop of strawberries was not sufficient to meet the demand. Mr. Bower says that the

EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

St. Louis, Mo., June 30 .- The question of supporting a movement for the general adoption of phoenetic spelling will not come up before next year's conven-tion of the National Educational association. The matter was to have been considered by the association in convention here, but has been laid over another year. The National Council of Education, in adopting the report of the committee on investigations and appro-priations refused the request of the de-partment of superintendence for the appointment of a large commission, and the appopriation of $10,000 for the purpose of reforming the spelling of the English language. However, a conces-sion was made to the phoenetic advocates in the appointment of a commit-tee to investigate the plans for reformed spelling that have been submitted and to report next year whether it is con-sidered advisable for the National Edu-cational association to lend either its financial or moral support to a spelling reform propaganda.

There was a good deal of quiet dis-cussion of the question among the edu-cators at today's meeting of the con-vention. Some favored the movement, and others expressed themselves as op-

HARVARD AND YALE OARSMEN CONTEST.

For the Twenty-sixth Time They Meet to Decide Who Are the Better Men.

CREAT CROWDS AT NEW LONDON.

In the Freshman Race, the First Event to be Rowed, Yale Was Winner.

New London, Conn., June 30 .- For the twenty-sixth time since oarsmen of Harvard universities are contesting Thames curse in the annual regatta. During all these years the crews of the two institutions have met regularly on this course except in 1896 and 1897. In 1896 the famous athletic imbroglio kept the two colleges apart in all branches of sports. In 1897 the two crews met at Poughkepsie in a triangular race with Cornell and both went down to defeat. In 1898 the old rivals again met on the Thames with the Ithicans again con-stant and again the New England colstant and again the New England col-leges went down to defeat before Courtney's men. In the 25 races rowed between Harvard and Yale on this course victory has gone to Yale in 17 contests and the Yale crew of 1888 holds the course record of 20:10. Accordingly today's battle found Har-vard's men determined to break down Yale's long line of successes and the

At the mouth of the harbor the wind was out of the southeast. Eight miles up the river off the quarters of the crew there was a little westing in the southerly breeze and things looked auspicious. The water was beautifully smooth and there seemed to be every prospect of fine racing conditions. Long before 8 o'clock there was a procession of yachts up the harbor to the finish line.

William Meikleham, of New York, is the referee. The contesting oarsmein were astir early, and although the Harvard-Yale 'varsity rowing races during the last four years have ended in victory for Yale, the two old-time athletic rivals prepared for today's three events with the same confidence and determination to win that has characterized their attitude ever since college facing was inaugurated.

To Yale went the first honors of the day, when the New Haven Freshman eight crossed the line half a length ahead of the Harvard youngsters. The race was rowed in good water up-stream, two miles from the railroad bridge to the navy yard. It was a pretty contest and was in doubt until the last stroke was pulled.

The start was superb, both crews catching the water simultaneously. For the first furlong Harvard more than held her own. At the half they were on even terms.
