

THE WORKING OF CO-OPERATION.

CO-OPERATION in the business of merchandizing has now been carried on in the Territory for a number of months, and so far-notwithstanding the predictions of failure which its enemies have attered-with encouraging success. Various opinious have been published in the East and the West respecting the effect the practical working of the system would have upon the people of the Bank, which temporarily keeps gold. Territory and the ontaide trade. Many dealers out of large amounts of money, Territory and the outside trade. Many have expressed their admiration of the plan, have thought it an excellent avstem for the people to operate under, and have wondered that it had not been adopted long ago. Others have denounced it, and have expressed the opinion that it could not be successfully in which the whaler Alexandria was carried out, But, without being influenced in one way or the other by outside opinion, our people are now in a position to judge practically of its results for themselves. They can now form an idea whether co-operation in merchandizing has been a benefit to the Territory or not.

From the years of the Buchanan-Floyd war upon Utah up to the time the co-operative movement was inaugurated, there had been a steady annusl accession to the class who dealt in merchandise in this Territory. The people would pay for their goods what- sixteen, $100 for the same period. Whatever they might say or do to create outside public opinion in favor of the idea of sending troops here to overawe the "Mormons," in order that they might make money out of contracts, in their hearts they knew. and to certain persons would freely acknowledge, that they never dealt with successful State fair ever held in the a people so liberal and punctual in their trade as those same "Mormons." How long they would have continued to receive the trade, had they manifested ordinary common sense in maintaining the friendship of the people upon whose patronage they depended for support, we do not know, but they had flourished so long undisturbed, notwithstanding their undisguised opposition to and threats against the people of the Territory, that they seemed to have got the idea that we were their slaves, and bound to pay them tribute regardless of the manner in which they maltreated or abused us. When this chapter in the history of Utah shall be written posterity will read with unbounded surprise that a free people, like we have been in these mountains, wasso billed and headstrong as to condinue for years to sustain and patroniza men who were alien to them in feeling and religion, and whose every action proved, that if they could, they would coin their heart blood into money. But it is well for the Territory that merchants were thus foolish and besotted; for had their conduct not been such as to have aroused the indignation of the people we should by this state that a band of one hundred Intime have had merchants here by hundreds, and the country would have been in a worse condition than it ever has sixty-three mules. Captain Somerby, been since its settlement. The multi-plication of dealers of this class in our pedition, killed tweive Indians. Jerum, plication of dealers of this class in our communities is not, as many suppose, a benefit, but an evil. Every establishment which is opened for the sale of imported merchandise is a drain upon the people, and the more extensively it is patronised the more completely are the pockets of the community where it is situated depleted of their cash. The true policy for the people of this Territory to pursue in regard to merchandise is to import only such goods as are indispensably necessary, and to foster home manufactures.
