

The summer of 1833. The mob destroyed a number of our dwellings and fired upon the little party of Mormons, killing one young man and wounding several others. The Mormons returned the fire, killing the leader of the mob, a Campbellite preacher named Lovett. The next difficulty was in Independence, about the middle of July of the same year, when

A LARGE MOB
Armed men gathered in front of the Court House, under the leadership, I think, of three men, named Wilson, Cockrell and Overton. A committee of ten was appointed to talk upon the leaders of the church and state their demands, which were that the Morning and Evening Star newspaper office and all other places of business be closed, and that we immediately leave the county. This was so sudden and unexpected that we asked time to consider the matter, which was refused, and a battle immediately ensued, during which the newspaper office, which stood on the southwest corner of the square, just south of the present site of the Chrisman & Sawyer's bank, was run down and the type scattered to the four winds. Bishop Partridge and another of the Saints were dragged from their houses and tarred and feathered upon the public square, and numerous other indignities heaped upon us. But no one was killed. After this, difficulties of like nature occurred almost daily until some time in October, when the final uprising took place, and we were driven out at the muzzles of guns from the county, without being given the opportunity of disposing of our lands. Our houses were burned and our property destroyed, and several of our number killed. The indignities that were heaped upon us were

SIMPLY TERRIBLE.
"We were beaten, our families grossly insulted and we fled for our lives out of the county. We scattered in every direction, the larger portion going to Van Buren and Grand River. A short time after the citizens of Clay county invited us to come there, which we did, and were treated with the utmost kindness."
"Did your people ever have an opportunity of selling their lands in Jackson County?"
"No, they did not, and it now belongs to their descendants."
"I belong to the original church, organized in 1829, and have never associated myself with any other, and never upheld the reorganization or change of name to 'Latter-day Saints,' at Kirtland, O."
"Where did you go after leaving Far West?"
"I went first to Clay County, and the latter part of 1838 came here and have lived here ever since. Oliver Cowdery lived in Clay County until 1848, when he came here and lived in my father's house in the winter of 1849."
"What kind of people were the Mormons of Jackson county?"
"They were a peaceable, law-abiding and industrious people, and with the exception of a few simple-minded ones, paid strict attention to their business. There never was a charge of any kind preferred against any of them during their stay in Jackson County. Their only crime was that they were opposed to slavery, and were industrious, progressive and enterprising in their habits and teachings."
"How did the name of Mormons originate?"
"It was given to us by our enemies and was never recognized by us."
"I understand, Mr. Whitmer, that you have the original manuscript of the Book of Mormon."
"I have; here it is." (He produced about 500 pages of manuscript, yellow with age, of large, old-fashioned, unruled foolscap paper, close-written upon both sides with ink and fastened together in sections with yarn strings. It very plainly showed that it had been through the hands of the printer, the "take" marks being still upon it.) "This," continued he, "was kept by Oliver Cowdery, and when he came to die, I placed them in my care, charging me to preserve them so long as I lived. When I die, I will leave them to my nephew, David Whitmer, my namesake."
"Are you not afraid they will be destroyed or stolen?"
"No, the Lord will take care of them. When this house was destroyed by the cyclone three years ago to-day (June 1st, 1878), nothing in the room where this manuscript was kept was harmed. Everything was completely destroyed."

Both Mr. Whitmer and his family are thoroughly imbued with the idea that the manuscript is under the immediate protection of the Almighty."
"Are there any relations of Oliver Cowdery now living in this vicinity?"
"Yes, his daughter, Mrs. Dr. Charles Johnson, now resides in town."
