KILLING AT PAYETTE. W. G. Whitney shot in a quarrel by J. M. McGreivy.

A special dispatch from Payette, Ida., says that W. G. Whitney, a pioneer of the Payette country, was shot and killed yesterday morning by J. M. McGreivy at Whitney's ranch near Fruitland, six miles south of Payette. The men quarreled over the division of the hay product of the ranch, which McGreivy was running on shares for the owner. It seems that McGreivy started a crew of men to work baling his share of the hay, and Whitney, learning of his action, immediately ordered the men to quit. McGreivy put them to work again, and the two men met in the field, where a quarrel followed. Whitney picked up a stake, it is claimed, and started for McGreivy, when the latter pulled a revolver and shot Whitney, who turned and ran in his buggy and drove a short distance before falling over backward in the vehicle. He died in a short time. McGreivy went to town and gave himself up to the authorities.

Mr. Whitney came to Payette more than 20 years ago, and was well-to-do. For the last few years his family had been living most of the time at Boise and at Senelec, Or. He leaves a wife and one adopted child.

SHEETS PLACED UNDER CROSS FIRE

County Attorney Hanson Brings Up Point and Tries to Get Explanation.

DEFENDANT IS VERY WARY.

Asserts He Can Say Nothing About Connell Investigation and Damaging Stenographic Report.

Armed with a stenographic report of the proceedings of the city council, the county attorney yesterday brought up the case of the defendant, J. M. McGreivy, in the cross-examination of Sheets at the afternoon session. Numerous glaring discrepancies between what Sheets is quoted as having said that evening and what he told upon the witness stand on direct examination were brought out by Attorney Hanson and when pressed for some explanation Sheets said he had tried to explain at the council investigation, but it was impossible. "A dozen councilmen were talking to me at once; some would ask questions and others answer them. I sat there like a dummy."

SHEETS IS WARY. "But you made a statement when asked to do so?" "I tell you everyone was talking."

"But if you said the things here we were told?" "No, what is there is not true and I do not remember ever saying them."

ALSO DOUBTFUL. "You can't remember, Mr. Sheets, when you were told by McGreivy that he had been robbed of $8,000 by a man representing himself to be a policeman?"

"No, I am not positive whether it was before Bell left or afterwards. I didn't take much stock in that story. As I have told you, the fact that McGreivy wouldn't stay over to help me get the men who had $10,000 of my money because of $8,000 worth of transportation didn't look good to me."

"You had a description of the man who posed as the officer?" "I took it the descriptions I had were of the men in the game."

"But what did you think when McGreivy asked, 'Is this man a policeman?'" "I told you I didn't know what to think."

The defendant-witness couldn't recollect anything being said about a badge.

BUT IS ANXIOUS. "When the McGreivys came back from California and you in the presence of Mr. Pendergrass, a stenographer, told them there was nothing new; that you had been unable to get the men?"

"No, I want to tell what did happen."

The cross-examination at this juncture went into questioning on interviews in which the defendant was quoted as to his story of the affair. These interviews were taken from three or four newspapers of the city and no two read just exactly alike. Mr. Sheets said he could not remember talking to any newspaper reporter or reporters, and picking out the incorrect points denied ever saying them.

Atty. Hanson then produced the report of the council meeting Oct. 4, 1906. In this Sheets is quoted as saying he saw the receipt McGreivy had for $8,000 in his office. On direct examination Sheets said he never saw the receipt in Judge Armstrong's office. The paper in question was the one given to Alexander McGreivy by Bell, who signed it "Chas. McGreivy," when the money was taken from the elder McGreivy after the hokey-poker game in the Antler.

SOMEWHAT SHIFTY. "I will not attempt to say anything about the proceedings; I can remember none of the questions or answers. I sat there trying to talk, but everybody else was on their feet, so I could not say anything." I wanted to tell the straight of it. Regarding that receipt business I would say I didn't say it. I would say, also, that I said nothing about hearing anything about an auxiliary office.

"Then you didn't tell the council you thought that auxiliary business somewhere?" "No."

"You say you thought Bell and McGreivy were friends?" "Yes."

"Didn't you say at the council meeting, 'I am not sure just what time it was when I saw the receipt, Mr. Pendergrass?'"

"I don't remember a thing about it."

"And don't you remember answering a similar question about the receipt for Mr. Pendergrass?" "I don't remember."

"Did not the following dialogue between you and Councilman Fernstrom occur, 'Pendergrass—You understood the men had been robbed of $8,000?'"

Answer by Sheets—He gave me descriptions and I understood he (Alex McGreivy) had lost that amount."

"I don't remember. I can't say. I would say 'No.'"

HERE'S THE POINT. The point was whether Sheets has already said he had been told about the McGreivys being robbed of $8,000 and that McGreivy had given him a description had helped to carry out the robbery. Sheets explains that he thought Bell McGreivy and others had been playing poker and the gambler will, had had a fall-out or dispute to have the chief of police act as referee in the debate (which Sheets says is nothing at all unusual). He says he had heard the McGreivys were in the city and that he had nothing of the $8,000 until later. The prosecution seeks to show he did know about the robbery.

Pelas says one of the messengers exhibited a badge and he thought the youth was a policeman. According to the Greek, one of the fellows took him into an alley and then suddenly attacked him. He was thrown to the ground and while one of the messengers prevented him from making an attack, the other went through his pockets, taking a watch and $15. When arrested last night Pelas positively identified the prisoners.

WILL BUILD NEW BRANCH. Short Line to Construct 70 Miles of Road in Idaho.

The Short Line is preparing to build the proposed 70 miles line between Rupert on the Shoshone branch, and Fuller on the main line. The new road will run through very fertile lands which have been taken up under the North Salt Lake Falls Irrigation scheme, and will prove a great convenience to the hundreds of settlers who have moved in there. The cost of building will be about $10,000 per mile. The irrigation company has proposed to build an electric line from Miller on the Shoshone branch, diagonally across the section of land between the two branches. The company will do this, now that the Short Line is to be built, is a question.

There will be a meeting at 10 a. m. Friday next, at the office of the stockholders of the Minidoka Short Line, which operates the Shoshone branch line to Buhl, an Oregon Short Line subsidiary company, to amend articles of incorporation so that the Rupert-Fuller line may be built.

"For several winters past my wife has been troubled with a most persistent and distressing sleeplessness, which has caused her many sleepless nights," writes Mrs. H. J. Hay, of Denver, Colo., Bulletin. "Various remedies were tried each year, with no beneficial result. At a recent lecture on 'Real Relief' put in an appearance and my wife, acting on the suggestion of a friend, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The result was, indeed, marvelous. After three doses the cough entirely disappeared and had not manifested itself since. This remedy is for sale by all druggists."

The fight was broken up and the police failed to find the fighters. The principals, it is said, will meet again for a side bet of $15.
