CREAM

BEST

This Captain Bartley was the pedestrian who first introduced the feat that has since been so many times attempt-ed, that of walking 1,000 miles in 1,000 consecutive hours. To do 24 miles a day for six weeks is a formidable un dertaking for any but a trained pedes-trian, and quite out of the range of possibility for a very large majority. The case is quite a different one when every hour in the six weeks, night and day, is to have its distinct mile of walking, while in the former he could have a long and sound sleep every night. The feat had been attempted several times previous to 1810, but UNCLE Sam has found it at last!
A sure remedy for Torpid Liver,
Sick Headache, Habitnal Constipation, Bartley was the first to accomplish it Not less than £100,000 was wagered on the result of the contest. The walking occupied 41 days and a few hours' time, from June 1st to July 12th, and took place on Newmarket course. Sick Headache, Habitual Constipation, Chills and Fever, and all affections of the Kidneys and Liver. This is a New Compound, and one trial will convince you that it is the Cheapest and Best Remedy in the Market for Diseases of Kidneys, Liver and Stomach. If you want a pure vegetable compound, that is positively guaranteed to contain no mercury, go to your Druggist, and get a Bottle of the Arkansaw Liver and Kidney Remedy. Price, $1.00 per Bottle. Though he suffered somewhat during the performance, his appetite remained unaffected, and he finished tolerably

50 miles a day, and to show his stamina ne accomplished 75 miles on the last A chap named Cartis, in Berkshire County, Mass., for a wager of a horse, ran 5 miles in 41 minutes and wound up the race with a jump of 11 feet 6

resh in the presence of a vast assem-lage. This feat has been often accomplished since. A pedestrian named Baker once walked 1000 miles in 20 days

An Englishman named Head won .000 guineas by walking 600 miles in ien days, but the exertion so used him up that he never walked much after ward, either on wages or otherwise. McDonald, a tailor, walked bare-fected from Westminster bridge to Chatham and Back in fourteen hours and twenty minutes. In 1820 a fishhawker in Chelsea undertook to run from Hyde Park corner, seven miles along the Brenford road, in one hour, carrying a basket with fifty pounds of carrying a casket with firty pounds of fish on his head, and is said to have done it in forty-five minutes. If he did it is a remarkable exploit. A similar feat was that of a gardener's apprentice, who walked from Wandsworth to the Borough market, six miles, in fifty-eight minutes, carrying 300 head of asparagus. Still a third was that of an orange porter, who made twenty journeys from Botolph lane to Spitalsfield market, each time carrying 100 pounds of oranges; the distance traveled was forty-three miles, and he birty-two minutes. The wager was A gentleman at one of the London clubs made a wager of £100 that he would stand for an entire day at a point on London bridge with a tray of gold sovereigns and offer then at a penny each without finding a purchaser. He won the wager, as the passers-by supposed the coins were biass and declined to invest.

The master of the revels of George If was regarded as the uglicst person in the kingdom, as none had been found who could successfully contend against him for this distinction. One of the hobiemen of the court laid a wager that he could produce a person surpassing him in this respect. At the time appointed he caused a notorlously nomely fish-woman that he had heard of to be brought, who stood by the side of the champion. With the approval of the present wearer of the belt, the palm was about to be awarded to her, when a bystander, probably interested also in the result of the de-cision, suggested that the cham-plen put on the old lady's bon-ne', in order to make the net, in order to make the con-ditions of the contest more equal. He did so, when the added uliness was so emphatic and indescribable that the victory was awarded to him.

Another wager which is somewhat familiar, owing to the extraordinary character of the feat, was that of Sir John Throckmorton, which was for 1,000 guineas, that he would wear a suit of clothes in the evening made from the wool taken from sheep the same day. At 5 o'clock on a summer-morning in 1811 two Southdown sheep were shorn, the wool was washed, roved, spun, carded and woven, the cloth was scoured, fulled, dyed and dressed the measure taken the soil October, 1886, at 11 o'clock a. m., then and there to show cause why an order adowing said final account and of distribution should not be made of the residue of said estate among the heirs and devisces of the said Robert Dunn, deceased, according to law.

It is further ordered that the Clerk cause copies of this order to be posted in three public places in Salt Lake County, and published in the Disease Lybring News, a newspaper printed and published in Salt Lake County, three weeks successively prior to said 21st day of October, 1886.

ELIAS A. SMITH, dressed, the measure taken, the suit cut and completely made; and was worn at a dinner given by Sir John at 6 o'clock in the evening.

The wagers made on the speed of horses are so common, and the terms and conditions so uniformly of a commonplace character, that they hardly command attention on the score of novelty. Donkeys have sometimes been put on their speed, a quality that they have not been popularly supposed to possess. About twenty years ago a race (so called) came off on the Newmarket course to decide a bet of £100 made by the owner of a donkey that he would go 100 miles in 24 hours. The meck-looking little chap not only let his master out in good form, but had fully three hours to spare. In Philadelphia, some years ago, a gentleman made a wager of $100 that he could jump into water eight feet and undress himself completely. Any one who has ever made the attempt to remove his clothing after been thor-oughly drenched to the skin, even when standing on terra firma, with plenty of room to "hop around on one leg," will at once realize the difficulty of accomplishing the feat while in deep water. However, it was done in the instance noted. Dog racing is a species of sport that is not very common in the United States but the states.

cies of sport that is not very common in the Enited States, but not rare in England. In 1870, at Fenham Park, Newcastle, England, one Perkins matched his dog Pollvagainst Davidson's Queen of the Forest, to run 20 yards for £50. The latter was the winner by a yard. On theisame day at koyal Oak Park, Manchester, two dogs ran the same distance for £100 a side. The time in either case is not given. Before the advent of strait boats a gentleman in either case is not given. Before the advent of steam boats a gentleman in France wagered 25,000 francs that he could make a toat move twenty-five miles an hour. This was one of the most generally discussed of any event of the day, and hundreds of wagers were laid upon the success or failure of the undertaking, but the manner in which it was proposed to accomplish it was kept a profound secret until the day set for the trial. The man caused a circular canal to be dug, 100 feet in circumference and ten feet wide, to which water was let sufficient to float a common rowboat about ten feet long. A horizontal pole equal in lengthilof the radius of the circle was pivoted at one end to a strong post in the centre and the other attached to the boat. A span of powerful horses was attached to the pivotal point, and trotted in a circle, drawing the pole at a rate of speed that propelled the boat at the other end at a velocity of over twenty-nve miles an hour, in the presence of several hundred persons.

After the battle of Gettysburg an ofadvent of steam boats a gentleman ral hundred persons.

After the battle of Gettysburg an officer in command of an infantry brigade made a wager with a stag officer ade made a wager with a stag officer in the cavalry that more than one-half the muskets captured would be found to have one or more charges still in them. This led to the discovery of a very singular fact. At that battle 28,000 muskets were taken, of which 18,000 were found to be loaded. Some 12,000 contained to loads and 6,000 had from three to ten loads each. In many instances half a dezen balls were driven in on a single charge of powder, while in not a few instances the former possessor had reversed the usual order and put the ball in first.

Some ludicrous and amusing wagers were paid on the result of the Presidential election. A Meadyille, Penn., girl bet fifty kisses against a winter wrap that Blaine would carry New York.

C. M. Brown and William Lavin of York.

C. M. Brown and William Lavin of Salt Lake City made a wager, the terms of which obliged the loser to take a hand-organ and a monkey and play on four of the principal corners in the city, taking up a collection for the poor. Miles W. Downing, of Fort Plain, N. Y., won on Cleveland $200 in cash, 42 boxes of clgars, a $50 suit of clothes, a $30 overcoat, two hats, three pairs of boots, five gallens of oysters and two kegs of lager. A colered barber of Warsaw, Penn., lost a bet which obliged him to wear a white coat, vest and trousers, have his hands and face whitewashed, and promenade the main street of the town, carrying a string of sausage and a bottle of St. John whis-ky. At New Haven one election bet called for the loser to polish his op-ponent's boots twice a week for a month. Another one obliged the loser to make his weight the same as the winner's, the difference being 48 pounds. At Nor-wich, Conn., William Hartley was obliged to furnish a carriage drawn by These PILLS act with great mildness, and may be taken at any time with pany the procession. Bibles and dispose of it in the same manner. With this before them they be gin to discuss it in turn. One of these commentators is an excellent Greek and Hebrew scholar. Another is prenandiy learned in current Bible criti-cisms, while still another has gone through with care and has at her fingers' ends all the great commentaries of Henry, Scott, Dr. Adam Clark and others. After each verse has been thoroughly discussed, each woman writes under it what she has to say, and the sheets are then passed into a secretary. This secretary is a recent graduate from Vassar. She cuts out PIONEER this much-talked-of verse from still another Bible, puts, it at the top of s larger sheet of paper and then appends under it the notes of all the learned lady commentators. When asked what was the object of this revision, one of the ladies, who inspires and carries on this tremendous labor, explained that they were donine revision of the Scriptures. "We find," she said, "in going over the Old and New Testaments, that about onetenth of the Bible touches, in one way or another, upon women. We wish to know whether the male readings, translations and interpretations have been strictly fair to us, and in a spirit friendly to our sex. We and a great meny other women have our doubts on the subject, and so we propose issuing what may be called 'The Woman's Bible.' This is a Calf, NOT a SNAKE, STORY.—It is strange what strong attachments are sometimes formed between animals and small children. Little Dollie Weish, a four years of age Alabama girl, and a calf, are the best of friends imaginable. The way it came about was that one day Dollie went to an unused well and peeped over the low curb. The calf saw her and slezed her dress in its mouth. The little girl lost her balance and fel over the curb, but the calf hung on, and for half an hour held her thus suspended until the child was rescued. Columbus Enquirer-Sun.
