FRAGMENTS.

THERE is talk of establishing glass works in Laramie, Wyoming.

THERE are now seven cases of diphtheria and one of scarlet fever in the city.

THE Fourth Quorum of Elders will meet at the usual time and place on Monday evening next.

THOMAS DANIELS was fined $10 yesterday afternoon, for disturbing the peace of Thomas Atkins.

F. ROBINSON was arrested this afternoon on the charge of running a restaurant business without a license.

THE Second Quorum of Seventies will meet in the Fifteenth Ward schoolhouse on Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

TO-MORROW the Mutual Improvement Associations of Davis Stake of Zion will hold conference at Centreville.

THE Seventeenth Ward Sunday School review, which was to have taken place to-morrow, has been postponed for one week.

THREE drunken men were lodged in jail late last night. They gave their names as Dan McCarthy, Philip Dinsk and Conrad Leitzer.

THE term of imprisonment of Joseph H. Dean, of this city, and Andrew Hansen, of Mill Creek, in the penitentiary, expires to-morrow, and they will be released on Monday.

W. H. BROWNELL, a mining operator of Gibbonsville, Idaho, has been in town for several days past and returns to-morrow. He left five feet of snow in his northern retreat.

THE Conference of the Mutual Improvement Associations of Utah Stake commenced to-day and will close to-morrow evening, at Provo. There is a large attendance.

IT was erroneously stated in a local item in yesterday's issue that the late John Bailey migrated to Utah in Smoot and Taylor's company. It should have read Smoot and Layton's company.

IN another column will be found, under the heading Queensland, the details of a terrible flood which recently devastated that country, wherein eighty lives were lost and an immense amount of property destroyed.

MRS. HANCOCK, the keeper of a house of ill-fame, was fined $99 yesterday and sentenced to 50 days imprisonment. Her daughter, as inmate of the house, received one half the amount given her mother.

RENT climbs up pretty fast. Rosborough & Merritt have just moved to No. 6 W., Second South Street, from the old Hooper building east of the Deseret National Bank, which they had occupied since August 1, 1872. In that time they have paid $15,786 in rent.

THERE was a good-sized and very attentive audience at the matinee this afternoon. Clara Morris appeared in still a different line of character and secured numerous encomiums. The want of time prevents further mention now.

WE have received No. 3 of preventable-disease circulars, issued by authority of the Utah County Board of Health, M. H. Hardy, M. D., Quarantine Physician. The circulars contain much useful information. They are printed by J. C. Graham.

PROF. EVAN STEPHENS has seven singing and reading classes—three mixed classes for adults, three for children, and one for ladies. Many have joined during the past week and any others wishing to do so will be given an opportunity the coming week.

THIS afternoon we received a pleasant call from Mr. F. S. Oliver, representing the Chicago firm of G. W. Ludlow & Co., manufacturers of ladies' fine shoes, and Mr. Frank Rumsey, representing L. M. Rumsey, of St. Louis, a gentleman whose pumps are noted for excellence. They are in extensive use in Utah. Mr. Rumsey having done business with this Territory for many years.

WE are requested to publish the following: The public are cordially invited to the fourth lecture on the Prophecies at the Baptist Church (corner Second South and Second West streets) to-morrow evening. Professor Krouse will conduct the music. Miss Crissie Lawson, Mr. Mederis and others will assist with solos, etc., in addition to the usual congregational singing.

MANY of our leading vocalists are now connected with Prof. Stephens' advanced music class. The names of Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Pugsley, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Silverwood, Miss Dean, Mr. Beesley and other local favorites are to be found on the roll. Every class night a number (solo or duet) is rendered, and reveals the fact that several heretofore almost unknown will soon be able to occupy a front place in musical circles. After next week no new member will be taken in the class until next autumn.

THE hymn to be sung by the congregation in the Tabernacle, to-morrow afternoon, is on page 108; the tune is named "Welsh." The singing of the opening hymn by the congregation has become an established and pleasing feature of the Tabernacle services, every Sunday afternoon. The people having now formed a habit of taking their hymn books to meeting, it is considered unnecessary to hereafter publish beforehand the hymn intended to be sung.

TOBIAS TRAPPED.

HIS ANTI-"MORMON" DODGE DOES NOT AVAIL HIM.

To-day Samuel L. Tobias was called in the Third District Court to receive sentence on a conviction for petty larceny. This case will be remembered as the one in which a $5 gold-piece lost by Mrs. Angel figured. The money was picked up by a small boy, Malcolm Butler, and was claimed by Tobias, who said that he had tossed the coin—he first said it was a $2:50 piece, and then changed it when he learned what was found—to his father and that the latter had failed to pick it up from the sidewalk. The evidence, however, convinced the jury that Tobias, in retaining the money, committed a theft. He was tried in the Police Court, convicted and fined $50. An appeal was taken to the District Court, and another conviction had.

To-day his attorney, Mr. Whittemore, asked Judge Zane to suspend sentence, and urged as reasons therefor what he considered the doubt in the case, that the defendant had been before this considered straightforward, and that he worked with his father in a small store to obtain a living for a large family.

Mr. Richards objected to a suspension of judgment, and suggested that the least the Court should do was to require the defendant to pay the costs in the case. The full penalty for the offense was $99 fine and 99 days' imprisonment.

The Court then asked the defendant, "Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?"

Defendant—Nothing, only it is the first time I was ever in a place like this. I am innocent, so help me God.

Court—The jury found you guilty, and I think the evidence fully warranted it.

Defendant—I did not have all my witnesses here. There was the man who owned the money. I had additional witnesses in the Police Court.

Court—You were found guilty then?

Defendant—Yes, but the jury were all Mormons. I was told they would do it.

Court (severely)—The evidence against you was sufficient to show your guilt——.

Defendant—It was a Mormon jury——.

Court—A man who would take advantage of a little boy as you did must be a bad man. I am of the opinion, under the evidence, which was strong, that you are guilty. You will be fined $50 and pay the costs of the prosecution.

The defendant was then ordered committed to the custody of the Marshal until the judgment was satisfied. In addition to the $50 fine the costs will foot up to something like, $75.

That County Road.—On Wednesday we published a complaint from a resident of Morgan County about the bad road at Devil's Gate, near the Weber County line. It was therein intimated that the Weber people had declined to do their share to keep the road in repair. The Ogden Herald thus defends the action of the county officers:

"The charge against Weber County is unjust. The piece of road in question has always been a bone of contention and, it is claimed by Weber County officials that if the road was properly located according to the statute it would be entirely out of the jurisdiction of Weber County. That it is a bad place is true, but it is not a county road of Weber County. Weber County has in the past offered to pay her share towards keeping that piece of road in good condition. Every proffer however has been refused. The county most interested in the road is Morgan; Weber County people travel it very little compared with the Morgan County folks. But the latter have absolutely refused to attend to it or even to repair it or assist in so doing. Davis County is also interested; but it is understood that most of the trouble arises from the folks on the east. It would be just as reasonable for people who cross on a portion of Weber County from Cache to Rich counties to require this county to declare that road which they travel for their own convenience a Weber County road as for Morgan people to ask that Weber County spend so much money on a small piece of road which really belongs to Morgan County and in which Weber County people have so little interest. It is a matter of regret that this dispute should continue but Weber County has really done her share, and in fact, more than her share, in maintaining that road. Our county court has been to much expense and annoyance in regard to the matter and has not been met part way by either of the other counties."

Probate Court.—Business in the Salt Lake County Probate Court yesterday:

An order was made requiring publication of notice to creditors in the estate of Emeline Young, deceased.

A similar order was made in the matter of the estate of Edward Blair, deceased; and an order appointing appraisers in the matter of said estate.

Mrs. Mary Ann Ashman filed her bonds as administratrix in the matter of the estate of William Ashman, deceased.

An order was made appointing time and place for hearing petition for the appointment of an administrator on the estate of William Counsell, deceased.

A Tip Over.—Last evening a Mrs. Paul and two children were going along Third West Street in a buggy. When between Sixth and Seventh South streets, Mrs. Paul started to turn back. The horse was turned too quickly, and the buggy was tipped over, the inmates being thrown out on the road. Fortunately they all fell clear of the buggy, for at that juncture the Utah Central train came along, and the frightened horse dashed off, smashing the vehicle. The train came to a standstill, and moved out again when it was found that the lady and children were not dangerously injured, though they were scratched up considerably.

Joined in Matrimony.—On Wednesday, March 23d, John A. Evans, son of the late David W. Evans, and Miss Florence Neslen, daughter of Mr. R. F. Neslen, were married, at the Logan Temple. The former is book-keeper at the NEWS office and a young man of ability and promise. He and his amiable bride have the congratulations and best wishes for their welfare of all connected with this establishment as well as those of a host of other friends.

Free Again.—To-day Brothers Geo. Hales, James Farrer, Wm. Robinson and Thomas Schofield, of Beaver, and Richard H. Sudweeks, of Junction, Piute County, were brought down from the penitentiary on applications for discharge from imprisonment. They were subjected to an examination by Commissioner McKay, and were released. All of them were sentenced on September 25th, 1886, for unlawful cohabitation, R. H. Sudweeks receiving judgment on two counts, one of which is void, while the others were sentenced to six months each. There was a fine in each case, for which 30 days additional was served.

United.—Wednesday, March 23rd, J. Washington Young, son of Hon. Brigham Young, and Miss Anna Sears, daughter of S. W. Sears, Esq., were united in wedlock, at Logan Temple. We join with the many friends of the young couple in good wishes for their future happiness.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 26th, 1887.

The Institute met pursuant to appointment, at the Fourteenth Ward Assembly Rooms. The preliminary exercises were gone through with, when Miss Emma Finch, by request of the superintendent, gave her experience in introducing the Kindergarten gifts into her department. The lady has had hardly sufficient time to test their utility, but thinks they will prove a valuable aid to primary teachers.

Mr. Jno. Cardall briefly stated his method of teaching intermediate reading. Several series of readers are used to create interest and give variety to the exercise.

A recitation was given by Mr. J. J. Walton.

The lecture on reading by Prof. J. H. Paul was replete with excellent suggestions to teachers. The instructors should never lose sight of the fact that the study of reading is to give the pupil power to obtain ideas from the printed page and to express those ideas in good English. None but the best models of our language should be used. Every lesson should be interesting and should furnish the mind with material upon which to work.

The following is the programme for April 9, 1887:

Primary geography, Mr. C. C. Crapy.
Discussion of questions by teachers, Miss Bessie Dean.
Geography as taught in the higher grade, Mr. F. D. Lewis.

The meeting then adjourned for two weeks.

C. M. SORENSEN, Secretary.

Wm. Perigo vs. Thomas Smith et al.; motion to reinstate case as to defendant against whom dismissal was entered, argued and submitted.

Court adjourned to Monday, March 28.

A Smash-up.—This morning Mr. James Gordon and his wife were driving toward town along the State Road. They were in a buggy and the horse was walking. Behind them some distance was a small boy—too small for the task assigned him—driving a light wagon, loaded with eggs, hay, etc., also coming to the city. From some cause the boy's team became frightened and started to run away. The little fellow was utterly powerless to control the animals, and when they came up to Mr. Gordon the latter tried to get out of the way, but it was too late. The hind wheel of the buggy was caught by the wagon wheel, and Mr. Gordon's vehicle overturned, the whole outfit coming together in a tangled mass—man, woman, boy, vehicles, horses hay and eggs. The boy escaped with but slight bruises, though he was badly scared. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were much less fortunate, having been considerably bruised up. Both were unconscious, and for some time those who first arrived at the scene of the accident were in doubt as to whether or not Mrs. Gordon was killed. She finally revived, and the necessary attention was paid to the injuries she received.

"Miss Multon."—The greatly improved attendance at the Theatre last evening attested in a striking manner how firm a hold Clara Morris has taken upon our lovers of legitimate dramatic entertainments. Her performances are not only complete as to detail, but finished in artistic presentation. Her rendition of "Miss Moulton" was not in any sense a repetition of her acting of the previous night, in fact the two occasions presented were as nearly as possible antipodal in their difference; "Cora" in "L'Article 47," exhibited the intense exciting and powerful phase of impersonation, while "Miss Multon" is of the more mellow, subdued and tearful class, and to say that in the latter she is as good as in the former would be to state incorrectly and do the lady herself an injustice. As the haughty and revengeful creole she is seen if not at her best, at least to the greatest advantage, although as the impetuous but kind-hearted wife and later as the broken-down and contrite mother, while all that could be asked and as good as it has ever been done by any one, was not so much greater than others as she was in "Cora." There were but few dry eyes among the female portion of the audience when the climax was reached, and here and there one of the sterner sex found his handkerchief a very convenient adjunct to his apparel. The little Ogden sisters—as "Paul" and "Jane" respectively, exhibited remarkable talent and elicited favorable comment from all sources; the latter, in particular, is little less than a prodigy. Mr. Miller as "Latour," gave a very satisfactory and quite correct rendition of "Maurice," and, in fact, the entire company appeared to much better advantage than the night before.

To-night the company appear in "Engaged."

The Haughty Wife.

In one of the cities that lie over against Boston there lives a family whose masculine head is a man who has won considerable wealth, from humble beginnings not unlike those of Commodore Vanderbilt, with the difference that while he, like Vanderbilt, began as a boatman, he was expanded into the banking business instead of into the railroad business. Ever since he became a banker his excellent wife has been smitten with the great importance of her husband's new occupation, and has advertised it on every possible occasion. The horse car conductors on the line which runs into her city all know her and smile when she enters the car and grandly utters her command:

"Conductor, let me off at my husband's bank!"

One day lately a trampish looking old fellow with a red nose got on the car just as the banker's wife delivered her usual order to the conductor. The old man watched her performance curiously, and then arose, pulled himself together and called out with a magnificent air that was inimitable:

"Conductor, let me off at my old woman's peanut stand!"

A roar went through the air, and "my husband's bank" has been alluded to more than ever since that time.—Boston Record.

How He Made His Fortune.

Queer things happen in this world of ours. A few years ago Major Selover, a big, good-natured stock broker in New York, became incensed at Jay Gould, and meeting him in Wall street, seized the small Napoleon of finance and dropped him over a railing into a barber shop. The shop was kept by an unhappy little Dutchman, who had a hard time in making both ends meet. That incident made his fortune. It became a historic spot. Everybody went to see the place and the little Dutchman speedily had all he could do and he has driven such a thriving trade since that he is now independent. On such small incidents as these do men's fortunes hang. The attack did Selover no harm, or Gould either, for that matter, but it brought success to one man besides the barber—that is the private shadow that follows Gould everywhere. He is a big detective who dogs the footsteps of the immortal Jay. The latter takes no notice of him and has never spoken to him since the first day when he went on duty, but he has managed to lay up a comfortable sum out of his salary, and has as yet had nothing to do.—Peoria Journal.
