BREVITIES.

A welcome robber—the man who takes your part.

Victor Hugo predicts a revolution in France if Napoleon lives two years longer.

Mr. Silktop says that if he is going to have a nap in the day time, he prefers it on his hat.

A little saltpetre worked into butter that has become sour, or rancid, will render it sweet and palatable.

Never become so absent-minded as to mistake somebody's well filled pocket for your own empty one.

There are 20 Episcopal churches in Ireland, in which the service is conducted in the native Irish tongue.

We have more power than will; and it is often by way of excuse to ourselves that we fancy things are impossible.

We must not undervalue physicians. Perhaps the fabric of society would fall without them—they are its pillars.

Skittle playing on Sunday bothered Victoria at Lacorne. She offered $400 to have it stopped, but they wouldn't.

Frederick Hudson, for many years managing editor of the Herald, is said to be writing his recollections of New York journalism.

The name of the English Premier is pronounced by himself and his friends, "Diaryly," with the accent on the second syllable.

It is the opinion of a Western editor that wood goes further when left out than when well housed. He says some of his went half a mile.

Stiggings proposes to open a brick yard, the stock to consist of material taken from hats of eccentric men about town.

Well I am glad you have had a nice ride—but where is your jacket, Tom? Tom—Sold it for a bottle of ginger beer, mother—we were so thirsty!

A sportsman at Swampscott, Massachusetts, recently fired into a flock of ladies who were bathing on the beach. He thought they were ducks.

A gentleman at a musical party asked a friend in a whisper, "How shall I stir the fire without interrupting the music?" "Between the bars," replied the friend.

A Jew and a Catholic were recently married at Liege, Belgium, by a Protestant clergyman, the parties having applied in vain to rabbi and priest to unite them.

A teacher was explaining to a little girl the meaning of the word "cuticle," and asked, "What is that all over my face and hands?" "It's freckles, sir," answered the little cherub.

Mrs. Fanny Kemble recently astonished a Massachusetts railroad conductor by purchasing four tickets for her party of three, because she wanted to occupy four seats for the sake of comfort.

A lecturer in Portland, Maine, or somewhere else, was explaining to a little girl how a lobster cast his shell when he had outgrown it. Said he, "What do you do when you have outgrown your clothes? You cast them off do you not?" "Oh, no, sir, we take in the tucks," replied the little one.

The Pope proposes to make the year of the council a year of jubilee, "anno santo," during which all "worldly amusements must be suspended in Rome. The Romans, a majority of whom are dependent for living on the gaiety of the city, are said not to be well pleased at the prospect.

An engineering firm in San Francisco, wishing to discover the depth to which a pile could be driven in the mud, which once formed the bed of the bay, sank one on top of another until the depth of 106 feet was reached, when they stopped for want of more pile to put out.

A person from the rural district was walking through Montreal the other day, when a rough-looking fellow took hold of him by the collar, shook him, and insisted upon knowing the hour. The farmer pulled out a pistol with the remark, "My man it will be just one if I fire."

The baptismal admonition of the Hindoo is as impressive on the bystanders, as it is beautiful: "Little babe, thou enterest the world weeping, while all around you smile; contrive so to live that you may depart in smiles, while all around you weep."

A minister of St. Andrews, who noticed greater attention paid on the part of the congregation when young ministers preached than when when he himself preached, asked an old woman the reason. "Oh, sir," she replied, "we ken ye're sound, but these young birkies need to be looked after."

A youth, who was being reprimanded for playing marbles on Sunday, was asked, "Do you know where little boys go who play marbles on Sundays?" He had not been sufficiently taught in regard to a future state, and answered quite innocently, "Oh, yes. Some on 'em goes to the common, and some on 'em goes down to the river."

An old clergyman of seventy, and his daughter of twenty-eight, both highly educated and accomplished, have been discovered living as hermits about thirty miles from Chicago. They have lived thus in most outrageous filth, and with no diet but corn bread for twelve years.

Here is a peculiarly French description of the people of Bavaria: "The Bavarians are a happy people. They have money which brings happiness, and a king who makes music. They drink much and often, and smoke as they drink. They sleep long, eat five times a day, and make love between their meals."
