Issued Mondays and Thursdays and Contains All the Cream of the Daily and Saturday News.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Miss Jennings to Return.—Miss Louise Jennings will be home tomorrow from Chicago where she has been studying the fine arts.

Recovering From Operations.—Mrs. Hattie P. Pickett and Mrs. Malcom are recovering from operations at the Holy Cross Hospital, L. D. S. hospitals respectively.

Dipping Island Sheep.—Veterinarian Broadhurst and assistants from the local Bureau of Animal Industry are on Fremont Island dipping the sheep being pastured there.

Distribute Health Laws.—The state board of health has issued in pamphlet form a digest of the Laws of Utah, relating to the public health. The pamphlets will be generally distributed.

Weather Bureau to Move.—The U. S. weather bureau will begin Saturday, moving its office from the old building to the new building on the corner of the Dooly building to the Boston block, so that by the first of the month the complete transfer will have been made.

Represent Utah Bankers.—G. H. Butler, R. R. Sharkey, L. C. Van Voorhis, William McLean and F. M. Michelson are representing the Salt Lake banks and banking houses at the Seattle convention of the American Institute of Banking.

Veterans Need Accommodations.—Letters of inquiry as to accommodations in this city, have been received at G. A. R. headquarters from Indiana, Washington, Minnesota, Colorado, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Oklahoma. Some letters asked for quarters for two or three, and others for parties of 10 and 20.

Warden Pratt's Guests.—Sheriff Oscar Beebe of Emery county brought up yesterday afternoon to the state prison, Lamar Killpatrick, Alvin Larsen and Magnus Knudsen to serve six months for breaking into a Huntington saloon while intoxicated, and William Akelund to serve three years for forgery committed at Ferron.

Boys Having Great Time.—Mr. Holmington of the Y. M. C. A. returned from Geneva, report on Utah lake, where he reports that the boys are enjoying themselves immensely. They are to climb Timpanogas and go up Provo canyon; they are swimming, fishing and enjoying themselves in every way possible. The camp is 10 feet above the level of the lake.

Another Flood Claim.—N. J. Jergensen, who lives at Colorado and Lena streets, presented a claim yesterday against the city for $540 for damages to his property from the flood. His garden was washed out which he valued at $50, four dozen fowls were drowned for which he claims $40, and his house and live elsewhere and he wants $400 for general damages.

Labor in Convention.—The executive committee of the State Federation of Labor has ordered a special train Sunday morning for the delegates to the state convention to be held at Ogden on that day. The convention will discuss the erection of a $100,000 building in this city to be called Labor Temple; also, legislation prohibiting horse race betting, and the establishment of free employment agencies.

Public Service Men Here.—W. H. Schott of Chicago, consulting engineer of the Salt Lake Public Service company, James M. Butler, attorney for the company, and J. W. Dages, a wholesale merchant at Columbus, Ohio, are in the city, representing the company in the city, and the public service company in the east. Manager J. J. Chambers and Engineer Hornung are escorting the visitors about and answering questions.

Living Flag Plans.—William A. Vetzell, who is in charge of the formation of the living flag for the Grand Army encampment, desires to meet the captains of the flag Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, at the Commercial club building. A captain has been appointed for every 25 children taking part in the flag, and he desires to meet them in uniform with regalia, bands and banners. Features of the program will be a wedding ceremony, the most popular woman is to receive a gold watch and chain, and the most popular Eagle a charm. There will be a tug of war between teams and other interesting events.

Eagles to Fly High.—Fraternal Order of Eagles will meet in annual picnic July 15 at Lagunita. It is believed there will be 4,000 Eagles from over the state, many being in uniform with regalia, bands and banners. Features of the program will be a wedding ceremony, the most popular woman is to receive a gold watch and chain, and the most popular Eagle a charm. There will be a tug of war between teams and other interesting events.

Mrs. C. L. Stevenson Dead.—Mrs. A. M. Valden of this city received word last evening from Santa Fe, N. M., of the death of Mrs. C. L. Stevenson, the widow of the late Colonel C. L. Stevenson of this city who was one of the best known civil engineers in the west, and a close friend of Major Wilkes. The remains of Mrs. Stevenson will be brought to Salt Lake for interment by interment of her husband in Mt. Olivet. Four sons and two daughters survive them, one being Mrs. James L. Seligman of Santa Fe. She was 72 years old.

SHIP LEVIATHAN DOLY LAUNCHED

Daughter of the Governor Breaks Bottle of Champagne Over Her Prow.

MENU, MUSIC AND SPEECHES.

President Joseph F. Smith Groves Reminiscent Over the Growth of The Big Lake Pleasure Resort.

Saltair's big new cafe was named with appropriate ceremony last evening and the event celebrated with due éclat while some 300 invited guests sampled the viands and service provided by the chef, and pronounced them good.

Prior to the assembling of the guests on the banquet deck, Miss Alice Spry was given an opportunity to rehearse her role when the battleship Utah is launched from the ship yard. There was no launching, however, but the bottle of champagne was broken in the regulation way as the daughter of the chief executive pronounced the words "I christen thee 'Leviathan,' and McClellan's superb orchestra of 50 pieces played "The Star Spangled Banner."

The outing was voted an unqualified success from the time the party left Salt Lake at 5:45 in the special until they returned about midnight. The gathering was representative of Salt Lake's business life with the clergy and laity judiciously intermingled. Churchmen of various creeds, merchants, bankers and all lines of enterprise were represented. For two hours they discussed a delicious repast, then listened to speeches and adjourned in a body to the Hippodrome where the attractions provided by Martin Beck were voted the best summer show yet.

There were a number of novel innovations in evidence at the banquet, notable among them being the abolition of the French menu card and the substitution in its stead of an illustrated guide menu text, which provided an entertaining guessing contest between courses. A program of the musical selections rendered by McClellan's augmented orchestra, lay beside each plate, while the strains wafted over the sunset illumined waters of the lake.

GOVERNOR SPRY.

At the conclusion of the dinner, Joseph Nelson on behalf of the management of Saltair welcomed the guests and introduced Governor William Spry. The chief executive spoke briefly, thanking the management for the splendid entertainment afforded and then dwelling on the excellent idea of bringing people of all parties and creeds together for social enjoyment. He then threw a few verbal bouquets at the enterprise of the management in building such a splendid resort on the waters of Great Salt Lake, and then struck a reminiscent vein and drew some comparisons between the big resort with its numerous attractions and the simple pleasures of the old days when the early pioneers built hoveys on the shore of the lake. He closed with a strong appeal to all to pull together in the up-building of the great State of Utah.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH F. SMITH.

President Joseph F. Smith was the next speaker, and he, too, was in a reminiscent mood. He went into detail regarding the first move toward building the railroad and Saltair pavilion and asserted that the main thought of the originators was to establish a pleasure resort over the waters of the lake far enough from the shore to be free from nuisances, snags and flies, where entertainment could be had of a high moral character and where the tired man and woman could enjoy themselves and rest from the heat of the city; a resort, in fact, that would be in every way desirable to the best citizens. President Smith stated that he was one of three men who explored the lake for a suitable site, and decided on the location of Saltair. When the first trip was made, 3,000 feet from the shore line, he said, the water covered the site from three to six feet in depth. He then reviewed the receding of the water, which fell away until the lake bed was about the same as the pioneers found it in 1848. Since then the water rose again and the speaker maintained that the presumption was that it would continue to rise and the section of the lake being no navigable. "Although for a time," he said, "it did appear that a great mistake had been made and for a series of years it looked as though the original promoters had an elephant on their hands, but to state that the original owners were glad to get Saltair off their hands into the keeping of younger men who, perhaps, were more progressive in the operation of a pleasure resort and who would make something out of it. He expressed himself glad that the elephant had turned into a leviathan, and then closed by complimenting the management, the service and the music, all of which he designated as being of the highest possible character.
