The person who will masticate it freely just before beginning to speak will not before the worlds were made." be troubled with hoarseness.

It may be said that knowledge alone will never insure right action, and that is true; yet it is one important factor.' If there are some intelligent and well-informed people who, with a clear idea of the evil results that are to follow, deliberately choose the evil and refuse the good, there is a far larger number who go astray and commit all sorts of faults from thoughtlessness or ignorance of the inevitable consequences.

At the election of eless orator at Vale College, the other day, there were more votes cast than there were students present, and it is said that the balleting was preceded by "bargains," "deals," "charges of frand" and the usual wrangling of a political primary. From this it ap safety if disputes should arise, and mit the sin unto death. Who bepears that in addition to boating, that is "the living oracles." toot-ball, and general athletics, the Yale student is educated in "statesmanship."

The farmer knows he cannot change the species of the seed and tuske tye yield wheat or barley oats; but he also knows that he can bring many influences to bear upon the growth of each plant after its aind-that he can so accommodate its relations to the sun, air, water and soil as to insure its better devalopment, or to stunt and impoverish speaking of His power over death: It. So, if we learn the true lesson of heredity, we shall know that human teudencies, real and actual as they are, depend for their development largely upon the way they are treated.
