

CONTESTED ELECTION.

TERRITORY OF UTAH.

Before the Committee on Elections of the House of Representatives of the United States, Washington, D. C., 1874.

The sitting member was lawfully elected and returned. He was elected by a majority so overwhelming that I feel reluctant to consume the time of this committee by replying to the attempt of the contestant's counsel to prove the character or reduce the number of his votes. The contestant offered evidence which tends to show that there were three distinct classes of voters in the Territory of Utah, the judges of election permitted minors and unqualified persons, males and females, to vote under the act of the Territorial Legislature, passed February 12th, 1870. He insists that this taints the polls at all the scores or hundreds of voting precincts in Utah. As I have previously shown, none of his depositions are admissible evidence in this case. But suppose them all to be admitted. Of all his witnesses, only five, C. D. Handy, on page 11, Leachman, on page 16, G. Wencoslaw, on page 34, and James Wood, on page 29, testify to any knowledge of the election on the election day. Only two other witnesses, namely, M. V. Ashbrook, on page 18, and John Leachman, on page 34, testify to anything like knowledge on this subject. James Wood, who was present at the polls in Provo City, testifies as follows, on page 16:

"In my opinion, illegal votes were cast, at that election; they were of unqualified voters; and children voted to my knowledge, that were under age."

John Leachman, of Provo City, says, on page 16:

"I was present at the last delegate election. Votes were cast by foreigners not naturalized."

S. B. Moore, also of Provo City, swears, on page 17:

"I was present at the last delegate election; cannot swear that illegal votes were cast. In my opinion illegal votes were cast at the last delegate election. I saw a Danish woman go to the polls and ask the judge whom she should vote for, where to put her ticket, etc.; she wanted to vote the church ticket."

M. V. Ashbrook, also of Provo City, testifies, on page 18:

"I saw women vote. Do not know if they were all naturalized. At other elections I saw women vote that were not citizens."

"The judge of the election at the polls objected to the challenge of voters on the side of George H. Maxwell. Moreover, women votes were not allowed at all to be challenged on the ground, I suppose, he knew they were not citizens, and the judge received their votes."

The claim that this proof impeaches and destroys the three polls named is simply monstrous. There is no other testimony, whether loose or precise, as to facts or as to particular polling places. There are some sprawling expressions of opinion as to generally, but they do not contain the slightest infinitesimal admixture of competent evidence applicable to this case. The contestant's demand that he be set aside, on account of proof which, whatever it amounts to, relates only to Salt Lake, Beaver and Provo precincts, is too preposterous for serious debate. If such a charge had been launched on such proof by anybody else than the saint as the contestant against such a sinner as the sitting member, I should say that the contestant might as well attempt to prove that all the dogs in Utah were red dogs by making proof of only three of them, and those yellow pups, destined, presumably, to become red dogs on arriving at maturity.
