A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."

FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The following bills were reported and placed on the calendar:

The Senate bill fixing the salaries of the judges of the United States District Courts at $5000 (Mr. Coke dissenting).

Among the bills introduced and referred were the following:

Dawes, to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to fix the amount of compensation to be paid for a right of way for railroads in the Indian reservations in certain contingencies.

Stewart, to require the purchase and coinage of not less than $4,000,000 worth of silver bullion per month. He said the bill involved no new principle, and asked that it be read the first and second time and laid on the table. So ordered.

Stewart offered a resolution (which was laid over) calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for a statement of the amount of silver bullion offered to the government since the passage of the silver coinage act, and by whom and at what prices; also of the amounts of silver bullion purchased each month during the same period; also whether the question of India consol bills entered to any extent into the determination of the market price of silver bullion in the United States.

Stewart also offered a resolution (which was adopted) directing the director of the mint to send information as to the foreign silver coins designated in his circular, the amount of pure silver in each coin, and whether the value of such silver coins (as so designated) has been estimated by him according to the pure silver contained in them respectively.

The Senate then proceeded to the consideration of the railroad land forfeiture bill.

Mitchell offered an amendment confirming to the City of Portland, Oregon, the right of way and riparian rights heretofore conveyed to it by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for water works purposes. Adopted.

Paddock offered an amendment providing that nothing in the rights granted to the purchasers or settlers by the forfeiture act of March 3, 1887, shall be construed as repealing, altering or amending that act. Adopted.

The international copyright bill was then taken up, and was opposed by Beck and favored by Vest in speeches.

The Senate then adjourned.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The House went into committee of the whole on the tariff bill and Grosvenor (Ohio) took the floor. It was strange he said that the democratic party arrayed itself, led by an ex-smelter statesman and the President of the United States, in defense of the international revenue system; that suddenly the democratic party had become the champion of that system. For twenty years the gentlemen representing the Southern States had not only denounced the general system of internal revenue, but had opposed all efforts of the government to enforce the law, and had so thoroughly educated the people of the South into the belief that the system was tyrannous, that they had builded up a great sentiment in the South, that to defeat and destroy that system by fraud and violence and bloodshed and murder, was but the assertion of the God-given right of rebellion against the tyrannous enactment of a tyrannous government. Now the democratic party directed by the message of the President, has ordained that the most sacred monument of taxation in the country was now and must be in the future, the internal revenue system. Discussing briefly the speech of the gentleman from Minnesota, (Nelson), he quoted a portion of the speech, in which the gentleman from Minnesota placed free wool and free lumber against free whisky and tobacco. When the gentleman undertook to put the republicans, who favored the repeal of the internal revenue law in the category of being in favor of free whisky and free tobacco, he made a great mistake. The proposition to repeal the tax on whisky was to remit the power of taxation to States and to permit the States to take the place of the General Government. The mission of statesmen was to see to it that the laboring men of this country should have higher wages than the laboring men of other countries. He quoted statistics to show that the

was prosperous and he argued that the number of mortgages on the farms of the western states, which had been absurdly exaggerated by the gentleman from Missouri (Bland), indicated not that the farmers had grown poorer, but that they had borrowed money, either for the purpose of improving their property they already own, or else to buy out their neighbors who had concluded to go farther west. The prosperity of the country had met with no check until the Morrison bill menaced the industries of the United States. The disaster which was threatened by the Morrison bill would be quadrupled by the passage of the Mills bill. He looked for the restoration of the republican party to power which laid the deep and strong foundation upon which the great tariff structure had been builded. The party had grown wiser by the assaults made upon the system by its enemies, and it would then be able to reburnish and rebeautify the magnificent structure which was today the pride and glory of the American citizen. [Applause.]

Raynor (Maryland), did not think the duty on glass should be reduced to the extent proposed in the bill, but there would be plenty of duty left to make up for all the differences in the rate of wages here and abroad, and if any glass manufacturer put down wages he would be using the bill as a pretext for oppressing his employees, but no matter how the bill came from the democratic party, he would vote for it. [Applause.]

Nutting regretted to hear the gentleman say that although there was a wrong in the bill which put thousands of laborers at a disadvantage, he should vote for it.

Raynor replied he would follow his great party on this great issue. He had no right to look at any industry in his district when the question before the country was whether a systematic plan of robbery and plunder should be continued. Passing to the consideration of the question of trusts, he said unless heroic steps were taken to impede their advance, private enterprises would be seriously affected and the prices of the principal commodities of the country would be arbitrarily fixed.

THE STANDARD OIL TRUST

was one of fraud, corruption and oppression.

Cannon (Illinois) inquired whether the gentleman did not know whether the present administration had appointed one of the principal representatives of the Standard Oil Company, Secretary of the Navy, and that another representatives was a senator of his party from Ohio.

Raynor replied that if a man was a son-in-law of somebody connected with the trust it did not mix him up with the fraud. He believed he could vouch for Secretary Whitney that he had not the slightest connection with the Standard Oil Company, but it did not make any difference to him who was connected with it, he did not care whether republicans or democrats, greenbackers or silver men, it was the greatest fraud upon the people that had ever been perpetrated. If the democratic party struck down monopolies it would receive, under the leadership of him who led it now and who was as dauntless a champion as patriotism ever possessed, and as fearless a foe as corruption ever encountered, the renewed fealty of the people. [Applause.] But if he locked hands with monopoly the handwriting was on the wall, for treachery never could triumph, and a lie could never live. [Applause.]

Henderson (Iowa) said the president had thrown the gauntlet at the feet of protection and stood boldly up as the champion of free trade. He criticised the bill as crippling where it should support, and tearing down where it should be built up. The farming industry had a greater interest in the protection than any other industry in the country. The application of free trade, or of such a reduction of tariff as would throw out of employment the non-agriculturist would be a blow that the farmer would feel deeply. He warned the laboring man against any party, president or lawmaker, whose acts would quicken the trade of England, while in a comparative way it would injure the manufacturing industries of their own country.

Gallinger (New Hampshire) opposed the bill, and at the conclusion of his address the committee rose and the House adjourned.

CASE OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Complicated with Gravel. How Help came at last. A Lucky Woman.

I have long resolved that I would apprise you of the deep sense of obligation which I feel. There is nothing which I now enjoy that I do not owe to the happy chance of having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my Kidneys over nine years ago and from which I never expected to recover. First there was increasing pains in the small of my back and in my loins. I was feverish with no appetite and no sleep. I was compelled to use a cane when I walked, and I finally got so weak that I could not stand alone. The distress in my back was terrible, I was burning up with a fever or constantly shivering as if cold. In a few months my physicians said I had Bright's disease, which was indeed alarming information. To add to my affliction after I had been ill about two years, I had a bad attack of gravel. When this made its appearance my physician gave up my case and I resigned myself to die. Up to this time I had four different doctors attend me, the best in the country; yet I constantly grew worse. Six years ago, last June, how well I remember the day, I saw Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy of Rondout, N. Y., advertised in our paper. I purchased a bottle, paying the price of One Dollar, and used it faithfully. After using one bottle I threw away my cane and went to New York on a visit, and three bottles cured me, this was six years ago. I have never had a return of gravel, nor of the pains or weakness in the back, and though I am over sixty years of age I am now vigorous and strong as I was in my prime.—Mrs. Emeline P. Misner, Burg Hill, Ohio.

Avoid making a mistake, by remembering the name of medicine, Favorite Remedy. Price $1.00, made at Rondout, N. Y.
