CLUB CHAT

The Daughters of Utah Pioneers met on Wednesday with Mrs. M. Y. Duggan, and a most interesting session was held. The program consisted of a sketch of the life of Heber C. Kimball by Mrs. Joseph E. Smith, a sketch of the life of Brigham Young by Mrs. Morris Young, vocal solos by Miss Connie McAllister and Miss Robinson, a recitation by Miss Frost, and two readings by the quartette Geo. D. Peyer, H. G. Whitney, J. Owen and J. D. Spencer, who gave in beautiful style, "Beauty's Eyes," and "America." The society then adjourned to meet on October 24 at the home of Mrs. Emily Clawson, No. 32 Fifth East street.

The Cleo meets on October 7, and begins the reading of McCarty's "England in the Nineteenth Century." The topic for the afternoon being the "Foundation of the London and the Chartist Collapse." Miss Catherine Culmer will be chairman.

ent office, Templeton building on Monday, Sept. 22. An interesting program was rendered, consisting of a short reading from the history of Europe in the Fifth century, by Mrs. Maria W. Wilcox; and a paper, giving a brief sketch of the goddess Diana, with a description of the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, by Mrs. J. Bruce. This was followed by a biographical paper on one of the early writers of the Fifth century by Mrs. M. Y. Taylor. The program ended with a mention of current events. The Reapers' club adjourned for three weeks, until Monday, October 13.

The Reviewers will meet on Oct. 6, and the topic of the day will be "The Kindergarten," discussed by Mrs. Coray and "Long Distance Transmission," by Mrs. Evans.

further illustrate the literature of Peys's time, lyrics poems of the period were read by Mrs. Isicheart, and Mrs. Loomis and Miss Kimball gave two delightful piano duets. It was open day and a large number of guests were present. Refreshments were served after the program and a delightful social time enjoyed.

The meeting of the Pan-Hellenic society, with Mrs. A. J. Corfman, is postponed till the last Thursday in September, and will be held at the same place.

The Women's club will hold its opening meeting on October 7, and the topic will be the Los Angeles Biennial. The chief subject for the year will be French history.

There is no woman's club in the state of New York, and probably not in the United States, like the one on the Onondaga reservation, nine miles south of Syracuse, known as the Hiawatha. It is a branch of the Onondaga County Women's Christian Temperance union, and its members are full-blooded Indians.

These women resemble their white sister in their eagerness to embrace the club movement. They hold regular meetings, carried on under the strictest rules of parliamentary law, and send delegations to conventions. It is not only with the temperance cause that Hiawatha concerns itself. It has a flourishing social side, and gives frequent entertainments in which all the young braves and dusky beauties delight. It has also established a flower mission, and during the summer great baskets of wild flowers are gathered by the members and their children and carried into Syracuse, where they are distributed among the patients in the various city hospitals. The women of Hiawatha are also seriously considering the establishment of a circulating library, the funds for which they hope to raise among themselves.

The union was started early in 1901, when a membership of five Onondaga women, the youngest of whom, Charlotte L. Fore, was only fifteen years old. Since that time twelve new members have been added, and Hiawatha is an important factor in the little community of 600 persons. Only Onondaga have so far been admitted to membership, for, although there are representatives of several other tribes on the reservation, they are not very popular with the rightful owners of the settlement. It is an interesting fact, and one perhaps not generally known, that there is as much ill-feeling between different Indian races as between certain more civilized nations, and it is one of the bitterest grounds of grievance among the Onondagas that at least one-third of the population of their reservation is made up of aliens. The president of Hiawatha is Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pierce. She has a more musical name of stately presence, with an easy and unembarrassed manner and a very musical voice, both in singing and speaking. She is a well-educated woman and a great reader, and has given much thought to the questions of the day. She has a natural gift for expressing herself, and can talk well on many more subjects than some white women who have had double her advantages.

Mrs. Pierce's home is situated upon one of the pleasantest streets of the village. Her yard is filled with beautiful shade trees, and her garden with lovely and carefully tended flowers. Gardening is one of her pet pursuits, but not the only one, as will soon be seen upon entering her house. Bookshelves containing the best works of standard authors, a few well-chosen and neatly framed pictures, a piano organ, piled with music, and dainty bits of embroidery, dainty soft cushions, and many other little luxuries help to make up a comfortable and essentially feminine abode.

Mrs. Pierce plays well, and she sings the quaint old Indian melodies that have come down from generation to generation from her ancestors. "Soon there will be no one left who can sing the old songs," she says sadly. "The full-blooded Indians are only a remnant now, and soon they will be only a memory. They are rapidly losing all their individuality of life and customs, and but few more generations will have gone before they practically are obliterated."

The regret which Mrs. Pierce expresses on this score does not mean that she disapproves of the education of the Indian. She is one of its warmest advocates, not less for women than for men. Her oldest granddaughter, Miss Frances Cook, is attending Lincoln institute, in Philadelphia, and her niece, Miss Jessie Waterman, is a graduate of Hampton. Those of Mrs. Pierce's other grandchildren (she has eight besides Miss Cook) who are old enough to be in school attend the reservation school. During the summer Mrs. Pierce's pleasant yard is the favorite meeting-place for the club members. They bring their babies or their sewing and discuss plans for increasing the growth and influence of their society.

Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, chairman of the committee of the G. F. W. C. to consider the question of establishing permanent headquarters somewhere near the center of the country, is strongly impressed with the value which uniting the different branches of federation work under one roof would have upon the concerted effort of the organization. Mrs. Decker believes that national headquarters would answer to the criticism of the General Federation that is so often made, namely, that its work is diffuse and lacks co-ordination.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many millions of bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Rescued From the Dead.

C. W. Landis, "Porter" for the Oriental Hotel, Chanute, Kan., says: "I know what it was to suffer with neuralgia, dead I did, and I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Snow Liniment and I was 'rescued from the dead.' I tried to get some more, but before I had 'rescued' my bottle, I was cured entirely. I am telling 'de truth too.' 50c and $1.00 at Z. C. M. I. Drug store.
