While the legislators from the north are with us, they are our guests, and as such are entitled to respect, notwithstanding any broad differences that may exist between them and the majority of the people of Utah. It is not, hewever, out of place, in a dispassionate way, to state that a recent action of the Idaho Legislative body appears to the people here to be entirely outside their proper purview. We refer to the adoption of a memorial to Congress against the admission of Utan into the Union as a State, and favoring the enactment of a national law under which this Territory would be ruled by a legislative commission.
