INTEREST IN THE JACKSON-JEFFRIES FIGHT

Discussing a Railroad to the Yukon—Fell Three Stories—E. J. Croley Fatally Wounded—Miscellaneous.

Bell and Kent formerly of Council Bluffs, Ia., have been awarded the contract to furnish the plans of the Montana Central building, the cost in the neighborhood of $250,000 and to be completed before 1899.

Messrs. Reavis, Cowan and Edwards, three of the convicts who recently escaped from the Idaho penitentiary, were captured near Namon, Sunday morning. Out of the twelve that escaped only two are now at large.

David Murray, general manager of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company at Salt Lake, closed a contract Sunday with a mill at Helena, Mont., for 4,000 telephone poles. They will be used between Missoula, Mont. and Mullen, Ida.

The steamer schooner Seattle, enroute from Seattle to Taku with forty passengers, is still at Port Townsend, Wash., having made two ineffectual attempts to cross the straits of Fuca. Both times the schooner was forced to put back on account of the high wind and heavy sea.

Henry Long, a pioneer of Riverside, Cal., 75 years of age, fell from a window of the third story of the Holyrood Hotel Friday morning and received fatal injuries. Long was sitting at screen in one of the hotel windows, when he became dizzy, missed his footing and fell to the pavement many feet below. No one saw the accident, but the crash of the fall soon brought an excited crowd to the scene.

The American ship Llewellyn J. Morse is stuck in the mud in Oakland creek, San Francisco bay, and is by the Alaska Packers' association, which is getting ready a big fleet of vessels to send north in the Alaska salmon canneries. She was to run on the mudflat during a very high tide, and thus far the concerted efforts of the three largest tugs in San Francisco harbor have failed to pull her off.

The disengaged tonnage in San Francisco is smaller than it has been for years. It is a question as to whether since San Francisco has been a port of sail since San Francisco has been a port of this country has there been as little vessels in the harbor. The large grain crop of last year cleaned the port of deep sea ships and the good discoveries in Alaska and the rush of vessels to the North have provided occupation for all available vessels.

The most severe snowstorm of the season is prevailing in this section of Kalispel, Mont. At one o'clock Sunday morning it began snowing and at six o'clock in the evening, thirteen inches of snow had fallen, and at that hour the wind changed to the north and the snow is drifting badly. The storm is reaching the mountains, but cuts and ravines are almost completely impassable, making railroading very difficult.

Ex-Street Commissioner E. J. Croley of Sacramento, Cal., was shot and probably fatally wounded Sunday night by one of the burglars who was attempting to rob his house. Although sixty years of age and entirely unarmed, Croley grappled with one of the men and was about to overcome him when the burglar broke loose and fired two shots into Croley's breast. The wounded man, who is not expected to survive, is one of the most prominent contractors in California.

Cheyenne Sun-Leader: Governor Richards is in receipt today of letters from Jackson's Hole settlers demurring to the unjust imputation of the Salt Lake Herald that outlaws infest their region. The letter stated that the country was as free from this element as any place in the state, and no trouble whatever has been given the citizens by outlaws. Such reports, in addition to being very unjust, do great injury to a community, and it is unfortunate that such mistakes are made.

At a meeting of capitalists interested in the construction of a railroad to the Yukon country, W. C. Alberger presented a report based upon recent explorations and from observations made during an exhaustive surveying trip to Alaska, over which route a line to the Copper river was not only feasible, but practicable. It was decided to organize a party of surveyors which will start as soon as weather conditions will permit, probably by May 15. The program is to start for Orca and proceed up the Copper river to its head and thence across to the Yukon to the junction with the American boundary line.

The Transcontinental freight bureau will hold its first annual meeting at Monterey, Cal., today (Monday). Representatives of nearly all the leading railroads in the United States will be in attendance. W. A. Bissell, who was for years the general agent at the Atlantic & Pacific and is now assistant freight traffic manager of the Santa Fe, reached San Francisco Sunday evening. In regard to the meeting he said: "My idea is that we shall talk over tariff and line them up. I think that in some directions they could be improved, and I should be glad to see them put up a little."

Skagway has had another murder, according to the officers of the steamers Al-Ki and Portland, which arrived at Seattle, Wash., direct from Lynn canal Sunday. On last Monday night a laboring man was shot by a colored woman of the lower class at the entrance to her cabin in the saloon district of Skaguay. He died shortly before the steamers sailed from Dyea morning. The murder was the result of trouble which began early Monday evening over the discharge of a pistol in the street. It was thought that the woman would be released, as all the circumstances seemed to justify her plea of self-defense.

A short time after noon Friday the body of W. D. Cole was found lying upon the rear porch of his ranch house, about two miles south of San Jose, Cal. The discovery was made by one of the herdsmen, who immediately notified the authorities. Upon investigation it was found that deceased had undoubtedly been seated upon the top step of the porch, cleaning his forty-four caliber rifle, when, by a careless movement, the gun was fired and the bullet penetrated the heart, causing instant death. Deceased was a battlefield veteran and was well known at Mountain View, and also in San Benito, having been a resident of both places many years. He was 52 years of age and leaves no family.

The Baker City Democrat says that Superintendent Grainger, formerly of the Lehi, Utah, beet-sugar factory, has arrived at La Grande to reside and superintend the projected sugar factory, upon which active work will begin very soon. Charles Woodhouse, president of the Lehi factory, is also at La Grande. Mr. Woodhouse will this year assist the Grande Ronde sugar-beet raisers by directing and informing them in preparation of the ground, seeding and care of the beets, from the time the plants first come up until they are ready to be dug and delivered to the factory. The Utah expert states conditions in Union county are superior to the vicinity of Lehi, Utah, as no irrigation will be required for the Oregon crop.

A dispatch from Tatla, Alaska, under date of the 11th inst. says: Frank Clements of Hillsboro, Or., was shot and killed at Sheep Camp this morning by Gottlieb Schneider of Howard county, Ia. A lynching was averted only by the prompt action of the officers getting the murderer out of the way. He is now in jail at this place. Clements lived several hours, but failed to give an account of the quarrel. Schneider claims self-defense as cause for the shooting. He tells a story of several quarrels with Clements, from whom he had purchased part of an outfit. In the last quarrel, which ended in the tragedy, Schneider says: "I grabbed him and he reached around and got a big knife, and said he would cut my head off. I reached for my revolver and cocked it, holding my thumb on the hammer, which would not stay up, and would not drop. Clements hit my hand and knocked my thumb off, which discharged the gun. He ran sideways crying that he had been shot, and I went out and gave myself up to the officers." Schneider was surrounded by the men, and threats were made of hanging him, but he was gotten away before the threat was put into execution. Several more gunfights and sensational deaths were arrested and sent to jail today on suspicion of being the murderers of Burn Roberts, who was found dead yesterday. One of them named Corbett and a bullet wound in his shoulder, stated that he had been shot in the melee. A saloon and lodging-house belonging to H. Dennison burned Saturday and two more perished. The wife of one of the dead men says her husband had considerable money, which is now missing. It is supposed the house was set on fire.

A great deal of interest is manifest in the result of the fight between Peter Jackson and Jim Jeffries which will take place at Coffroth's pavilion, San Francisco, tomorrow (Tuesday) night. Both men have finished their work and are resting quietly preparatory to the last week's training. Jackson has not shown much good form in his practice that those who thought him a has been are now hiring their money on him. He is apparently strong, and as far as boxing is concerned, has lost none of his cleverness or agility; still hitting those quick, peculiar blows that won him so many battles. Jackson is now about 187 pounds, but will be taken off not 10 or 15 pounds. A close observer of pugilists has this to say of Jackson's chances: "There is no doubt that the contest depends upon Jackson's vitality. If he can prove that to his cost, all preceedents concerning age and fatal blows go to sea with the spray to him, then he should prove the winner. I believe that Jackson will endure the battle better for at a short time realizing that the longer it lasts the better it will be for Jeffries. However, if Jeffries decides to force matters he will find in Jackson a defensive fighter who has no equal among the heavyweights, and while Jeffries may rough it a little, he will not rush a la Sharkey. Youth and strength are the two principal aids that Jim Jeffries will have on his side. His youth and strength will be pitted against the science of Jackson, and the ruin has generally been that youth tells more than anything in pugilistic encounters where both men are more or less experienced. Jeffries has a trifle advantage in height and seem in weight. He is half an inch taller than Jackson, measuring six feet one inch, and weighs now by about 20 pounds. He will enter the ring at 215 pounds. All things considered it will be a contest between the two largest men in the pugilistic world today, and has been very aptly styled "The battle of the giants." The betting favors Jeffries at 10 to 8, with the prospects of the odds evening up by Tuesday night.

Atlanta a Natural Base.

During the war it was the key to the confederacy, and to all intents and purposes the capital was decided against the South when Hood evacuated Atlanta. Gen. Joe Johnson declared that he intended to make his final stand at Atlanta, and it is well known that his plans were all matured to that end when the political generals and the newspapers brought about his removal from the command.

Gen. Sherman, after the war was over, continued to recognize the position of Atlanta as unique from a military point of view in case of a foreign war. The facilities of Atlanta as a distributing point for troops and supplies have largely increased since 1865, when Gen. Sherman recognized its importance. The city is now in direct touch with all the prominent points of the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

This is how it happens that, at the very first suspicion or symptom of foreign complications, the commander of the department of the East comes straight to Atlanta. The city is the gate to Southern trade from the commercial point of view, and as Gen. Sherman says, "a natural base of supplies."—Atlanta Constitution.

Boys' Clothing.
Amid the numerous claims of boys' clothiers, one fact stands out positive—we're doing the business that's all we care to know about the general trade tendency. Boys'clothing must be just so to catch the mothers fancy, and strongly made to stand much careless wear. A romping boy has no liking for restraint—there should be no clothes in need of it—we gladly accept the responsibility of selling suits that'll wear longer and look better than those of other makers. There's nothing made better than the kind you find here, and the price is no more than you'll pay for cheaper stuff elsewhere. Our spring line is now complete and it's worth your quick investigation. Knee pants suits for boys start at $1.50 and run the scale of clothing gradness up to $7.50, with price stops in between at $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $4.50, $5 and $6. They come with large sailor collars, ages 3 to 8, and regular double breasted, 9 to 15 years.

The New Blouse Waists Are Here,
And a handsome lot they are. Some white with embroidered collars, some with colored collars and cuffs, embroidered; some with all-over embroidered collars and cuffs, some with silk embroidered collars and cuffs. Prices from 50 cents to $3.50.
