PEOPLES PARTY TICKET.

Election, Tuesday, November 2, 1886

FOR DELEGATE TO THE FIFTIETH CONGRESS,

JOHN T. CAINE.

THE ANDOVER CREED.

WHAT is described as "the burning religious question of the hour" in Boston and New England, and which is a matter of deep interest among members of the congregational denomination everywhere, is the disputed dogma of the Andover Creed relative to a future probation. That creed in its present form forbids the idea of repentance after death, but for some years past a broader view of man's future estate has been spreading among the ministers and lay members of that sect, occasioning a vast amount of controversy. In fact a division of the entire denomination over this question has been feared.

Andover Theological Seminary is the ecclesiastical center of the sect. It is the seat of learning from which is sent forth its authoritative teachings, and hence the term "Andover Creed" as applied to its articles of faith. To receive an education and ordination at Andover is the ambition of the theological students of the sect, and the veneration in which this old seat of learning is held by Congregationalists generally, is marked. Every five years the entire faculty assemble in a solemn manner, listen to the reading of the Andover Creed, and re-affirm their implicit and unshaken faith in its truth. Thus far the professors of the Seminary have all observed this rite at the set time, though some of them have been charged with hypocrisy for so doing.

The matter of the disputed doctrine is now likely to be brought to a speedy issue. Three prominent Congregationalists of the old school, two of them retired pastors, have brought charges of heresy against five professors of the Seminary, who are members of the editorial staff of the Andover Review, a heretofore authoritative organ of the denomination. The alleged heresy consists in the idea "that heathens who died without hearing the Gospel have another chance for salvation instead of going straight to hell."

It appears that Andover Theological Seminary is in great part supported by a trust fund conditioned upon the doctrinal views of the professors, and here lies the ground in which the dispute will probably be carried into the civil courts. An ecclesiastical tribunal termed the Board of Visitors is shortly to hold a session at Andover for the purpose of determining whether or not some of the faculty of the Seminary are apostatizing, and the indications now are that there will be an extensive schism in the sect throughout the United States, as well as a gigantic law suit in the civil courts, imperiling the existence of its principal school of training for ministers.

It is gratifying to notice the numerous indications that the teachings of the Elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints are gradually leavening the religious lump. The doctrine which is causing the present commotion among the subscribers to the Andover Creed has been proclaimed by them for fifty years. It is simply the doctrine of salvation for those who die without a knowledge of the true Gospel, involving the preaching of the divine message to the spirits of the dead. The doctrine, as embodied in the faith of the Saints incorporates the performance of vicarious ordinance work for the departed, that being the principal labor done in Temples erected to the name of the Most High.

THE ELECTIONS.

TUESDAY, November 2d, will be a red-letter day throughout the United States, as the entire lower branch of the national legislature, and indirectly a few of the members of the upper branch, will be chosen. The interest in the contest is therefore widespread, but each locality has a special interest in the result at home, as for example, in New York City the factions are not only struggling for supremacy in the matter of the Congressional delegation, but of the Mayoralty of the city also, the coming being the most important municipal contest, in most respects, ever held there. In Utah, there is not that intense interest in regard to the election that doubtless obtains elsewhere, for the reason that here the organized majority are so much above and beyond the disorganized minority that there is no question as to the result. But we divide our attention to some extent with our northern neighbor, Idaho, that which we bestow upon Utah being of the affirmative and that upon our sister Territory of a negative character—that is, we want some one to win here and some one to lose there. The man in each instance is well known and all our readers know whom we mean. In John T. Caine, the people here have a representative of ability and experience, a man whose every interest is thoroughly identified with those of his constituents, and he will be chosen on that account; whereas, the one we would like to see defeated is a nondescript sojourner and political adventurer; a man whose only claim to the support of even the handful of malcontents who follow him is that he is a "Mormon" oppressor and fire-eater, that being in his limited judgment the popular wave upon which to ride to be wafted to Washington. That man is Fred. T. Dubois. He is the man through whose trickery and deceit a few weak-kneed Democrats were induced to attend his patched-up Republican convention in order to give the gathering the appearance of being a union of the two parties as against "Mormonism" and the "Mormons;" the man who, when the Idaho crusade was at its height, blasphemously proclaimed that none of our people would escape, as he had a "jury that would convict Jesus Christ;" a man whose possessions are his carpet-bag and its contents, and whose stock in trade is his superabundant cheek. As we said before, we would like to hear of this person being defeated, and believe he will be; as to who the victor may be, or to what political faith he may belong, is a matter of slight consequence the way things stand there now. If Dubois can be buried under an avalanche of ballots, it will be a grand thing, a lasting benefit, for Idaho.

THE "BOODLERS."

A SHORT time since—by which we mean a few years ago, it was proposed to construct an elevated railroad in New York City, to traverse the principal streets thereof, but more particularly the chief avenue of traffic and travel—Broadway. Here the trouble began, for the projectors of the scheme could not get permission from the city government to run their track along the street, and as more profit was to be obtained through business in it than perhaps all the other thoroughfares combined, to not gain their point in that respect was equivalent to a barren prospect for the whole scheme. Property owners along Broadway protested against granting the desired franchise with such vigor and demonstrativeness that their clamors could not be ignored, until a more powerful pressure was brought to bear. Wary capitalists and experienced speculators knew just what that pressure was, and how and where to apply it; it was not moral suasion, nor the purchase of property of the malcontents, nor the legal condemnation of any conflicting property, nor anything of that kind; oh, no—they could expend their money and efforts to better advantage, and they did it. A handsome sum was raised—it ran into the millions—and placed at the disposal of certain aldermen of that great city—a city noted for the honesty of its politicians and the purity of its methods. It was not a bribe, of course not; but to statesmen who continuously gave audience to the founder of a great enterprise and attention to the details of that enterprise, all this being apart from their regular duties, and to pay incidental expenses, etc., this small sum was placed at their disposal. The "boodle" was absorbed, the franchise was granted and the Broadway road is now pouring wealth into the exchequer of the company. The aldermen who divided the profits—like the celebrated murderer of Scotland, Burke—have had their names and crimes associated, and now they are known as "Boodlers." Nearly all have been captured, however; a few have escaped to Canada, and a few are already behind bars for long terms, with a prospect of not being separated from their former associates for a great length of time.

The Boston Herald has the following comments on the religious situation:

"Three denominations present themselves just now in an interesting attitude before the American public. The churchmen at Chicago are trying to find a new name for their church, and are not meeting with success in the search. The Congregationalists are in a wrangle over the question whether there is any chance for one to be saved in the next life who has not been a Christian in this. The Unitarians are in a contest whether they shall go to the full lengths of free thought, and take a theistic position, or revert more fully to the faith of the Christian world. Each is making an effort to put itself better in accord with the best life of the age, and is feeling its way cautiously along the lines of practical thought and legitimate development. One ought to have large sympathies with these changes, because they represent attempts to make the churches which are behind them broader and more in accord with the progress of American life. Mere free thought, though many think it delightful, leads nowhere and means nothing; but when it is related to the larger grasp of truths that have been imperfectly developed in current life, it becomes a great power for health of thinking and for wholesome acting on the part of the people at large. One may or may not approve of any one of the changes that are now impending in each of these religious bodies, but the fact that they are not stagnant, that they are not beyond the influence of better ideals and better methods of thinking or working, is full of encouragement for those who look at all religious movement as a part of the best life of the times.

A barber in Newark, New Jersey, has been sued for $200 damages for cutting a boy's hair. It seems that the boy had a clipper that he was taking home to clip his dog. The barber invited the lad into his shop and asked him if he did not want his hair cut. The youth assented in order to see how the clipper worked. The barber thereupon cut the youth's hair tight to his head except a tuft on top, which he left sticking straight up like the ornament on the head of a Comanche Indian. The lad went home, caught cold and could not go to Sunday school because his comrades jibed him. His parents have now gone into court where they demand $200 damages. It would seem that this is a large price for an ordinary hair-cut, but as we have heretofore remarked, Jersey justice is peculiar and there is no knowing what diversions and vagaries it may make. At all events, if the barber is mulcted in $200 it will teach him to take a joke as well as to give one.

"Recently, in Forsyth County, Ga., the headquarters of the holiness agitation in that State, George Tuck and wife and Edward Manning were at the house of Bud Manning. The Scriptures became the topic of conversation. Mrs. Tuck finally expressed her belief that Adam was not the first man God ever made, whereupon Edward Manning denounced her as a liar. Tuck at once plunged his knife into Manning's neck, inflicting a fatal wound. The Scriptural discussion was at once suspended." Such is the language of an exchange, in condensing an account of a religious war on a small scale. Though it was on a small scale, it contained the essential elements of most religious wars, no matter how extensive. One party does not entertain the same religious notions as does the other, hatred, strife and passion are engendered and the stronger seeks to destroy the weaker. This trait of human nature is one of the darkest which the race displays.

The Idaho Democrat of the 20th inst. publishes an affidavit sworn to by D. P. B. Pride, and another sworn to by Mr. Krebs, relative to the political corruption practiced in that Territory at the last election. Mr. Pride is the present Attorney-General of the Territory, and Mr. Krebs is now one of the editors of the Boise Statesman, and was formerly United States Receiver in the land office at Boise. The political condition of that Territory, and the conduct of Dubois and some of his fellow politicians, as set forth in these affidavits, are simply shocking. In his affidavit Mr. Pride relates the manner in which the ballot box was stuffed and fraudulent certificates of election were procured by Du Bois.

It is announced that deep mining on the Comstock lode has been definitely and finally abandoned. Ten years ago the quoted price of Comstock shares listed in the San Francisco exchange was $272,000,000. To-day these same shares represent less than $1,000,000. The difference has probably gone into the pockets of the bonanza kings, who knew when to unload their holdings upon the credulous public. It is a sad story, but we doubt if the lesson it teaches will keep people from getting scorched by the same fire again.

Another Swindle.

INDIANAPOLIS, 25.—For several days rumors have been current that H. J. Sanders, confidential clerk for Sanders, Barnes & Co., pork-packers, and Sanders, Given & Co., licensed warehousemen, had successfully practiced forgery of warehouse receipts. It is just defined that he succeeded in securing about $40,000. It is said that Sanders lost heavily in a Chicago speculation, and finding himself in need of funds issued the forged warehouse receipts, therefore the papers are held by two city banks who claim the receipts are genuine, while the firm say they are forged, and the question will doubtless go to the courts for settlement. Landers has not been seen since Friday morning.

PRONOUNCED SOCIALISTS.

A Fiery and Defiant Address.

CHICAGO, 24.—A meeting of "pronounced Socialists" was held this afternoon to ratify the "United Labor" candidates' nomination. The attendance was limited. J.P. Ducey made the principal speech. After advocating the claims of the candidates, Ducey alluded to the condemned Anarchists. He said: "Last week Phil. Armour spent $3,500 a day for Pinkertons and killed a poor, inoffensive man. Will he be brought before a court? No! Why? If Jesus Christ was brought before Judge Gray, he would be convicted just as were those other Christs now in jail. The present course of this government must be stopped if we have to

to choke out its foul life. The rope is already grown with which capital will attempt to hang you and me if we attempt to tell the truth, but we will tell the truth and not be hung, but if necessary Armour will be." He, Ducey, said further he would tell the truth on the Lake Front next Sunday if he had to do so in front of a Gatling gun and with a rope around his neck. He added that when the time comes, he and every other Anarchist would be as radical as necessary.

Big Decrease.

BOSTON, 25.—A table compiled from dispatches to the Post from managers of the leading clearing houses in the United States, gives the gross exchanges for the week ending Oct. 23d at $10,639,028.99, a decrease of 54 per cent for the corresponding period of 1885.

Terrible Affair.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., 25.—Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan were found lying in bed in their house to-day covered with blood, and their four-year-old child was in bed with them; the man's arms encircled the woman's neck. Both had deep gashes in their throats. The woman was dead and the man died without explaining the crime.

Preparations for Liberty Day.

NEW YORK, 25.—Preparations for the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty next Thursday are progressing rapidly. The training ships Saratoga, Portsmouth and Jamestown arrived yesterday from Newport and anchored near the flagship Tennessee off Bedloe's Island. The rest of the men-of-war are expected to-day.

The Britannia, with the French delegation aboard, was sighted off Fire Island yesterday afternoon and arrived at quarantine last night. Among the members of the delegation on the vessel, are Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, President of the Franco-American Union committees; August Bartholdi and his wife; Admiral Joures and General Pellissier, delegates of the French Senate; Messrs. Spuller and Desmons, delegates of the Chamber of Deputies, and other distinguished citizens of France. The Union League Club has offered the French guests all the club privileges during their stay here. The freedom of the city will be offered them by Mayor Grace on Wednesday. Bartholdi and DeLesseps state that they had a pleasant voyage.

Mrs. Stewart Dead.

NEW YORK, 25.—Mrs. Cornelia M. Stewart, wife of the late millionaire dry goods merchant A. T. Stewart, died suddenly this morning at her residence, Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue.

Mrs. Stewart died at 10 o'clock of congestion of the lungs and heart troubles. On Friday she took dinner with Mrs. Henry Hilton, and on her way home contracted a heavy cold. On Saturday she was so ill that she was compelled to go to bed and Dr. Milner was sent for yesterday. Mrs. Stewart grew worse and Dr. Milner remained with her all night. At half past 9 o'clock this morning ex-Judge Horace Russell called at the Stewart mansion and was informed that although Mrs. Stewart had spent a restless night, she was feeling better and was able to sit up in bed without any great effort. At a few minutes after 10 o'clock, Judge Russell was surprised to learn from a messenger that Mrs. Stewart was dead.

Washington Points.

WASHINGTON, 25.—The issue of standard silver dollars from the mints during the week ended Oct. 23, was $1,008,821; the shipments of fractional silver coin since Oct 1st amount to $742,429.

The Secretary of War has informed the Treasury Department in regard to the action commanding the officers of the Division of the Pacific in issuing permits to land liquors in different parts of Alaska, that hereafter no permits will be issued by the War Department for their introduction into Alaska for the use of medical, mechanical or scientific purposes. The collector of customs at Sitka has been notified accordingly. He is instructed, however, to permit the entry of wines for sacramental uses upon presentation of proof that it is intended for no other purpose.

The Supreme Court to-day rendered a decision in the case of the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railway Company against the people of the State of Illinois, brought upon a writ of error from the Supreme Court. The case was one of alleged unjust discrimination in violation of the State law of 1871 and revised in 1873. The decision is in effect that the State law designed to regulate charges cannot apply to inter-State traffic, as such application would trench upon the constitutional powers of Congress and be a damaging restriction of the freedom of traffic. The ruling of the Supreme Court of Illinois is reversed. Opinion by Justice Miller, the Chief Justice and Justice Bradley dissenting.

Important Decision.

WASHINGTON, 25.—In August, the defendants in a case of contest against a public land entry in the Oxford land district in Idaho, sued out a writ of prohibition in the District Court of the Third Judicial District in that Territory, to restrain the Register and Receiver from taking testimony in respect to the validity of the entry and compliance by the entry made with the requirements of law. Commissioner Sparks reported the matter to Secretary Lamar, with a recommendation that he request the Attorney General to instruct the U. S. District Attorney by telegraph to appear without delay before the Court issuing the writ and have the same dissolved on the ground that the court had transcended its jurisdiction in attempting to interfere with the United States land officers in the discharge of duties involving the exercise of their judgment and discretion. The secretary concurred with the Commissioner and at his request the Attorney General gave the necessary instructions to the District Attorney. That officer has now reported that on the 14th instant the Court, Chief Justice Hays presiding, made an order vacating and dissolving said writ. This action is regarded by the General Land Office as important, in view of the question of authority recently raised, and is said also to be in accordance with the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States for three-quarters of a century, that courts have no power to control the action of the Executive Department in its investigation of the adjudication of public land entries before patents have issued.

That Conservative Attack.

LONDON, 25.—Gladstone telegraphs from Hawarden regarding the report that he was attacked and badly stung by wasps, which he had disturbed while felling a tree, that a wasp merely stung him on the eyelid and that he cannot see out of the eye because of swelling. He says otherwise he is well.
