A suit of considerable importance, that of the Black Rock Copper Mining & Milling company vs. C. S. Tingey, is being argued today in the supreme court, involving as it does the question as to whether a corporation tax is legal. If the plaintiff, who is the appellant, is successful in the higher tribun-al, it will mean that the state will lose an annual revenue of something like $50,000

$60,000. The plaintiff, backed by about 100 other corporations, attacked the con-stitutionality of a law passed by the legislature of 1907, requiring all cor-recations to pay an annual state li-cense. It was contended by the plain-tiff company that such a requirement meant double taxation by reason of the fact that each correction was subject meant double taxation by reason of the fact that each corporation was subject to property taxation. The contest was carried into the dis-trict courf, in which tribunal Judge Ritchie declared the law to be consti-tutional. At the hearing today in the supreme court, arguments pro and con were made by Attorney Bismark Sny-dor, of counsel for plaintiff, and As-sistant Attorney General A. R. Barnes for defendant.

DOUBLE TAX URGED.

DOUBLE TAX URGED. Strongly contending that the measure was nothing short of double taxation, Mr. Snyder vigorously attacked the law. He said it was not analogous to a merchant's license, for if a merchant falled to pay for the privilege of do-ing business his doors could be lawfully closed. If he persisted in doing busi-ness without a license, he might be fined, but there would be no lien placed upon his property, as would be the case of failure in payment of a cor-poration tax. Again, the mercantile house might be conducted by a cor-poration and would be subject to li-cense and tax. A franchise is property, continued. Mr. Snyder, and should not be taxed twice. When corporation papers are filed a fee has to be paid, proportion-ate to the capitalization, and as the property held by the concern was sub-ject to general taxation, it should not be forced to pay a special tax, as re-quired in the law of 1907. THE DEFENSE HEARD.

THE DEFENSE HEARD. THE DEFENSE HEARD, For the defense, Mr. Barnes said that the whole matter hinged on the ques-tion as to whether it was a tax upon property, or in the nature of a license or privilege. He was strongly in favor of the last named proposition. A fran-chise is not property in the wording of the constitution he said. A franchise
