

A Large Bear Story.

A MAINE MAN KILLS THREE BEARS WITH AN AXE.

The Cala's (Me.) Advertiser relates that last week, as Mr. Nickson Peters, of Baileyville, was returning from the woods with his axe on his shoulder, he espied an animal near the foot of an old tree, a little way off, and on going to the spot discovered it to be a large bear, which had taken refuge under the roots of the tree. He furthermore found that there were two or three of the "varmints" under the tree, and that they had three places of egress, and ingress to the den. His dog commenced the attack by stationing himself at one of the holes and barking furiously. Mr. Peters stationed himself at another, axe in hand, ready should any of them attempt to leave the den, to give battle. Soon the oldest and largest one essayed to run the blockade, when Mr. Peters struck her a blow between the snout and the eyes, which cut through to the lower jaw, and drove her back to her den with a growl, where she remained some time. She then attempted to escape by one of the other holes, but Mr. P. was too quick for her, and dealt her a blow on the small of the back, which laid her out, dead.

In the meantime one of the other bears got out, and Mr. Peters immediately gave it his attention, despatching it with a blow of his axe just back of the fore shoulder, the axe penetrating to the heart and producing instant death. By this time it had got quite dark, and the other one showing no disposition to leave his den, he concluded to suspend operations for that night. So, shouldering the smallest one, he started for home. Next morning he returned with three of his neighbors to the scene of his previous night's exploits. They found the old one where he had left her, dead. On looking round they soon found the other one up in a tree. The party had two guns with them, but neither of them would go off. Presently Bruin began to descend the tree, and as soon as he struck the ground Mr. P. again raised the fatal axe and dealt him a blow which killed him.

Argument against Cavalry.

With the improvement in firearms, a writer on war seems to think horses are losing value in battle. He says: "Let the horse be ever so swift, the sabre ever so sharp, or the rider ever so bold, the conical ball is too much for him. A charge of cavalry upon a body of properly armed infantry bids fair to be henceforward impossible. Two hundred yards has been fixed by the best authority as the proper charging distance, and in by-gone days it was only at two hundred yards that the fire of a square began to tell, and saddles to be emptied. But now a-days the iron rain patters on the horsemen before they get within half a mile of the foe. If they quicken their pace to close, the maddest charge will not bring a dragoon horse on the bayonet in less than three minutes, and when he arrives he is blown and disabled. 'When he arrives'—if he arrives, we should say; for even in traversing eight hundred yards at the top of his speed, he receives half a dozen volleys from practised sharpshooters. To send cavalry on such service will, we may safely predict, henceforward be considered madness. The foot soldier has a swifter messenger in his cartouch box than the fleetest hussar."

NOTES.

Proposals must be to carry the mail with "celerity, certainty, and security;" using the terms of the law, and they must be guaranteed by two responsible persons, certified to as such by a postmaster or judge of a court of record.

No pay will be made for trips not performed, and for each of such omissions not satisfactory is explained three times the pay of the trip may be deducted. For arrivals so far behind time as to break connexion with depending mails, and not sufficiently excused, one fourth of the compensation for the trip is subject to forfeiture. Fines will be imposed, unless the delinquency be satisfactorily explained, for neglecting to take the mail from or into a post office; for suffering it to be injured, delayed, robbed, or lost; and for refusing, after demand, to convey the mail as frequently as the contractor runs, or is concerned in running vehicles on the route. The Postmaster General may annul the contract for violation of the post office laws, or for disobedience of the instructions of the department. He may alter the schedule, and also order an increase of service by allowing therefor a pro rata increase on the contract pay. He may also curtail or discontinue the service in whole or in part, at pro rata decrease of pay, allowing one month's extra compensation on the amount of service dispensed with. Bids should be addressed to the "Second Assistant Postmaster General," superscribed "Proposals Territory of Utah," and sent by mail.

For forms of proposal, &c., and other information, see advertisement of this date, in pamphlet form, at the principal post offices.

Blank proposals will be furnished on application to the Postmaster at Salt Lake City, Brigham City and Fillmore City.

25-12 M. BLAIR, Postmaster General.
