

ADDRESS TO RUSSIAN PEOPLE

Sets Forth the Attitude of Parliament on the Agrarian Question.

MODIFIED BEFORE ISSUED.

Resolutionary Features Minimized—Session at Which It Was Passed, Stormy.

St. Petersburg, July 19, 3 a. m.—An address to the country setting forth the attitude of parliament on the agrarian question and the reasons for the delay in the adoption of a solution of the problem was adopted by the lower house this morning, but in an unqualified form, with changes designed to minimize the revolutionary features of the document as an appeal to the people against the government and to shift the emphasis to a note of pacification, in which the peasantry are exhorted to refrain from excesses and violence and to await parliament's decision in the matter.

The vote was taken at the close of a sitting that lasted continuously for 12 hours, in which it seemed probable that the address would be rejected entirely by the combined voice of the right and left wings of the house against the center party. The address was only saved from this fate by the abstention from voting of 161 members of the group of Tolst and sympathizers with that faction, who favored a more radical measure. There were only 124 votes, all Constitutional Democrats, for the address and 53 against it. The minority comprised Count Hayden and Michaelstakovich, a marshal of the nobility, and other members of the right, with a few extremists from the Socialist camp.

The session, which was a stormy one, was marked at one time by the withdrawal of the entire group of Tolst, as a protest against the reactionary attitude of the majority. Afterward the caucus of the group determined to return to the chamber, but not to vote either for or against the address on the ground that they would be playing into the government's hands whatever they voted, and instead to draft an independent address to the people.

The day was devoted to desperate efforts to retrieve a dangerous strategic blunder. Finding from a caucus of their own followers that it was too late to withdraw the address entirely, the leaders turned their endeavors to modify it enough so that the government would not be forced to regard it as a casus belli, perhaps with the secret hope that this would lead to the defeat of the address in the house.

The speeches of Ivan Petrunkevitch, who introduced the substitute draft; Deputy Kutlarski and other moderate members emphasized the necessity for the pacification of the tumultuous peasant. M. Guttinovskiy roundly declaring that the all-important question at the present crisis of affairs was not useless polemics regarding the ministry, but the cessation of the elemental movement of class against class, which would solve Russia's problem, not in the way of peaceful legislation, but by methods of desperation and horror.

M. Petrunkevitch, an implacable enemy of the government, shifted his ground to combat revolution, declaring that parliament must not yield to revolution nor join in inflaming unarmored peasantry to oppose themselves to bayonets and machine guns, but fight to the last for legality and loyalty. His draft contained a sop to the landowners, emphasizing the point regarding the payment for expropriated lands, but this was eliminated in the discussion. The Conservatives endeavored also to have stricken out a reference in the draft to the lack of confidence in the ministry, but they were defeated by the bare mention of the Russia's report on the Austro-German plan being wildly applauded when he declared that it was impossible to show consideration to a ministry which was negotiating to introduce foreign troops on the sacred soil of Russia.

HARTMAN'S REMAINS.

Found in Kootenai River Months After He Was Lost.

Butte, Mont., July 19.—The badly decomposed remains of State Agent Hartman of Troy, Mont., have been found in the Kootenai river, where either Hartman was accidentally drowned or committed suicide, color being given to the latter theory because of the fact that the man's tracks led directly into the river.

PURE FOOD MEN APPROVE PRESIDENT'S COURSE.

Hartford, Conn., July 19.—Criticism of the methods pursued by President Roosevelt in connection with the investigation of the packers by Frank Thurber, a New York lawyer, formerly a manufacturer, was the chief feature of this afternoon's session of the National Pure Food convention. He characterized as hysterical the publicity given to the reports concerning the packinghouses by the president. He did not see why the president should have ignored his official reports and turned them over to the Social Settlement men to decide.

Harry Beach Needham of Washington, in reply to this criticism, said that if it had not been for the action of the chairman of the congressional committee of the house, these reports would never have been published.

A motion was passed unanimously disapproving the sentiments expressed against President Roosevelt. The following resolution presented to the convention in behalf of nearly 100 manufacturers and dealers of the east, west and middle west was read and referred to the committee on resolutions.

"Resolved, That the undersigned manufacturers and dealers of food products, hereby request the officers having charge of the enforcement of the food laws of the several states to adopt rules in harmony with the regulations which may be adopted by the federal officials, insofar as they can, consistently do so."

The convention proceeded to the election of officers at the close of the session. Horace Auker of Columbus, O., was elected president by unanimous vote and R. M. Allen of Kentucky was re-elected secretary. A committee of five was appointed by the chairman to bring in nominations to the convention of the other officials.

NEW LAW ENDORSED.

Chicago, July 19.—The executive committee of the National Wholesale Grocers' association of the United States, at a meeting here today, adopted a resolution endorsing the new pure food law, with a determination to obey its mandates to the letter. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the department of agriculture and to the national pure food commission.

Alfred H. Beckman of New York was elected secretary of the committee, with headquarters in New York. The next meeting of the committee will be held in New York and the next annual convention of the association in Chicago, 1907.

JEROME CRITICIZES PREST. ROOSEVELT

For His Criticism of a Federal Judge Because Decision Did Not Suit Him.

COURTS DO NOT MAKE LAWS.

Their Business to Obey Them and Not to Try to Remake Them.

Warm Springs, Ga., July 19.—Dist. Atty. Jerome delivered an address on "Public Opinion, Its Power, Some of Its Evils and Injustices, and Our Duty, As Lawyers, to It," before the Georgia Bar association tonight.

In the course of his address Mr. Jerome referred to President Roosevelt's criticism of a United States court judge, saying:

"There is one injustice which public opinion not infrequently does, it is one which lawyers can do much to correct, and that is the criticism of judges for decisions which they could not avoid making if they obey the law. The recent spectacle of the nation's chief executive, himself not a lawyer, criticizing in a public document a federal judge for his decision on a point of law, has not, I believe, commended itself to my profession. The laws are our laws. Public opinion made them and can change them. Every citizen has a right to criticize or repeal, but while they are our laws we want our judges to obey them and not substitute for them something they deem in accord with a thing so mutable and difficult to ascertain as public opinion."

In the beginning Mr. Jerome said there were men, guided by a high sense of duty, who would do and continue to do their duty as they saw it, regardless of the majority opinion which we call public opinion.

"The man who declares he is indifferent to public opinion," said Mr. Jerome, "if he is not a fanatic, is often something of a fool and a knave. To a public officer the discharge of his duty with or in the face of public opinion is like the running of an engine with oil or sand fed bearings."

How potent public opinion is, is everywhere evident to the lawyer. In his own state the constitution prohibits gambling and enjoins the legislature to pass laws to prevent it. The legislature, however, has dared to pass a law which aimed in fact to reform gambling on race tracks, but was notoriously designed to protect it, and this was possible only because public opinion permitted. Whatever its cause and whatever its history, public opinion stands today as the most important single influence in the nation.

"In many parts of the country, and especially in our great cities, a man's ability to command a hearing must depend largely upon the newspapers, and it is by them that the greatest justice and sometimes the greatest injustice is done."

As to the part the speaker contended lawyers should take in influencing public opinion, Mr. Jerome said: "If the power of public opinion be so great and if each of us has not inconsiderable capacity to influence it, it seems almost needless, because so obvious, to point out how of all classes of men the lawyers especially can influence it and are under duty to do so. For weal or for woe, in proportion to our numbers, we are, or can be, the most influential body of men in the country."

QUIJADA CAPTURED.

Said to Have Murdered and Disemboweled His Father-in-Law.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 19.—A dispatch to Gov. Kilgley from Southern Arizona today, sent by Rangers Brooks and Wheeler, announced the capture by them of Quijada, who is alleged on Tuesday night committed a most heinous murder in Agua Prieta, Mexico. A few yards south of the international line at Douglas, on Tuesday night, it is charged, Quijada approached the bedside of his wife's father, Marcelino Uribe, and cut his throat from ear to ear, then disemboweled him. So expectant was the dead, accomplished that Mrs. Quijada, who was in the same room, did not awaken and knew nothing of the crime until morning. When the sickening sight met her eyes, she fainted. Her husband had fled and was not found until today. Quijada has worked at the Douglas smelter for three years. No motive for the crime is known.
