Terrific Death by Scalding in a Steam Tank.

FIRE IN THE STREET, STARTED.

A River Drives 200 Feet—Gold Rushes in California—Terrible Day Results this School Term.

The Baker City, Oregon, was captured last Friday night, and is included in Owyhee State.

The experiment of raising rice on Whidbey Island, Wash., is to be made in a colony of Hollanders. K. A. Battens has gone to Europe to bring out the colonists.

In an effort to reduce expenses and get the district on a sound financial basis, the Tacoma, Wash., school board is considering the advisability of reducing the school year to six months.

A cattle drive started out to be-cause the Indians, & C. T. Smith, who organized it, will begin soon between Newcastle and the copper camp. Twelve wagons have arrived and will be ex-perimented with.

A dispatch from Baker City, Or., says that Thomas O'Donnell, a miner at the Virtue mine, fell down a shaft from the 300-foot level, to the bottom, a distance of 200 feet, and died at night. His friends were stunned and many said his body was broken. O'Donnell's mother resides at St. Louis, Mo., and he has a brother in Virginia City, Mont. The deceased was aged about 23 years.

It is said that a large jam of logs had lodged in the Wasatch river, West, about one mile from the mouth. It is reported to be about one-half a mile long and extends from the mouth of the stream to the first bridge. There has always been a small jam in the river at that point, but it was supposed that it would all go out at the first highwater, as work was put on during the summer to remove the jam. It is now impossible to remove the jam, the ice will be unusually severe on the up-stream, as the logs, being to small timbers and logs, who depend on them for their winter supplies.

Four robbers, masked with white handkerchiefs and armed with rifles, held up a Mission street electric car at the Ingleside races, San Francisco, Christmas night, and got away with a very large sum. In the course of their robbery they relieved Bob H. Clark, cashier of the race track bar, of a bag containing the entire proceeds of the day's sales, and in the accomplishment of the last robbery, they shot and killed a passenger of Clark's car, with bullet, about another race track assassin in the hand and wound a policeman in the leg. A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the highwaymen.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Christmas morning three masked men entered the office of the Central Electric Street Railway company at Sacramento, Cal., where a bookkeeper and three other employees were at work. As soon as all their robbers forced the men into closets and locked them up. One of the men, who protected, was struck a powerful blow in the face, his eyes being blackened. The robbers then made off with the amount of $1,000. They raised it into a conveyance position and then deliberately drilled holes in it, filled them with powder and blew the safe open. The robbers escaped about $800.

Joseph Opperman, a section hand employed on the San Francisco and North Pacific railroad, met with a dreadful accident Tuesday night. Just before he intended to return home from his work on the road, he was crossing a high trestle over Agua Caliente creek, near Sonoma, Cal., he slipped and fell to the rail beneath. His right leg got caught and was broken near the ankle. The iron pitch marks on the rail were about a distance of twenty feet. His companion went immediately to his rescue. When picked up, he was terribly cut on the head and the flesh was torn off one of his arms, leaving the bone exposed. Opperman is injured internally, and his recovery is doubtful.

Albert Hahn, an employee in the cigar factory at the Chicago market, Portland, Oregon, fell into thirty inches of scalding water in a steam tank Wednesday afternoon and was so badly scalded that he died that evening. He had bought a cigar as a Christmas present for his wife, and as the water had become too hot for washing, he had to jump out of the tank. He would turn off the steam, go round the house, give his wife the cloak and come back to clean up shop. He raced across to the back of the tank, which is four feet square, to turn the valve. He slipped on the greasy floor which he stood upon on the greasy floor and pitched into the scalding water head first. He was out in the house in a moment shrieking for help. Several men rushed to his assistance. They took off his shirt and as the water was drawn off, the scalded skin came away from the skin down and hung, twisted from the finger tips like a pair of long gloves. When taken to his home the remainder of his clothing was removed and the cutaneous tissue was drawn off and adhered to the skin again until death came. He was 20 years of age and leaves a wife and infant child.

An old white-haired man sank to the sidewalk at the corner of Seventh and Broadway streets, San Francisco, Christmas morning, helpless and fainting. A policeman was by and soon had the aged patient on the way to the receiving hospital. The physician in charge of him said he was suffering from lack of proper nourishment. In other words, he was starving. W. H. Ayres was his name. He was 75 years of age, and for many years had lived in California. The thin, gaunt old fellow was prostrate and well to do. He did not lack friends during his prime, for he was one of Oakland's benefactors whose name was known and patronized by many of the old residents of the city. He had been admitted to the hospital until arrangements could be made to provide a home for him at the County Hospital, where he will probably be sent as soon as a permit can be obtained for his admission. For six months past he had been unable to speak far as an occasional mumble from a weak voice would afford. He was nearly conscious of his surroundings in the hospital, and it was with great difficulty even that sufficient could be gained from him to complete the record in the hospital books.
