Between Spanish Fork and Pay-son, hugging the grim looking mountains to the eastward, is Pondtown, sometimes known as Salem. It derives its name from a pond, three quarters of a mile in length and of varying width, which is fed by a splendid spring. In this pond is an abundance of fish of several kinds. Trout, however, is not in- First West Street, digenous to the little lake, but quandigenous to the little lake, but quantifies of that species have been placed in it of late years and they are prospering and increasing. Pondtown is not a very ponderous town, but has excellent facilities for becoming so, the farming land being quite extensive and the soil is probably as rich as any in Utah, which is saying considerable. It is of the black alluvial kind.

is of the black alluvial kind.

In passing through Payson yesterday we learned that a high school or seminary was about to be inaugurated in the large upper room of the City Hall building of that place. The principal of this proposed advanced educational institution is a Mr. Townsend late resident of Lehi City.

On the road between Payson and

On the road between Payson and Nephi we came to a small place which we thought might be Mona, and took occasion to call at a house to enquire if the conjecture were correct. We learned that it was not, but a debate arose between two parties whom we interrogated upon the matter as to the real name of the place. This was rather a novel incident, to meet with parties who did not know the name of the place in which they lived.

As Nephi or Salt Creek is approached the renowned Mount Nephi or the place in which they lived.

bo, the mountain having the greatest altitude of any other in Utah, is passed. Into its mammoth sides the "honest miner" has been burrowing, bringing to light the fact that the interior of this huge earthy carbuncle contains rich argentiferous deposits that will some day be developed and utilized. It is asserted that the mines there would pay very well providing sufficient capi-tal were used in their working, and smelters were erected in the vicinity. There is some talk now of an ity. There is some talk now of an intention to put up smelting works there. Those and railroad communication would make this a valuable mining place. At present it would not pay to get the ore out and ship it, as it is of low grade. Mr. John Hague, of Nephi, has run a tunnel into the "Olive Branch" ladge, and will recommence the ledge, and will recommence the work of excavation on the same SAMUEL DUNBARR & CO., further. There is a large amount of ore on the dump now that can-not, however, he utilized for the proved surprisingly within the last seven years, a large number of public and private buildings having been erected in that time. They are, however, too numerous for special mention in detail. A new special mention in detail. A new County Court House building has out the Territory. been commenced. The walls are four to five feet above the basement. It will be about forty feet square and two stories above the basement, which 'latter portion it is intended to use for prison pur-

Probably one of the most interesting, not to say valuable, deposits in the west is close to Nephi, in the face of the mountain to the right of the traveler as he enters Salt Creek canyon. That mountain is almost canyon. That mountain is almost entirely composed of plaster of Paris. This deposit is so vast as to be considered next to being inexhaustible. It has been proved to be of the finest quality, and needs but little preparation to render it in fit condition for use. Millstones and the like, that has been mended with this substance, have never been known to break again at the cemented parts. The land upon which it exists belongs, we understand, to Messrs. William Jennings, John Hague and Capt. W. Hooper. Up in the mountains on the other side a ceal ledge has been discovered, a ceal ledge has been discovered, which, however, has not been de-veloped, the altitude of its location veloped, the altitude of its location being considered too great to render it easy of access.

This is a kind of salty locality. Rock salt exists in immense deposits in the surrounding mountains. Not only is it wonderful in point of quantity, but in quality it is also scarcely surpassable. Large quantities of this saline rock are shipped to Tintic mining district, where it is used in the smelters of that locality. The principal rock salt deposit is situated in one of the forks of Salt Creek Canyon, about eight miles from here.

As a natural consequence of underground currents of water ranning over those ledges of salt, there are several salt springs around. Into one of these if a twig or almost any other substance is put, it is, in a short time, encased in a thick, sparkling, crystalized coating of salt, which is very clear and beautiful.

We forgot to mention that a ledge of a substance resembling marble has been struck in Mount Nebo, but no one has thought it worth while as yet to work it. It is beautifully transparent, is mostly pure white, but in places has colored streaks or veins running through it. Should it turn out to be marble, it is doubtless of the most excellent quality, being of the jaspery kind.
