REPUBLICAN CONGRESS.

One Hundred and Eighty-Five Representatives in the House.

MAJORITY OF SIX OVER COMBINED FORCES

Close in the Longest and Most Memorable Struggle on the Issue in Political Circles.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Chairman Babcock of the Republican congressional committee said this evening that the returns received at the headquarters of the committee indicated that the Fifty-fifth congress would be Republican by a safe majority. Throughout the day reports from all parts of the country received at the committee headquarters were carefully compiled and tabulated. To a statement issued from this evening some of the returns were based.

"There can be no longer any reasonable doubt over the political complexion of the next House of Representatives," said Mr. Babcock. "The Republicans have elected enough members to place their distinctive party stamp upon the legislation of the next congress. There are still a few districts in which the result is in doubt, but the Republicans have elected enough members to control the House without the votes of any of the districts in which the result is in doubt. Our advices indicate that the Republicans will have a majority of from fifteen to twenty-five in the next House. Our returns are not complete enough as yet to place any dividing line between these two figures. There are still the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth districts of Nebraska, the Second and Third districts of Kentucky, the Fifth district of Virginia, the Fifth district of Texas, and possibly one or two others, which are considered certain to get some Republican votes, but which are still in doubt. The Republicans have elected the Third district of Indiana, the Fifth district of Pennsylvania, the Second district of Maryland, the First district and the Fourth district of Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin democratic districts, and Republican districts in the Massachusetts district. In Massachusetts we consider the election of Congressman Cushman of Washington, according to our advices, a certain Republican gain from New York we consider certain Republican and almost certain Republican gains in North Carolina we consider certain. The election of White in the Second district, and Linney in the Fourth district, in Pennsylvania we consider certain Republican gains, and three doubtful Republican gains, eleven Democratic districts in the North we consider certain. The election of West Virginia we consider certain. In the Second and Fourth districts, in the Second district the Republican candidate is the one we consider certain to be elected. In the Fourth district we consider that in the absence of returns it will require the closest scrutiny of the election boards and count to determine definitely the result.

"I am certain," said Secretary Babcock, "that we have elected the majority of the next House, the Republican majority in the House of Representatives, and perhaps four in the Senate. In New York we will have ninety-one members, in Pennsylvania thirty-four members, in Kansas ten, if not, and perhaps five, in Nebraska four, in North Carolina six, in Texas two or three, and in Virginia four. In coming to these figures I am coming to many of the districts in which the returns are based upon advices more and I am satisfied that they are strictly accurate."

HOUSE OF VICTORS.

Congressmen-Elect to the Fifty-Sixth Congress and Whom They Succeed.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Following is a list of congressmen-elect, compiled from returns received at the Associated Press headquarters. It shows that the Republicans have secured the members-elect necessary to control the house. The Democrats will elect twenty members, in Pennsylvania, one each in Kansas and Tennessee, and perhaps four in Kentucky. There are twelve districts in North Carolina still in doubt, but the chances are that the Republicans will elect seven of the twelve. Two districts in Texas are coming in doubtful. The Republicans will elect two members in each of the districts in which the returns are based upon advices more and I am satisfied that they are strictly accurate.

English Press Comments Upon the Election Returns in America.

London, Nov. 10.—All the morning papers comment upon the elections in the United States.

The Times says:

"The reverse of the American people on the question of expansion is decisive, telling and unforgiven. It is difficult to say that the elections have confirmed President McKinley's policy, but certainly he has not been condemned, and therefore, he has no difficulties in handling the Cuban and the yet more troublesome question of the Philippines.

The Times, in common with other papers, considers that Mr. Bourke Cockran's chances of succeeding to the Presidency and expresses its gratification at the defeat of Mr. Croker, which it says apparently there is little chance of carrying Tammany.

The York correspondent of the Daily News says:

"The elections were disastrous for the Democrats, and for Mr. Bryan's Republican sympathizers. The Democrats are sensitive and there is no doubt that the popular vote is anti-imperialist."

Commenting upon the situation this morning, the Daily News says:

"It may, therefore, be the Senate and the Supreme Court, rather than the House of Representatives, that will be the battle ground. It will be interesting to study the effect of the vote on the peace negotiations. President McKinley may now feel free to take a new line from public opinion.

The Standard, agreeing with the Times says:

"It is impossible to subject the assignment of the Democratic defeat to the question of expansion, for having regard to the functions of the senate, all regular business proceeds, and there was nothing to hope for from diplomatic delay.

The Daily Chronicle and the Morning Post confine their congratulations upon "the triumph of Mr. Roosevelt and pure administration."

Doctors Failed.

"In August, 1893, I was attacked by neuralgia and nervous prostration. For six months I was confined to my room and most of the time to my bed. Five doctors were consulted without results. Dr. Miles' Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. Today I am well and strong.

STREET CARS COLLIDE

Salt Lake and Rapid Transit Lines Form Sudden and Violent Junction.

NARROW ESCAPE OF S. W. SEARS

Motorman Slightly Hurt and Cars Wrecked—Only One Passenger on the Train at the Time.

About 7:15 this morning a collision occurred between the Westminster No. 2 car of the Salt Lake City Motor railroad company and the northbound car of the Rapid Transit running from Calder's Park. The collision took place at the corner of Seventh South and Fifth East. Both cars were running rapidly as the accident occurred. The car in charge of the Rapid Transit company was crowded with passengers on the car. The Salt Lake company's car was in charge of Motorman Gardner and Conductor Wright at the front end. The Calder's Park car was on its first trip of the day. Conductor Clarkson was in charge. The park alone in the morning, serving the workmen on the line. The accident is said to be due to the fact that the motorman of the Rapid Transit company's car was behind time, and attempted to make up a few minutes. Motorman Sandford took the car in charge and began to make up time and as he neared the corner of Fifth South he was running at a high rate of speed. The Westminster car was also running up to the city and was running somewhat at the usual rate of speed. Motorman Gardner saw that the Rapid Transit car would reach the corner at the same time as he would, and that he had the car under control he did not slow down. The Calder's Park car was under the control of Motorman Sandford, and seeing that a collision was inevitable he applied the sand and reversed the brake, but the track was slippery with frost and did not respond readily, and the collision came. The front of the Calder's car hit the Westminster car in the center, ripping it from the platform to the front door, up against the electric pole just on the west side of the track, crushing in both sides of the car and wrecking the seat.

Mr. Sears of Walsatch was the only passenger on either car and was sitting on the right side of the Westminster car. He was thrown violently across the car, but strange to say escaped unscathed. The front end of Calder's car was smashed in covering Motorman Sandford with the wreckage. How he escaped without serious injury is a mystery, as he was not noticed by flying splinters.

The Salt Lake company only had one trip and the truck of the Rapid Transit car was loaded in about an hour. The damage will reach about $200.

Two arrests were made today of people charged with keeping unlicensed dogs. Little Ott was one, and had but one, mentioned, while Mrs. F. Booth, the other, was discharged.

Joseph Brown, a lightningproof youth who stole papers, was recommended by Justice Timoney, following which an order of discharge was entered, and the boy pensively left the court room.
