

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

THE JAPANESE.—This extraordinary troupe of performers gave another of their exhibitions at the Theatre last evening, and again thrilled and startled all beholders. To-night they will make their third appearance and in addition to their other feats they will introduce the wonderful magic ladder trick. The performance of this troupe can not be surpassed, and all should attend who can possibly do so, for an exhibition of a similar nature, equal to the present, it is not likely will again visit Salt Lake City soon.

MATINEE.—To give the youngsters of the city, and settlements contiguous a chance to see the wonderful performances of the Japanese, the management of the Theatre have concluded to give a matinee on Saturday afternoon, when the juveniles and all else who desire to do so may have the pleasure of witnessing the balancing, slack rope walking, magic feats, etc., of Mr. Satsuma and his extraordinary troupe of performers. Do not forget Saturday afternoon.

BOUNTIFUL DRAMATIC COMPANY.—Bro. Phillip Margetts, returned two or three days since from a visit to Bountiful, called in to-day. His report of the Bountiful Dramatic Company is very flattering. On the evenings of Wednesday and Saturday, last week the "Charcoal Burner" was played in good style, to crowded houses. Bro. Margetts says there is talent there, which a little culture would make quite a clever little company. The building in which their entertainments are given is convenient, and tastefully fitted up, and their wardrobe and appointments are creditable.

A MESSAGE WAITING FOR HIM.—There is a message at the W. U. Telegraph office for John P. Vanvalkenburg.

JAIL EMPTY.—The Reese River Reveille of the 19th inst., says:

"Our County Jail is still empty, and Milo Tabor is dreadfully lonesome. In fact, unless somebody steals a horse and gets caught, or indulges in some other violation of the law, there is danger of his becoming a confirmed hypochondriac and committing suicide—or matrimony."

BURIED ALIVE.—A few days since, a man named Charles Clark was working in what is called the Lucern mine, Lower Gold Hill. The bank under which he was at work caved, and buried him alive. Fortunately, the earth which fell on him was of a clayey consistency, and came down in chunks, so that he was enabled to breathe from the admission of air through the interstices. It took eight hours hard digging, by several men, to extricate him from his perilous situation. Strange to say he received no permanent injury from the accident. We learn the above from the Gold Hill News of the 21st inst.

A FATAL RAILWAY COLLISION occurred between two freight trains on the Virginia and Truckee Railroad on the 19th instant, causing the death of a brakeman, single and 26 years old, named R. W. Thornton. So says the Gold Hill Evening News of the 19th instant.

THE REESE RIVER REVEILLE of the 23d inst., says:

"The steamer Oregonian, on her last trip from Portland to San Francisco, had forty tons of Oregon laid eggs, worth twenty-five cents per dozen."

"EASTERN EXCURSIONISTS" are not likely to meet with a very warm reception in San Francisco this summer, if Figaro echoes the general sentiment. That paper says:

"It is expected that another shoal of eastern excursionists will soon be here. In view of the rough experience our fellows had in Chicago, it is presumed that most of the distinguished visitors will be suffered to pay for their own hash and whisky."

AMY STONE IN OMAHA.—The Herald says that the theatre-goers are not patronizing Amy as she deserves, and calls upon them to do so; for it says that her superior as an actress has seldom been seen in that city.

INDIANS UNITING.—The Elko (Nev.) Independent, of the 16th instant, says: "For several days past there has been a large gathering of Putes and Shoshone Indians assembled in Winnemucca, and their deliberations have resulted in a union of the two tribes. Natchez was chosen as Big Chief of the new nation. The important event was duly celebrated with songs, dances, bonfires and Indian revelry of the most approved kind for several nights."

The same paper of the 20th inst., contains the following account of the remarkable preservation of a "Mormon" family:

"Last Sunday night a Mormon by the name of Bell, with a family consisting of a wife and three girls and a boy, came into Death, a railroad station about thirty miles East of Elko. It appears that Bell left Duck Valley, near Mountain City, twenty-one days before, with five horses and his family for the Mormon settlement by a cut-off trail through the mountains. Grass was short with him as it has been with many others in that section during the past severe winter. On starting his larder consisted of a few pounds of rice, and when out three days a terrible storm came up and he was compelled to lay up for several days. To return was out of the question, and his only safety was to press on to the line of the railroad. His supply of rice gave out and he killed a horse, on the meat of which the family subsisted until they reached Death. Were they ordinary mortals not insured to the hardships of border life they certainly would have perished. Twenty-one days on horseback and rice in mid-winter is a terrible ordeal to go through, even for the strong and hardy mountaineer, but when women and children undergo it, it is a matter worthy of record. On the arrival they were healthy and well, and made no complaint of the trials they had passed through. Bell says he never will be caught out of Utah when he gets there again."

SERIOUS FIRE.—The Colorado Tribune of the 23d says:

"A very serious fire occurred six miles down the Platte yesterday at Dr. Singler's farm, burning his barn, two fine mares, all his farming implements, 2,000 bushels of grain, and all his hay and straw."

The cause of the fire was not discovered.

BRITISH BARBARITIES.—The London correspondent of a New York contemporary, quotes from the London Times that paper's severe comments upon the Pagan affair, and retails as follows:

Less than a century ago the English Government was paying American Indians for the scalps of white men, women and children, which were sent to London to be counted, or as vouchers, and are, I presume, still to be found among the archives; but that is a good while ago. It is not long, however, since we saw the death of the last native of Tasmania. It will not be long before we see the last of the Australian aborigines. It was only the other day that I read, I think also in the Pall Mall Gazette, an interesting account of the way in which "niggers" are now treated by British subjects in South Africa. Slavery is, of course, prohibited. The moment the foot of a slave is pressed upon British soil that moment he is free—except in India. But they are allowed to have apprentices. When the South African planters want a new supply of apprentices they take their guns, go into the bush, shoot down the dusky adults and carry off the children, who, being orphans, can be legally apprenticed by the magistrates. Some of the orphans, however, are too young for apprenticeship, and are otherwise disposed of. The account I read states that in one instance these were thrown in a heap and covered with long, dry grass, which was then set on fire. Here poor babies are smothered a good deal, but this South African horror reminds us of the stories of the Druids.

COUNT OTTO VON BISMARCK.—From a biographical sketch of the Prussian Minister, contributed by S. S. Conant, late editor-in-chief of the New York Times, to the columns of the April Harper's, we extract the following:

As a parliamentary speaker, Count Bismarck commands attention by the weight of his thoughts and the importance which his position gives to everything that falls from his lips. His voice, though clear and audible, is dry, hard and unsympathetic; and his manner, lolling and negligent, seems to express the thorough contempt he is known to entertain for parliamentary forms. When addressing the Chambers he usually stands in a leaning attitude, twirling a pen in one hand, and occasionally glancing at the papers on his desk, and speaks, without gesture, in a halting, monotonous tone—often repeating himself, as if he had forgotten what he had just uttered, and frequently stammering in a painful manner. One who has often listened to him says: "He appears to struggle with his thoughts, and the words clamor over his lips in a half reluctant way. After two or three words he continually pauses, and one seems to hear an articulate sob. But when aroused, he sometimes closes with a well delivered and vigorous peroration. Upon occasions he can be terribly bitter and scornful, but he never warms into eloquence." In private life he is one of the most pleasant of men—genial, witty and inclined to social familiarity; his conversation is sparkling, and few men tell an anecdote with better effect. His fondness for female society has given rise to several piquant stories at his expense.

The following story is told of Mr. Punshon in connection with the redoubtable P. T. Barnum. It runs in this wise: At a time when Mr. Punshon's popularity was rapidly rising in England, the notorious P. T., conceived the idea that the celebrated orator would make a "Great American Show." So he addressed a letter to Punshon, proposing to hire him by the year, and take him around over the continent to lecture at such times and places as he (Barnum) should appoint, Punshon to have his salary and Barnum to have the net profits of the lectures. It is said, however, that the showman was for once brought to a stand by the receipt of Mr. Punshon's reply, which was, in substance, as follows:

"Sir: You will find my reply in Acts xiii, 10: 'O full of all subtlety and all mischief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord?'"
