DESERET EVENING NEWS: MONDAY, JANUARY S, 1900.

Gen. Buller's opportunity for an effec tive display of strategy has come, and it is to be hoped, not too late. The hussars and the battery of field artillery r which he has been waiting while Ladysmith was in deadly peril, are now at the front and he has every available man, gun and horse and mule. Gen. Joubert's army is making a bedesperate attempt to carry Ladysmith by incessant bombardment and a deliberate and persistent attack in front, according to the latest news from Ladysmith. What the emergency requires is a cautious and rapid, yet far-sighted plan of operations like that adopted by Weilington in the peninsula. There may be another reverse if the tactics of the previous battle are repeated. But a decisive victory may be expected with confidence if Gen. Buller does not attempt to do a week's work during a single day, and has the patience and skill for maneuvering far afield, turning the enemy's position and cutting off his retreat northward and estward. No British general since Waterloo has had so brilliant an opportunity or so pressing a need for deivering a series of rapid and effective blows by which the enemy may be paralyzed and demoralized in the course of a single week. Yet the English public is so unaccustomed to campaigns with turning movements and maneuvering on a large scale, that there will be dejection and clamors if a complete victory is not announced as a result of the first days' fighting. Veterans of the military service clubs were intensely anxious over the news from Ladysmith, and some of them commented adversely upon the apparent lack of co-operation between Builer and White at the critical stages of the campaign, although they were in daily communication with each other. General White was passive on December 15, when General Buller attacked the enemy in full force at Colenso, and there was nothing really effective done on Saturday on the Tugela, although word was received at Frere Camp as early as 9 o'clock, that the Boers were making a most determined assault upon Ladysmith, in anticipation of the general advance of the main British army early this week.

These comments had a sterner, even angrier tone toward midnight. the war office gave out another bulletin from Buller, with two hours later news from White. It was brief, but terribly to the point. The Boer attack 'had been renewed on Saturday afternoon, as General White had apprehended, and he was very hard pressed. Those were the worst words which had yet flashed out of the darkness of Ladysmith. The veterans at the clubs shook their heads ominously and bluntly declared that Gen. Buller had put off the great battle too long.

Gen. French reported the situation Colesberg unchanged on Saturday. but Gen. Forestier-Walker, in a bulletin issued last night by the war office, gave an unpleasant account of what was described with official euphemism as an "accident." Four companies of the first Suffolk were sent at night to attack the enemy on the low hill one mile from their camp. Col. Watson, who was in command, was wounded after ordering the troops to charge, and the bugle call for a retreat was sounded, apparently by the Boers themselves, a which has been played before during the campaign. Three com. panies retreated to the camp in good order, but the fourth was caught behind, surrounded by the enemy and seventy men, including seven officers, were taken prisoners.

The British warship Thetis, it is reported, has arrived at Durban with the German liner Herzog in tow. The latter vessel, according to a Brussels telegram, was conveying German, Dutch and Belgian ambulances for the Boers.

Now, what I want to explain is that this same filth can accumulate now on the outside of the masonry and enter the drain boxes at any point because the boxes were perforated. I agree with the engineer's department that the trouble may be from cesspools and earth closets. Surface water passing through these inpregnations would as a natural consequence deposit a film or slime. But let me emphasize: Nothing can escape through the walls of the sewer. To illustrate, it is very simple to construct a tank or eistern to con-tain water. But it is a very hard matter to prevent water draining into a cellar. Experience is the school.
