

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Utah, New Mexico and Arizona, says the Denver News, all favorable to silver, are on the road to statehood and two senators each.

ASAYS, Garfield County, Nov. 6, 1894. — There was a sad accident which occurred at this place last Saturday evening. The little two-year-old son of James C. and Hulda Barnhurst fell into a tub of hot water and was so badly scalded that he died Sunday about 1 o'clock.

CORNELIUS WORKMAN.

The Utah Nursery Company filed its assignment papers with County Recorder Lippman Monday afternoon, M. B. Sowles being named as the assignee. The total liabilities amount to $114,050.91; the assets, $175,000.

Justin A. Goodhue was president of the company and Philip A. Dix, secretary.

INFORMATION IS WANTED. — O. the whereabouts of Mr. Joseph Burkinshaw or his family. He left Eastwood, Nottinghamshire, England, in the early 60's and emigrated to Utah. His nephew, Mr. James Burkinshaw, 18 Rebecca street, Barnsley, England, is anxious to hear from him, or any of the family.

After a prolonged illness, Mrs. Sarah Beck, wife of John Beck, the well-known mining man, died, at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon. Deceased was aged 58 years, and leaves, besides her husband, several children. Her loss will be mourned by a wide circle of friends, as well as by her husband and children. Asthma and heart trouble were the causes of death.

Typhoid fever has been raging with considerable violence in Tooele the last two or three months. Strong, stalwart young men have been its victims in most instances. The last to be attacked by it was Collin De La Mare, a brother of Probate Judge De La Mare. He succumbed to its ravages last night after an illness of two weeks. He was about 25 years of age and leaves a young wife and child to mourn his death.

H. O. Walker, a well known and much respected citizen of Ogden, died at St. George at 3 a.m. last Sunday. Mr. Walker's health had been failing for a year past and thinking to improve it he started about a month since for Arizona in a wagon arranged to accommodate his family. They reached St. George last Thursday, when Mr. Walker began to sink rapidly and continued so to do until his death Sunday morning. For eight years he had been in the drug business in Ogden.

For a number of years, it will be remembered, that Colonel and Will Lett have given the newsboys of the city a Thanksgiving dinner. This year the boys had not hoped to be made the recipients of such kindness on account of the death of the colonel. But they have been most pleasantly surprised by Mr. Will Lett announcing that it is his intention to continue the custom inaugurated by his father and himself. The boys are accordingly preparing to descend upon the choice feast that will be made ready for them at Bond's on Thanksgiving day. A good program is also being arranged for their benefit.

Elders Duncan M. Gillies, of Beaver, and James O. Ivie, of Sigurd, Sevier county, reached this city Wednesday on their return from the mission field. Elder Gillies left Utah in August and Elder Ivie in September, 1892, and both labored all the time they were absent in the Virginia conference. They were traveling companions part of the time. They enjoyed good health, and report that the Virginia conference was never in a more prosperous condition than it is now. There is a marked difference in the popular feeling towards the Latter-day Saints, the old prejudice giving way to respect and kinness.

In accordance with a resolution adopted by the county court on the 5th inst. the members of the board of education of this city and the trustees of the various school districts of the county will meet Wednesday afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock for the purpose of considering the propriety and advisability of donating to the school authorities of Salt Lake county, what is known as the old court house grounds at the corner of Second South and Second West streets; conditioned, that there shall be erected thereon a high school building for the use of the advance pupils of both city and county.

There was a wreck on a coal train at Lovendahl's, this county, on the Ro Grande Western Friday. It appears that one of the bumpers dropped into the center of the track while the train was headed for Salt Lake. The ties for a considerable distance were completely severed, the track spread and thrown out of line. Two of the cars were derailed, one on either side of the track. Several other cars were slightly damaged. Nobody was injured. A wrecking or rather a rescuing party was sent out and the debris cleared away. The Sanpete passenger train, due here at 9:55, was delayed about two hours.

The Standard Smelting and Refining company, of Durango, Colo., have filed notice of a lien of $4,801.93 against the plant of the Salt Lake Copper Manufacturing company. The lien is applied for under the mechanic's lien law of 1894, section 12 of which provides that "all persons furnishing material for the construction, repairing or carrying on of any mill, manufactory or hoisting works shall have a lien on such mill, manufactory or hoisting works for such materials." This lien is for coke furnished and it is contended that coke being a necessity for the carrying on of the works comes within the provisions of the act.

At eleven o'clock Tuesday morning a serious accident occurred on First West, between First and Second North streets. Walter, the fifteen month's old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bull, Jr., was knocked off the street car track by a car and received a severe scalp wound over the left eye. When picked up the little chap was unconscious, and remained so for some time. No bones were broken, and it is a wonder the child was not killed instantly.

The motorman claimed his attention was called from watching the track by a lady on the sidewalk. The company's physicians Richards & Wilcox, were soon on hand and sewed up the wound. The patient is resting as well as can be expected.

Judge William Goodwin's funeral took place in Logan tabernacle on Thursday, Nov. 8, at 1 o'clock p. m. Although Mr. Goodwin was not of the Mormon faith, he was so well and widely known that it was thought no other building in town would accommodate the number of friends who would desire to attend the funeral, and the presidency of the Stake granted the use of the tabernacle for the purpose. The building was almost filled with people, and many and beautiful were the floral offerings placed upon the coffin. The services were conducted according to the Presbyterian formula, and eulogistic and consoling remarks were made by the Rev. Hayden, also by Elder Moses Thatcher. All that was mortal of Judge Goodwin was then consigned to rest in Logan cemetery.

Friday morning's Union Pacific passenger train which left Ogden at 2 o'clock and arrived here at 3:10 had a singular experience.

It appears that at the Junction city race track the train ran into a band of horses. One of the animals was struck by the engine pilot and as the engineer thought thrown aside and killed. But on reaching this city he ascertained that his conclusion was incorrect as the horse was found firmly lodged on the top of the cowcatcher apparently not much hurt. Efforts were promptly made to release it when it was discovered that the beast's back was broken.

After brief consultation it was decided that it could not recover and that in view of that fact it had better be shot. An officer accordingly fired a bullet into its brain killing it instantly. Later in the day the remains were carted to the crematory to be incinerated.

Elder Frank Collett, of the Nineteenth ward of this city, returned home from the Indian territory Thursday afternoon where he has been on a mission for the last sixteen or seventeen months. His return at this date was caused by a severe attack of illness which has reduced him to a state of extreme physical weakness. He was accompanied home by Elder Alvin Beesley, his cousin, who recently departed on a mission to the same section of country. The latter is enjoying good health and spirits and will return shortly to his field of labor. Elder Collett did a good work while away from home and succeeded in making many friends and allaying much prejudice. His treatment and reception by the people among whom he traveled was the very best and he has only words of kindness and gratitude for them. His rapid and permanent recovery is anxiously looked for by his friends.

OGDEN, November 12th, 1894. — On Saturday at about 7 p.m. John W. Riley, a depot policeman, was suddenly taken sick. He was im-
