

NEWS OF THE WEST.

Alameda County, California, Swarming with Tramps.

SHOCKING AND FATAL ACCIDENT.

The Horrors of Hydrophobia—A Clergyman in an Awful Position—A Father Slain.

The Colorado Telephone company is putting up poles and wires to give telephone connection between Greeley, Colorado and Fort Collins. From there to Longmont they have a line.

On Wednesday afternoon while visiting at the ranch of his mother, west of Bonanza Valley, Colo., George, the little son of Theodore Masters, was drowned in Cottonwood creek while playing with several companions.

Herman, 16 years, a boy of two years, was with his parents in San Francisco, was shot in the right knee on Monday evening by a companion. The latter was a member of the "Black Legion" and was playing with several companions.

A meeting of capitalists and business men of Minnesota, Cal., was held on Monday night, at which a unanimous resolution was passed to submit finally to the hands of a committee of the state a bill to run on either of these institutions. It is the general belief among the capitalists and business men in general that there are no reliable and solid institutions.

Tramps are commencing to pour into Alameda county, California, and in consequence the capitalists and business men of the county are becoming alarmed. They are afraid that the tramps will do some mischief, and are therefore taking steps to protect themselves.

At Ashcroft, British Columbia, a clergyman had a very curious experience in connection with a case of hydrophobia. He was called to attend a case of hydrophobia, and was very much alarmed.
