

LEAVES HUSBAND FOR A HIRED MAN

On Such Showing Henry C. Atwood is Freed from Fetters Of Matrimony.

LEFT THROUGH A WINDOW.

Judge Morse Hears How Mother of Nine Children Stole Away Under Cover of Darkness.

Henry C. Atwood, whose wife, Mrs. Carrie D. Atwood, eloped with his hired man, Francis Skinner, obtained a decree of divorce yesterday afternoon at the regular matinee held by Judge George G. Armstrong's court. For months before she eloped, Atwood declared that she treated him in a cruel manner. She threw a water glass at him on one occasion and pulled his hair when he snatched a note from her hand which he afterward learned had been written by Skinner. Mrs. Atwood and Skinner carried on a secret courtship in their home before the children, but never in his presence, he said.

In a real chivalrous manner the elopement took place. Skinner stole Atwood's horse and buggy out of the stable and about midnight came and knocked at the window where Mrs. Atwood was sleeping. She quietly arose and dressed without awakening her youngest child who was sleeping in the room. She left, going out the window. She and Skinner drove to the Oregon Short Line depot and took the train for Portland. They are now living there and Mrs. Atwood is working in a hotel. Atwood reported the case to the police, but nothing was done about it.

They were married here on March 9, 1892, and had a family of nine children. Six of them are still living, and are all with Atwood. The elopement occurred on July 6, 1908.

DE WITT A SPENDTHRIFT.

Mrs. Emma L. De Witt left her husband because he was a drunkard and secured a divorce yesterday on this ground. For two years he squandered his wages and was unable to provide for her. They were married in Farmington on April 26, 1907, and have no children. Her story was corroborated by Phoebe Smith.

William Shupe was granted a decree of divorce from Margaret Shupe on the charge of non-support. Mrs. Shupe went to Provo on a visit May 3, 1908, and refused to return to Salt Lake and live with him. She told Mrs. Jennie Long, who corroborated Shupe's story, that she did not intend to live with him again. They were married here on Jan. 15, 1902.

Mrs. Louise Pitts obtained a divorce from Samuel Years Pitts on the grounds of desertion and non-support. They were married in Kansas City on Dec. 31, 1887, and have a family of four children, two of whom are grown. For the past four years, Pitts has refused to support her or the children. Pitts was ordered to pay $15 a month alimony for the support of the two minor children.

ARNOLDUS MUST PAY.

Although H. J. Arnoldus, who was personally served with an order to show cause why he should not pay his wife alimony pending her suit for divorce, did not appear, he was ordered to pay $85 a month and a restraining order was issued prohibiting him from disposing of his interests in the "Daily Hotel." Mrs. Isabelle A. Arnoldus filed her suit a week ago. She alleges non-support and places her husband's property at a value of $6,000. They were married on Jan. 25, 1894. He has failed to provide for her since May 5, 1909.

Mrs. Lula Snow Hemmick was granted a divorce from Clarence C. Hemmick on the charge of non-support. They were married in New York in 1906. Hemmick refused to work and spent all that he could get in fast living. Two years ago Mrs. Hemmick was sent for her and her husband, paying their way to Salt Lake. Hemmick secured employment as a clerk and only worked a short time. More than a year ago he went to Chicago and Mrs. Hemmick has seen nothing of him since. They have two children.

INURED IN RUNAWAY.

Thomas Hurler Badly Hurt, Necessitating Medical Attendance.

Thomas Hurler, a driver for the Eclipse Grocery store, of No. 4 West court, sustained a broken leg and painful bruises about 1 o'clock this afternoon when his wagon was overturned, in a collision, and he was pinned under it. His horse ran into a telephone pole and stopped, Hurler being dragged about 15 feet. The wagon he collided with was a bread wagon owned by the Royal Bakery company. The accident occurred at Third East and First South streets and was witnessed by several persons who went to his assistance.

Hurler was removed to the emergency hospital at the police station where a superficial examination was made of his injuries. It was found that his left leg was broken just above the ankle. His back was bruised and he received a number of slight lacerations. He was then sent to the Keogh-Hammond hospital, where the fractures were reduced and his other injuries were attended to.

JUNE WEATHER SUMMARY.

Warm and Dry Conditions Prevailed Throughout Utah.

The general weather summary for June last, has just been issued by the bureau for the Utah section, as follows:

The weather during the month was unusually warm and dry throughout all sections of the state. Only three of the 18 years have been warmer, June, 1886, was the warmest on record, having an average of 70.0 degrees, though June, 1900, was but 0.3 degrees cooler. The highest temperature ever observed in the state during June was 116 degrees in 1892. This June there was no record for the state with but one exception, that of 1893, when the average precipitation for the state was only 0.02 inch. Other dry June were 1900 with 0.16 inch; 1902 with 0.17 inch, and 1905 with 0.18 inch. The precipitation during June, 1907, averaged 1.22 inches, and in 1908 averaged 1.09 inches.

The temperature was quite equally distributed over the state, though the lowest temperatures were confined to the mountain districts across the state as usual. Records for high temperatures were broken at a few stations by the warm wave on the 3rd and 4th, but cooler weather again prevailed until about the last of the month, when a great many more records were broken for high temperatures on the 20th. The precipitation for the month was light everywhere, only four isolated and widely separated stations recording more than half an inch, while 26 out of 65 stations reported none or only a trace. These were located chiefly in the southern portion of the state. The rain of the 7th and 8th was practically the only important one, though thunder showers scattered light precipitation subsequently in various sections. High winds were not frequent, and storms were not severe. Snowfall in the mountains melted rapidly, and caused considerable high water and some damage thereby.

ARISTIDE BRIAND FORMS CABINET

Post of Under Secretary of Posts And Telegraphs Will Be Suppressed to Avoid Friction.

TROUBLE WITH RADICALS.

To Appease Them New Premier Announces He Will Complete Work Of Clemenceau Ministry.

Paris, July 23.—After a day of conferences, Aristide Briand succeeded in forming a new French ministry, and officially announced the success of his endeavors to President Fallieres to-night. The new cabinet follows:

Premier and Minister of the Interior and of Public Works—M. Briand.
Minister of Justice—M. Barthou.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—M. Pichon.
Minister of Finance—Georges Cochery.
Minister of Education—M. Doumergue.
Minister of Public Works, Posts and Telegraphs—M. Millerand.
Minister of Commerce—Jean Dupuy.
Minister of Agriculture—M. Ruau.
Minister of Colonies—M. Trouillot.
Minister of Labor—M. Viviani.

The portfolios of war and the navy will be filled tomorrow. These have been offered respectively to Gen. Brun and Admiral Boue de la Payre, and both are expected to accept.

The post of under-secretary of posts and telegraphs, held by M. Simeyan, whose resignation was demanded by the Socialists, who charged him with being a Socialist, by the state, "I intend to complete the work of the Clemenceau cabinet and carry out the wishes of the president and form a Republican cabinet committed to Republican policies."

M. Briand had considerable difficulty in bringing the cabinet, and only satisfied the radicals who charged him with being a Socialist, by the state, "I intend to complete the work of the Clemenceau cabinet and carry out the wishes of the president and form a Republican cabinet committed to Republican policies."

A ministerial declaration indicates that the cabinet is committed to an attempt to end the war between labor and capital. An official note says this declaration, after quoting the famous remark of M. Waldeck-Rousseau, "Capital must work and labor must rest," insists upon the necessity of an alliance between labor and capital and the avoidance of every cause of conflict; that the members of the cabinet, regardless of their political affiliations, resolve with the aid of parliament to ameliorate the moral and material well-being of the workers as far as in their power lies, but that the accomplishment of this end will depend upon the support of the workers themselves; that the latter must give security to capital or otherwise undertakings will be abandoned and the economic development of the country arrested.

Plaintiff, Defendant and Attorneys All Wore Wooden Legs.

San Francisco, July 24.—When the suit of Mrs. Bessie Camp against Dixon and Bull was called yesterday for an artificial limb was called yesterday in the court of Justice of the Peace J. C. Quinn, his honor gasped for breath on learning that the plaintiff, defendant and both of their attorneys were wearing wooden legs. Judge Quinn was about to decide the case in favor of the plaintiff when the showing of Atty. Lester Perry, who placed his own artificial extremity in evidence, when Judge Gibson, representing the defendant, arose and placed his cork leg in rebuttal. The judge was beginning to show signs of collapse and when all exhibited his wooden leg to show that the artificial limbs made by his firm were sound, Quinn threw up his hands and declared the case postponed, until he could transfer it to his colleague Justice R. B. Tappan, who has an artificial arm.

WILL IN RICHARDS ESTATE.

Leaves Fortune to Widow and Three Children.

Mrs. Margaret Rebecca Richards, executrix of the estate of Edward Richards, a mining man, who died in Salt Lake on May 3 last, reported yesterday in the probate division of the Third district court that his fortune amounted to $175,387. This is larger than it was first believed to be. He had extensive interests in Utah, Idaho, and Nevada.

The will he left was written in his own handwriting on Dec. 9, 1907, and named his widow, Margaret Richards, as the executrix of the estate without bond. He bequeathed to his son, Charles, $2,000; to several nephews, given him $3,000; several nephews, to Gertrude Louise Richards, a daughter living with her mother, and Della Janet Parker, another daughter, living in New York, he left $5,000 each. The residue of the estate was bequeathed to his widow absolutely.

ENGLISH VIEW OF TARIFF QUESTION

Premier Asquith Says Germany's Policy Resulted in Greater Deficit Than England's.

AS TO PAYNE-ALDRICH BILL.

British Statesman Says It Is Regarded as a Triumph of Private Interests Over Public Interests.

London, July 23.—Addressing a meeting of city men in defense of the budget, Premier Asquith declared the only alternative offered to Chancellor Lloyd George's proposals for raising the new revenue necessary was the introduction of a tariff; but the Liberals, he said, would not look at any suggestions for a tariff.

"Two great countries, the two greatest commercial rivals we have in the world," continued the premier, "have been trying their hands at tariff fabrication for the last two or three years. Germany for two years has had in operation a full-blown scientific tariff, and Germany's deficit is much greater than our own, and it has already caused a downfall of one of the most powerful ministers in Europe. And if we look on the other side of the Atlantic, they have just completed a revision of the Dingley tariff. It is not for us to speak disrespectfully or find pleasure and complacency in the troubles, struggles and misfortunes of our friends and neighbors, but when we are told that the sovereign remedy for our financial troubles is to create in Great Britain what has been created in Germany and what is just being created in America, a general tariff—we are entitled to look to the experience of those who have adopted these methods. And what is the cause of the new American tariff? Why, as far as I can make out, it is condemned by the whole American press and regarded by American people as a triumph of private interest over public interests, for they see trusts and monopolies re-entranced and reinforced in their long and too victorious campaign against the consumer."

Pioneer Day Observance Takes Crowds From City

The observance of Pioneer day was general in the city today, and the evidence of it was seen in the comparatively deserted appearance of the streets, and the absence of much of the noise of every day traffic. Some of the smaller stores were open and men were working on several of the large buildings and excavations, but generally the people were on pleasure trails, and they started out early in the day to find it.

In the absence of any formal celebration in the city, the people patronized the various resorts, and great numbers went to the canyons adjacent to the city, as well as the canyons at Provo and Ogden which were also well patronized by Salt Lakeers.

The movement to get out of town has been general, and Salt Lake was as nearly like the deserted village of which Goldsmith wrote as it has been for years.

The ideal day had a great deal to do with the exodus. With almost a perfectly clear sky overhead, there was a stillness in the air and a warmth in the sun's rays only comparable to the best of Utah's delightful summer days. It was just such a day as turns thoughts canyonward. That it did so was seen in the loads of people who, filled with visions of shady retreats and leafy bowers, cold spring water, and other good things, filled their wagons with all the family and started out soon after daylight, determined, evidently to secure themselves positions in the canyon as well as to avoid the heat of the day.

Wanderers with its celebration of Pioneer day and the presence of the members of the Nauvoo Legion offered an attraction to a number of people, in addition to its natural beauty and the fact that it is easy to get home again. It was filled all day with throngs of pleasure seekers, many of them going down early and remaining all day.

The briny waters of the lake proved to be as great an attraction as usual and saltair trains are loaded this afternoon with crowds of people, who threaten to occupy nearly every bathhouse, and make the record day of the season. The same is true of theagoon, in spite of the difficulties in transportation with which the company is laboring. The surroundings at the resort appeal to those who want to spend a day out of town and amid rural surroundings, and that there are many such a showing by the great crowds who wended their way north today over the Bamberger road.

The traffic to Ogden and Provo canyons was, if anything, heavier than usual this year, and other canyons further away attracted a number of Isak Walters, many of whom formed fishing parties going out into the canyon to stay over Sunday.

Clayton-Daynes Music Co. Buys the Beesley Company

A transaction of considerable importance in business circles was consummated yesterday, when the Clayton Daynes Music company absorbed the Beesley Music company, the deal to go into effect Sept. 1.

By the terms of the sale, the stock, agencies and good will of the Beesley company are to be turned over to the Clayton-Daynes company and taken into their establishment at 109 south Main. Alvin A. Beesley will be the assistant manager of the Clayton-Daynes company, Royal W. Daynes continuing as manager.

While the exact terms of the transaction are not made public, it is known that the Beesley interests take a considerable block of stock in the Clayton-Daynes company, and the latter has called a special meeting of its stockholders for Aug. 11, to pass on the question of increasing the authorized capital stock from $200,000 to $500,000.

The blending of the two music companies' interests is the first consolidation of music concerns Salt Lake has seen in the past 14 months. At that time the Daynes Music company was organized and it bought out the Daynes-Romney Music company; then the Daynes Music company bought the Clayton Music company, and the name was changed to the Clayton-Daynes Music company, as it now stands. Of this company Col. N. W. Clayton is president, Dr. Stauffer is vice president, W. S. McCormick, treasurer, and Royal W. Daynes, secretary.

The Beesley company, which was organized six years ago by the well known musicians, all sons of the late Prof. E. Beesley, has a capital and surplus of $60,000. Alvin A. Beesley is president and manager; Adelbert Beesley, vice president, and Fred Beesley, secretary and treasurer.

Manager Royal W. Daynes, who confirmed the report of the consolidation this morning, says the deal will make it necessary to enlarge their quarters at once, which will be done by taking over the Boulton, Madsen, Owen premises, that firm moving lower down the street. The music business will be continued as in the past, with the addition of help from the Beesley forces. A. T. Christensen being manager of the piano department and C. C. Clayton manager of the wholesale phonograph department.
