She was the daughter of John Bright and Sarah Webb, born July 17, 1842, at Wadsworth, New York. She was 64 years of age. Her father and mother were both soldiers in the army and in 1848 left their native land for the United States and arrived at Salt Lake City the same year, where they shared in the persecutions of the saints and were finally driven with them into the western wilds in 1848-9, where the mother died and was buried at Garden Grove, Iowa. The father and his four young children traveled west and arrived at Winter Quarters in 1845, where the family stayed until 1851, when they came to Utah. They lived in Kayville, Davis county, through the winter and traveled to the Weber river in 1852 settling on a farm in the neighborhood of the river to South Weber, where the family has lived ever since. The Elks have purchased the Shea lot on Main street, adjoining the post office, for $2,500, and will immediately commence the erection of an opera house to cost $25,000.

The Baptist church will also erect an edifice to cost at least $7,000.

The "Mormon" Church is making arrangements to improve the church property on upper Main street, which will involve the expenditure of $1,000.

The Bell Telephone company has decided to erect a new building on Main street, and the Independent Telephone company has purchased the old Hayes brick building on Main street, and will make extensive improvements.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.

The outlook for Eureka for the next year is very bright. All business enterprises are springing up on every hand. There is not a vacant house or room in the camp for rent, and many families are living in tents. What the camp most needs at the present time is a first class hotel, which would be a paying investment from the start, as many transients have to go to Robinson to secure rooms for the night.

The line men of the Utah Independent Telephone company are now at work on the line from Homansville Canyon into Eureka, and already the new company has established telephone connection. The wires are being brought from Payson to Eureka over the Western Union. The line will be extended to Mammoth, Silver and Robinson, and as the company has the legal franchise in Tintic it will not doubt get the business.

ODD FELLOWS WILL UNITE.

The two lodges of Odd Fellows—No. 12 and No. 30—have agreed to consolidate, the action to be ratified on June 20. The new lodge is to be known as Eureka lodge No. 12, and will have a membership of 250. The lodge owns the local hall, the finest in the state, and have about $2,000 in their treasuries.

LIBERAL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

RAWLINS, WYO.

"SQUEEZING" WOOL GROWERS.

Apparent Effort of Buyers to Keep Prices Down.

Special Correspondence.
Rawlins, Wyo., May 10.—Agent the alleged combine among the wool buyers to "squeeze" the unsold Wyoming clips of wool, it is significant to note that while all offers for wool in Carbon county have been for prices below 20 cents, prices ranging from 20 to 25 cents are being offered in Natrona county. The wool there is about the same grade as the Carbon county wool, and if there is a combine among the buyers, why are they offering more for the wool from Natrona county wool than they will pay for the same wool in Carbon county.

By some it is believed that the combine will run prices down in Natrona as soon as the bulk of the wool there is offered for sale.

The outcome of the matter is being watched with interest. Sheepmen as a rule are prepared to wage a long fight, and all or nearly all will consent their wool before they will accept the present offerings.

SAN FRANCISCO.

How weak man is! He propagates his doctrines of the rule of states and in his large, ambitious way imagines he holds sway over the world of Nature and her ministers. And what is his most govern here. He measures force with force. He occupies the sea and land. He builds huge ships, he marks the earth with monuments of granite and steel. He makes the yellow desert green; he gives art harvests for the lean; he plucks the lightning, yet unborn. Both earth and sea and metals with scorn. The darkness and the lack of power; his engines and his wires devour both the victor and the vanquished. His words around the earth and taps the air with his commands; all arts and sciences are at his disposal. Of man, the integer, the very throne of God seems destined for his own. When sudden death strikes down the victor of Nature falls upon the crown. That man assumes—poor, puny thing! That thought itself so great a king—And all his glory and his power. In one brief, trembling, dreadful hour Sink into ruin, and he dies. Amidst his perished victims.

AND WHAT OF PRIDE.

And what of pride today. And what of pride and power. And what of pride and power. Out there among the dead?

Oh, was it useful, God. In Thy eternal plan. To bend upon spirits low. To make us understand?

To make us understand. And what of pride and power. May in a moment's space. Meet beggars, side by side?

Oh, is it in Thy plan. Of progress toward the good. To love rich and poor. To find our brotherhood?

Oh, God, it must be so. For each throughout our land. The poor and proud alike. Are clasping hand in hand!

From out each swelling heart. All of all of God is given. Oh, is it not enough. To prove Thy love, and Heaven?

We bow to Thy decree. We bow to Thy decree. Outside Thy chattering loaves. DORA CURETON.
