CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, 21.—Allison from the committee on appropriations, reported back the House bill 810, known as the military academy bill, with recommendations that the Senate adhere to its amendments, and ask for a committee of conference; agreed to, and Allison, Logan, and Wallace were appointed as a committee on the part of the Senate.

Allison called up the Senate bill 590, providing for an agreement with the Sioux, and pending its consideration the morning hour expired and the Senate resumed the consideration of the bill to count the vote of the President and Vice President.

After a debate by Morley, and Jones of Florida, the question was taken on the amendment offered by Frelinghuysen to the amendment proposed by Cooper, viz., to insert the following—"The difference be at once referred to the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the presiding officer of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, whose decision shall be final;" rejected, 30 nays, 29 yeas. Other amendments were proposed and the debate was continued by Stevenson, Thurman, Withers, and Morgan.

Morx proposed an amendment, which he asked to have printed, providing that the President of the Senate, acting as presiding officer of the two houses in joint session, shall decide which is the valid return, &c. Pending the discussion the Senate went into executive session, and soon adjourned.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, 21.—Woodsworth corrected the journal yesterday, in which he is reported as not having voted on Atkins' bill for the repeal of the resumption act, and stated that he voted in favor of the bill.

Bright offered a resolution instructing the committee on expenditures in the treasury department to inquire into the management and disposition of captured and abandoned property; adopted.

Reagan, from the committee on commerce, reported a bill to amend the law for the regulation of commerce and navigation, and for the regulation of steam vessels; made a special order for Tuesday next.

The Speaker then called on the committees for reports.

Lynde, from the judiciary committee, reported adversely on the bill providing for the printing of the speeches and remarks of members of Congress and senators in the language in which they are delivered; laid on the table.

Caulfield, from the same committee, reported a bill making it a misdemeanor for any person in the employment of the United States to solicit or contribute to a fund for election purposes, or to canvass in any election in any State, county, or district in the United states.

Hear offered an amendment providing that the bill should not be construed to prevent voluntary contributions for the purpose of circulating documents, or of procuring public addresses on questions of public interest.

Caulfield said it was the object of the judiciary committee, in reporting the bill, to cut off apologies, excuses, and subterfuge of every character.

Blaine—"Does the language of the bill include within its provisions senators and members of Congress?"

Caulfield—"I do not consider that it does, because they are not officers of the Government."

Blaine—"Why not include them?"

Caulfield—"If the gentleman wishes to include them he may offer an amendment for that purpose."

Blaine—"I will certainly do so if I am permitted, because my observation has been, and I think that the testimony of the country will be, that there has been more corruption funds contributed in campaigns for Congress, both by successful and defeated candidates, than by a generation of Government clerks, whom this bill aims at. If you attempt to cut off five or ten dollar contributions, which, the Lord knows, ought to be saved to these poor clerks, and allow a candidate for Congress to pay five, ten, twenty, or thirty thousand dollars, as I have heard of being done, then it seems to me the bill is a mere pretense, and does not strike at the evil at all. I move to insert senators and representatives in Congress."

Caulfield—"I refuse to yield any further."

The Speaker—"Does the gentleman from Illinois yield for the amendment?"

Caulfield—"No, I cannot yield."

Blaine—"The gentleman said he would yield."

Caulfield—"Well, I withdraw what I said."

Blaine—"Then the gentleman declines to have senators and representatives brought under the same rule as he wishes applied to department clerks?"

Caulfield—"Other members of the judiciary committee have reports to make, and I wish to give them an opportunity, but I must say that whatever the experience of the gentleman from Maine may be on the subject of contributions by members of Congress, and frauds committed by them, I know nothing about them. He may speak from experience, I have none on the subject."

Blaine—"I have run for Congress seven times, and have never contributed a postage stamp for any improper purpose whatever, but I can indicate gentlemen who have run for Congress who have spent $50,000 in the election. I wish to have a test made in this case, and now move to reconsider the vote by which the main question was ordered, and it will be for the House to say, on the yeas and nays, whether it will include senators and members of Congress in this bill."

A member—"And candidates for Congress?"

Blaine—"No, that is too indefinite."

The yeas and nays were ordered on the motion to reconsider.

Caulfield offered to admit the amendment, but the offer was received with triumphant shouts of "Regular order, regular order," from the republican side of the House, and the vote was reconsidered; yeas 200, nays [illegible]

New rose to a question of privilege, and stated that himself, Glover and Smith, of Pa., three of the members of the select committee on the real estate pool, had been subpœnaed to appear, to-day, before the grand jury of the district, and he desired to submit the matter for the instruction of the House. They were instructed to testify.

Blaine then offered his proposed amendment to the bill prohibiting election contributions from government clerks; the amendment is to include senators, representatives and delegates in Congress, and to add the words—"And the contribution of money or other valuable things, as herein prohibited, by any senator, representative or delegate in Congress, while he is a candidate for Congress, shall, in addition to the penalties herein prescribed, operate as a disqualification to his holding his seat."

Amendments were also offered by Reagan, Hewitt, of Ala., and Brown, of Ky., which are to be considered when the bill next comes up.

Beach offered a resolution calling for a statement of the accounts of the navy department with its fiscal agents at London, for every year since 1868; adopted.

The House went into a committee of the whole, Cox in the chair, on the legislative and judicial appropriation bill.

Speeches were made by Hubbell against Morrison's tariff bill, and by Foster, of O., a member of the appropriation committee, in criticism of the reductions proposed in the legislative appropriation bill, claiming that they are of so sweeping a character as seriously to impair the effective working of the various departments of the Government.

Holman, another member of the committee, defended the bill. In the course of Holman's remarks the question turned on the new rule adopted this session, allowing appropriations to be reported at less than the rates fixed by law.

Blaine gave it as his opinion that the new rule would prove to be the Trojan horse on which, under the device of retrenchment, all sorts of matters foreign to the subject on the bill could be engrafted on to an appropriation bill, and subjected to the action of the Senate and conference committees. It would be found to be a more grievous rule than the one which had prevailed before, namely, that salaries might be increased but not diminished in the appropriation bills, a rule which had been established twenty years ago by a democratic House, and which he (Blaine) had been forced to administer when Speaker. He also alluded to the fact that grades of department clerks had been established in 1854 at $1,200, $1,400, $1,600 and $1,800, and had never been increased since, while the pay of members of Congress, which was at the same time fixed at $3,000, had since gone up to $5,000, an increase of sixty per cent.; and now he said the democratic majority in the House tried to mislead the country by representing that they were willing to submit their own salaries to the same shaving and discount to which other salaries were subjected. They took ten per cent. off their own salaries, which had been advanced sixty per cent.; they took ten per cent. off the pay of poor clerks, who had not had any advance since 1854. If they were sincere they should put the salary of members of Congress where it was in '54, and then put a plaining machine of ten per cent. on that, and go before the country honestly (applause in galleries).

Holman said that he agreed very fully with the gentleman from Maine on that subject, but he (Holman) could not be diverted by that speech, although a very good one, from the question of the rule which he had been discussing. He contended that the old rule was in the interest of those who wished to bleed the Treasury, while the new one was in the interest of retrenchment.

Blaine repeated that the old rule applied only to salaries, but the new one applied to any subject of legislation, no matter how foreign to the bill.

Holman continued to defend the action of the committee in recommending the reduction.

After a long discussion the committee rose without action on the bill.

Wells, of Miss., introduced a bill to pay counties to colored soldiers and their widows and heirs; referred. Adjourned.

EASTERN.

Meyer and McClurg.

ST. LOUIS, 21.—Nathan Cole, who was Mayor of this city during part of the time that Supervisor of Internal Revenue Col. Ferdinand Meyer was a member of the board of Police Commissioners, has written a letter to that gentleman, in which he refers to the letter of ex-Governor McClurg to President Grant, mentioned in these despatches on Sunday last, and in reply to some statement therein, says he had occasion to examine certain parties regarding matters relating to Col. Meyer, and these parties admitted to him, under oath, that they had been paid to sign the papers which were sent to Governor McClurg affecting Meyer's character, and that they knew nothing as to the truth of the allegations contained in those papers. Mr. Cole further says that he was then convinced these documents had been prepared under the direction of enemies of Meyer, and by some of the basest characters in the city, to destroy an efficient and capable officer, whose energy was injurious to their interest. Cole also states that if these papers as the class of evidence that Governor McClurg based his action upon, he was grossly imposed upon, and a meritorious officer would be removed without proper cause.

Wrecked by the Storm—The Mexican Revolution.

NEW ORLEANS, 21.—Six coal barges were wrecked by the storm, at the foot of St. Joseph St.; the loss is estimated at $79,000.

The Galveston News Brownsville special says that a dispatch received to-day, from Rio Grande City, states that news had been received of the defeat of the government forces, with the loss of 1,500 men, and all their artillery and wagons. The news comes over the Mexican government wires to Camargo, and may be considered reliable. The revolution in this section progresses slowly. Gonzales and Riva are still near Matamoras, and Cabigra, with his small force, remains in the city, but they are short of ammunition, having yesterday requested of Col. Potter the loan of 500 pounds of powder, which was refused. It is said that Labarria has been ordered to proceed with all his men to Monterey, to join Fuero, which will leave the city in charge of the national guards, who will doubtless pronounce in favor of Diaz as soon as the regular troops leave, and Diaz will take quiet possession.

He for the Black Hills!

CHEYENNE, 21.—James Allen arrived here from the Black Hills yesterday, for supplies; he returns in a few days. He brings with him several hundred dollars' worth of gold dust, and reports that business in the hills is very lively. Over a hundred teams have left here during the last three days loaded with passengers and freight, and the city is full of men outfitting now, and a large amount of transportation is awaiting passengers who arrive on every train.

A Judge Dismissed—Impeachment Recommended.

COLUMBIA, S. C., 21.—In the State senate, to-day, Montgomery Moses, judge of the seventh circuit, was found guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, and was formally dismissed.

The committee to investigate the conduct of C. A. Buttz, of the Charleston circuit, made a majority report of guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, and recommended impeachment.
