SOLDIERS FIRING TOO HIGH.—In a Southern newspaper we find an account of the late fight near Calhoun, Georgia, written by a rebel correspondent on the field; and in a Western paper we find an account of a subsequent fight a few miles south of Calhoun, near Rome, written by a Union correspondent on the field—in both of which accounts there is a curious analogy of statement concerning the inefficiency of infantry fire from a cause which has often been pointed out. The rebel writer gives a highly colored account of a fight in which the "Minie balls of the Yankees poured over the rebel line in an unceasing stream," and adds: "But one thing saved us from a fearful loss of life, and it was that the Yankees fired entirely too high." The Union writer, after giving an account of the very desperate fight at Rome Crossroads, says: "It was a matter of wonder, after the engagement, to ascertain that the loss in action did not exceed 75. It could only be accounted for by the fact that the rebels fired too high, their balls striking always above our heads." Our soldiers in the field should be continually reminded of these facts.—[N. Y. Herald.]

REQUISITES TO BECOME AN ATTORNEY IN ENGLAND.—In England it is no easy matter to become an attorney and solicitor. Since 1843 and 1861 the process is as follows: Before one can be articulated, even as a clerk, he must pass an examination before special examiners, and be able to write from dictation; must possess a knowledge of composition, grammar, geography, history, etc., and submit to questions on some subject in Latin, Greek, Greek, German, French, Spanish or Italian. If successful he must next be articulated to a practicing solicitor, paying a premium for his articles of from £5 to £100, according to the respectability of the office into which he enters. In London the fee is as high as £300 or £300. On these articles a stamp duty of £80 is also paid and the term of service under them is five years. When he is finally examined for admission he has to pay other fees of from £30 to £49, and much more on being allowed to practice in the respective courts.
