

TESTIMONY IN TRIBUNE CASE.

Farmer Macfarland Says Bad Meat Was Served at the County Infirmary.

INMATES GOT SKIMMED MILK.

T. D. Wimmer Tells of Having Purchased a Cow—Other Witnesses Examined.

At the hearing of the libel suit of William R. Jones, Jr., against the Salt Lake Tribune at the Justice of the Peace court today further testimony was given in regard to the quality of the food furnished the inmates of the infirmary. The principal witness of the morning session was Alexander Macfarland, who was employed as farmer at the infirmary at the time Supt. Jones was testified that he met plaintiff soon after he was appointed superintendent and that in the summer of 1903 he saw discarded meat which had been placed near the milk cans. As a rule, he stated, skimmed milk was served at the institution and that he had seen the milk diluted with water so as to make enough to go around. He said that poor meat was served at the table a number of times and that the meat in question was cooked for dinner and served to the inmates.

While the inmates were receiving skimmed milk and bad meat, he said that plaintiff's table was served with fine roasts and steaks. He asserted that he delivered with the infirmary team upon instructions from Supt. Jones, several loads of carrots to a brother of former County Commissioner James H. Anderson. He also delivered a load of beets to the same person.

He had also delivered products of the infirmary farm to various commission houses and had also known of calves and pigs being sold. He also saw Pauper Clerk James Sabine say Mr. Jones 50 cents for carrots and said he took the same away in his buggy.

BOUGHT A COW.
T. D. Wimmer, a stock man, was also on the stand this morning and testified that he paid plaintiff $55 for a cow which was taken from the infirmary farm and he supposed that the animal belonged to Jones. The cow was in payment for the cow was introduced in evidence.

OTHER WITNESSES.
Six witnesses were examined yesterday afternoon in behalf of the defense. They were either employees or inmates of the infirmary and testified that the rotten mutton which had been served to the inmates and also as milk and vegetables which had been furnished the family of Mr. Jones from the infirmary product.

Robert Lavisch, 73 years of age, and an inmate of the infirmary, testified that the inmates were given milk of a poor quality and that on some occasions the mutton served them was rotten. He said he did not eat it but could smell it throughout the entire meal. He stated that Steward Hayford told the inmates that the meat was bad and not to eat it. The milk, he declared, was skimmed milk diluted with water.

Walter Wineland, another crippled inmate of 68 years of age, corroborated Mr. Lavisch in regard to the poor quality of the mutton. He testified that he knew of hogs being sold from the infirmary and had seen butchers' wagons there after hogs.

TOLD TRIBUNE REPORTER.
Charles Caswell, aged 61 years, also testified as to the rotten mutton. He confessed to having told the Tribune reporter of the matter and giving him the material for one of his stories. He stated that he had seen hogs killed at the infirmary and that they were not used there. He also stated that a pair of new socks had been removed from the feet of a dead inmate and replaced by old ones.

William Thibault corroborated the other witnesses in regard to the bad meat and he further stated that he seen plaintiff take milk away from the infirmary to his family and had also seen the milk diluted when given to the inmates.

COOK TESTIFIES.
Mrs. Mary E. Perry of Perry, Boxelder county, testified that she was cook at the infirmary for some time and that she objected to cooking the mutton because it was bad, but was told by Supt. Jones that it would have to be cooked, as that was all the meat they had. She sent some of the bad mutton to the Jones family table on one occasion, but it was returned unopened. She stated that she was friendly to Mr. Jones and his family and only came there to testify because she was subpoenaed.

FORMER MATRON'S STORY.
Mrs. Sarah J. R. Miller, who was formerly matron of the infirmary for a number of years, was the last witness called to the stand yesterday. She told of plaintiff taking vegetables and milk from the infirmary to his family and said that Mrs. Jones had often telephoned to the infirmary for vegetables when she wanted them. She said that she had often seen plaintiff take stuff out of the cellar and load it into his buggy and drive away with it. At the time the bad mutton was cooked she said she could smell it all over the house and insisted that the door between the kitchen and the rest of the house be kept closed in order to shut out some of the offensive odor. She told of a banquet given by Jones in honor of his relatives at which a sumptuous spread was given.

ENGINEER TELLS STORY OF COTTONWOOD CONDUIT.

Just what the construction of the Big Cottonwood conduit will mean for Salt Lake was told last night by Geo. M. Bacon, who is in charge of that work at the present time. Mr. Bacon talked before the Engineering society of the University of Utah at the assembly room in the physical building. In addition to the members of the society a number of professors were present.

Mr. Bacon advocated the installation of water meters "to make wastefulness expensive." He said that Salt Lake is now supplied with drinking water from Parley's, Emigration and City Creek canyons, and that the per capita use of water is 250 or 300 gallons a day. The total supply in dry periods is about 10,000,000 gallons daily, of which nearly 5,000,000 comes from City Creek, and less than a million from Emigration. The demand in Salt Lake is for 10,000,000, or an increase of 8,000,000 gallons a day.

Mr. Bacon sketched the history of the attempt to meet this demand from its beginning. City Engineer Kelley during his incumbency, he said, worked out the reservoir scheme, but it was never put through. Later the Big Cottonwood conduit matter was taken up by Mayor Morris and Engineer Snow, and $80,000 was appropriated to put it through. Farmers demanded high prices for their rights, and so far only a half of Big Cottonwood, giving a flow of about 9,000,000 gallons daily, has been secured. Ultimately it is hoped to secure all of the Big and Little Cottonwoods, and Mill creek, which would furnish an increase of 5,000,000 for Mill creek, alone and a total increase of 20,000,000 over the present supply.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Bacon was tendered a vote of thanks by the engineers.

ORVIN MORRIS FOR TRAFFIC MANAGER

Matter Will be Decided by Manufacturers' Association This Afternoon.

PLACE READY TO TAKE HOLD.

Trade Unions Discussing the Advantages of Endorsing the Movement.

A special meeting of the directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association of Utah has been called for 3 o'clock this afternoon to consider the proposition of securing the services of Orvin Morris as traffic manager for the association, as outlined in last evening's "News."

Mr. Morris met President Hewlett this morning and submitted to him a proposition which is to be laid before the board of directors. While there is nothing definite forthcoming at this time, the directors this morning were enthusiastic over the prospect of securing the services of such an experienced traffic manager as Mr. Morris.

Tomorrow Manager Place takes charge of the new offices of the association in the Eagle block and from that time on the association will get down to a working basis with the prospect of there being something big to show in side of 60 days.

TRADES UNIONS BEHIND IT.

Trades unions are discussing the advisability of endorsing the new association, and it is probable that in the near future resolutions will be passed pledging the support of the unions to the movement. So far a number of union men have expressed themselves as hearty in favor of the movement for Salt Lake against the proposed lines, Geo. A. Whitaker, a prominent union man, is on the board of directors of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association and it is understood to be the leader in the movement among the unions to endorse it.

MADE BOSTON SMILE.

English Humorist Took Classic New England Town by Storm.

Jerome K. Jerome came over to America from across the pond in pursuit of the idea that an Englishman has no funny corner in his brain. He has apparently convinced the east by this time that at least one Englishman has lived in the United States and enjoyed life. His first remark on leaving the steamer was that he brought only jokes with him and that he was from London, and he didn't have a custom duties. But his conquest of America was complete when he landed at New York, and even made the classic old hub turn loose an actual smile. There the striking success he made was due to the fact that he didn't look literary, and was so different from the authors who haunt the clubs and streets of New York. One critic tells of Jerome's Boston visit as follows: The gentle art of humor, with its steel making of one's own meanings, and its unexpected presentation of old truths in new points of view, found a master yesterday afternoon at the Hotel St. James in that English society of laughter, Jerome K. Jerome. This transatlantic visitor was on his first visit to the city, and must have been exceedingly pleased with the reception accorded him by a Boston audience. It was not only that he stepped upon the red soil and spoke of it as "the red earth," but that he had a perfect gale of it all through the red earth he had undertaken his path was strewn with merriment.

ELECTION CONTEST FILED.

David M. Haigh of Murray Claims City Attorneyship.

An election contest in which the office of city attorney for Murray is brought into question, was filed in the district court this afternoon by Joseph Stern against Stephen L. Richards. It is alleged among other things that Mr. Richards was elected upon the citizen's ticket over David M. Haigh, a plurality of two votes, but that errors occurred in counting the ballots in the several districts and that Haigh was elected by a plurality of 100 votes.

WARD ENTERTAINMENTS.

Twenty-first Ward.—The Twenty-first ward fair opened last night in a blaze of glory. From 8 to 11 o'clock the many large rooms were crowded with their fair company with a delighted host of people. The decorations were very beautiful and brought forth enthusiastic and well deserved praise. The booths were all "things of beauty," and the fair offers most worthy attractions in every corner. The brief concert program each evening comprises the very finest talent in the city and is certainly worth more than the price of admission. The Art booth, the Doll booth, the Hall of Relics and every other feature is far above the average of such exhibits in ward fairs. The Mexican drawn work and Navajo blankets in the Art booth were a great card and proved a source of considerable profit. The fair continues the remainder of the week.

Fourth Ward.—The Sunday school of the Fourth ward will give an entertainment in the ward hall tomorrow night, the program consisting of choice musical numbers and dancing. The public is invited.

THOMAS MUST FACE CHARGE OF MURDER.

The question of what charge should be brought against Jesse Thomas, who has been in the city jail for the past three weeks with no reason for his arrest on record, was settled today by the death of Frank Wilson, and the charge will be murder.

Wilson was sent to the L. D. S. hospital with a wound thought to be fatal last night. While there is nothing definite forthcoming at this time, the directors this morning were enthusiastic over the prospect of securing the services of such an experienced traffic manager as Mr. Morris.

For two weeks Wilson seemed to hold his own. Then suddenly he began to weaken, and Monday night took a decided turn for the worse. Yesterday his life hung by only a thread, and this morning he passed away about 9 o'clock. Dr. Baldwin was his physician, and he did all in his power to relieve his suffering. No arrangements for the funeral have yet been made. It is expected that the city attorney will not take immediate action in a case, and that a charge of murder will be booked against Thomas this afternoon or tomorrow.

HAYASHI CUNNING AS A TALLEYRAND

Japanese Prime Minister Used Much Tact in Framing Korean Treaty.

PROVISIONS OF DOCUMENT.

Guarantees Forever Integrity of Korean Empire and the Peace and Repose of Imperial House.

Special Correspondence.
Washington, Nov. 30.—It was ascertained at the department of state today that the Japanese-Korean treaty, of Feb. 22, 1904, guaranteed forever the integrity of the Korean empire and the peace and repose of the imperial house of Korea.

This guarantee upon the honor of the imperial house of Japan was made by the consent and direction of the Japanese prime minister, Hayashi. This Japanese diplomat is as cunning as a Talleyrand, and as merciless as a Maschavelli. When that treaty was made Japan had begun her war with Russia, and was anxious to obtain and maintain the good will of the world.

The purpose of Hayashi was accomplished, because the American and European nations vociferously applauded Japan through their newspapers for the broad spirit of liberality which pervaded, or seemed to pervade, every particle of that treaty.

The provisions of that treaty have been forgotten by the peoples of the world, and attention is called to them now, because no sooner was the treaty of Portsmouth signed and ratified than Japan began her career of damnable treachery by bribing those Korean ministers who could be bought. Two of the ministers of Korea were loyal to all of the American people, sooner or later to all of the people of the world, that this act of treachery and repression was the act of a prime minister, who dominates the emperor of Japan and completely, as absolutely, as the marvelous queen dowager of China dominated the weakling called emperor of that great empire. The emperor of Japan has not selected his own ministers for years. Under the direction of Hayashi, Japan has made a military coup to take control of a helpless people, with whom she signed a treaty to regard as independent only 20 months ago. The whole course of Japan in Korea is prompted by national greed and individual corrupt purpose on the part of her ministers.

It is known to our department of state, and it must be known broadcast to all of the American people, sooner or later to all of the people of the world, that this act of treachery and repression was the act of a prime minister, who dominates the emperor of Japan and completely, as absolutely, as the marvelous queen dowager of China dominated the weakling called emperor of that great empire. The emperor of Japan has not selected his own ministers for years. Under the direction of Hayashi, Japan has made a military coup to take control of a helpless people, with whom she signed a treaty to regard as independent only 20 months ago. The whole course of Japan in Korea is prompted by national greed and individual corrupt purpose on the part of her ministers.

It was learned today at the department of state that the treaty with the consent of America that the treaty of February, 1904, was made effective. Japan was then seeking the friendship of this country and America. It seems to be now our plain duty to insist that Japan shall treat these people with common humanity and in accordance with the provisions in a solemn treaty.
