CHARMING DESIGN IN WOOLTEX TAILORMADE.

The two-piece wooltex tailormade is one of the best investments that a well-dressed woman can make. The later styles in this design are such as will readily lend themselves to dress as well as to morning wear and with a due regard to the matter of separate blouses can be made to do many and various uses in the scheme of things sartorial. One of the new shades of dahlia red broadcloth is used, the coat following the smart Louis Quinze cut. The bodice portion is closely fitted, the collarless neck mild with velvet and the full circular skirts fitted without dart or seam are attached to a belt of the same trimming braid with a smooth point in the front. The sleeve presents a clever effect, the upper part seeming to drop into the lower flaring cuff. The skirt shows pleated panel front, circular sides and back, and a double row of braid, applied in broken panel lines, forms its sole trimming effect.

The Face Specialist.

The face specialist and facial massage finds a large field in every watering place, and the woman who understands her business is sure to establish herself for one season, and probably will find her own customers will send her again in the future.

Facial massage is rather an expensive thing to learn, as it involves a knowledge of anatomy, and the most competent teachers charge a goodly fee for the instruction. However, as soon as this is acquired, if the operator is painstaking and faithful, she can be sure of earning her summer, not to say her winter, support.

Face specialist should know how to bleach the face, keep the skin smooth and free from sunburn, and carry with her lotions and creams suitable for this purpose, which she can sell again at very good profit, and which are always acceptable and necessary to the summer girls and their mammae.

Shampooing and Scalp Massage.

The woman who can give a really good scalp massage treatment is certain to make a good deal of money during the summer months, particularly at the seaside, for the effect of sun and salt water on the hair is such as to make her services absolutely necessary. Many a woman has lost her trade by her inclination to talk incessantly during the treatment. Many women like to be whispered to while they are having their heads and faces treated, but scalp treatment induces a dull, numbing condition, wherein every effort to listen to conversation becomes a positive nuisance. Besides which, an operator can really pay attention to what she is doing if she spends her energies in talking at the same time.

The woman who starts in for this work should know how to shampoo the head thoroughly, and should know enough about the constitution of the hair to treat it correctly. She should be able to make up her own lotions, which she can sell to her patients at store prices, thus making up herself a very good profit.

Conversely, one trained in the same manner described for the shampoo, and, in fact, the two professions are very often satisfactorily combined.

In Woman's World.

A great many children, and even the grown-ups who, perhaps, never have been to the circus, are interested in the telephonic art are pleased to become pupils in the children's classes, which are particularly attractive, and a girl who understands the teaching of the telephonic art and fancy dances will be able to get a goodly number during the summer.

Entertainments may be got up at very small cost which will prove interesting and are very attractive. These facts, up, naturally, to the subject of plans for the summer entertainments, dances, etc., as a means of support throughout the summer months, and of course, the hotel entertainer, who has now become quite an established institution, must know how to play the piano of some musical instrument, besides this she must have a great deal of tact, good humor and an agreeable personality. Perhaps the compensation of board and lodging for the summer is not so much to ask for all these charms.

"Surprising you will find in this comfortable heat by the elevator while I watch these two samples of children."

"I haven't minded it," he said cheerfully. "I just jumped onto a car and ran out to the large grounds and saw most of the hall came, and then I took a little run in the park with Doris in his new auto. Did you match the samples?"

"One of them. It's so provoking. I'll have to come in again tomorrow, for they're making the store now," Lippincott said.

"Mr. Philip Burne-Jones," remarked a Philadelphia millionaire some time since, "dined with me during his tour in America. Among other things, he told me to consent that a little success is apt to engender in young artists, to which Sir Philip remarked:

"My father used to tell the story of a young English nobleman who took to painting. He did passable work, got innumerable commissions from millionaire tradesmen, and became, it was said, quite popular. One day he insisted on driving my father to his studio to look at some of his work."

"Here are two of my latest paintings," he said, pointing them out upon their arrival. "They are entirely different in subject and treatment, but I am sure you will like them both. One is a portrait of my uncle, copied from an old-fashioned photograph. The other is a painting of my grandmother doing some needlework. My father for a moment looked carefully at each painting and then said:

"Which one did you say was your uncle?"—J. B. C.

Nightgowns and dressing gowns, also, have the circular design, and sleeves are cut to flare and corset covers, too, except that they flare at the top. It not only gives fulness at the right place, but it also saves seams and ugly gathers, and is generally a clever notion in the modern making of underwear.

Saltair, tonight, continuous dancing; train 7:30 (fare 50c, including dancing).

A FORECAST OF WINTER.

There is quite a wintry touch to this smart chapeau of dark green beaver, with its furry surface. The shape is quite a recent resurrection, the one-time English walking hat being clearly discernable in its outlines. For once the ubiquitous bandeau is not needed, the hat fitting comfortably to the shape of the head without it. The crown is of medium height, and the brim rises itself becomingly upon both sides, projecting slightly in front, but clinging closely to the head in the back. The sole trimming is a scarf of dark green velvet that is twisted carelessly around the crown, knotted into fanciful loops in the front, and a long coq plume in iridescent green shades passes along the left side, the ends drooping on the hair with a soft and becoming effect.
